THE BIGGEST MUNICIPAL DEBT IN THE WORLD

——Article II, Part I——

By HENRY BRUERE, Director, Bureau of Municipal Research.

NEW YORK is the richest municipal corporation in the world, but it is also, and perhaps for this reason, the most heavily indebted. Measured in terms of population, the outstanding gross indebtedness of the city on March 31, 1913, was approximately $225 per capita.

Taxpayers of today are paying for public works bequeathed to them by preceding generations of taxpayers, and are bearing their share of the cost of new undertakings which are to equip New York City for present convenience and future growth.

The first article in this series showed that the major responsibility for the increasing cost of government is attributable to the growth of appropriations for interest and redemption of the city debt in the annual tax budget. This fact fully realized makes consideration of the present debt of the city, the method of its incurring, and the future use of the city's "faith and credit" of vast importance to taxpayers.

The interest, sinking fund and redemption items included in the city budget for 1913 amounted to $54,977,381.34. These items have grown from $40,454,772.86 in 1908, or 35.9 per cent. The total increase in the entire budget in this time was $49,139,174.99, or only 3.38 times the increase in city debt charges.

All sinking fund and interest payments on outstanding bonds are not made from budget appropriations. Dock, water and subway revenues, for example, are used for interest and sinking funds for dock, water and subway bonds. On the other hand, the entire appropriation for "debt service" purposes does not relate to the permanent debt of the city. In 1913, $9,869,064.79 was included in this appropriation for interest and redemption of short term bonds. Interest and sinking fund installments for permanent debt have increased from $29,751,201.62 in 1908 to $45,108.316.55 in 1913, or 51.62 per cent. Since 1911 there has been a diminution in the interest charges for short term indebtedness due to the semi-annual collection of taxes inaugurated in that year on the initiative of Comptroller Prendergast. It is estimated that by collecting taxes in May as well as in October, and thus reducing the amounts borrowed in anticipation of tax collection, $1,500,000 in interest is saved annually.

Table IV.—Appropriations for City Purposes Which Have Increased More Than $1,000,000 During the Period 1903-1913.

Interest on city debt	$25,177,166.99

President Borough of Queens	1,068,108.78

†This figure represents not an increase in expenditures, but a transfer to the tax budget of items formerly met by sales of corporate stock.

‡Was not included in the budget but was included, nevertheless, in the computation of the tax levy.

§Excludes institutions, museums and care of public library buildings.

In this article Mr. Bruere brings out the startling fact that, through improvident fiscal management, the foremost city in America and the richest municipality in the world has virtually exhausted its constitutional borrowing power and must look for new ways of financing public works. On March 31, the net funded debt of New York City amounted to 7.01 per cent. of the assessed valuation of the real estate in the city, while contract and other liabilities increased the total indebtedness, exclusive of self-sustaining bonds, to 9.11 per cent. of the assessed valuation. As the debt incurring power of the city, except for certain income producing enterprises (water supply, docks, subways) is limited to 10 per cent. of the assessed valuation of the real estate in the city; as the current valuation is fully on a par with "market value," and as this value can not be expected to increase rapidly in the near future, it will be seen that the traditional fiscal policy of the city is no longer adequate to meet the necessity for expansion of municipal functions occasioned by the tremendous growth of population, a growth which has now attained a rate of about 200,000 a year. Mr. Bruere's article points out the choice of fiscal devices open to the city for taking care of its expanding activities. The present article, of which the second installment will appear next week, is the second of a series of five written by Mr. Bruere at the request of the Record and Guide, the purpose of the series being (1) to discover why taxes are increasing out of proportion to the growth of population and (2) to suggest available remedies.

What the City Debt Is.

Not until 1909 could any one answer the question "What Is the City Debt?" In that year, as a by-product of Comptroller Metz' opposition to the approval of contracts for the Fourth Avenue subway, the Court of Appeals determined, after a long hearing before Referee Benjamin F. Tracy, a multitude of questions as to what was to be included in computing the city debt and what was to be excluded, which theretofore had been matters of doubt or confusion. Many of these questions were framed as the result of investigation of the city debt by the Bureau of Municipal Research for which four of the principal banking houses of the city provided the funds. Several questions which are still in doubt were not answered by the Court of Appeals, because the litigants either failed to present the facts to the Court in these respects or failed to present them with sufficient clarity. It cannot be said, therefore, that all the questions involved in determining the constitutional indebtedness of the city are now settled, but it can be said that the margin of uncertainty has been brought down to a very narrow limit. Some of these questions will be referred to again.

New York City's billion dollar debt does not include current liabilities to be paid out of current taxes or other revenues. It represents in major part the following classes of indebtedness:

1. Corporate stock and other long term bonds issued to provide funds for future improvements.

2. Assessment bonds issued by the city to provide funds for public improvements, the cost of which are later to be defrayed either in whole or major part by assessment on properties enefited. The holders of these bonds have recourse to the general credit of the city, and are not limited to any special fund created by the payment of assessment. Assessment bonds, therefore, must be included in the city's constitutional indebtedness.

3. Contracts chargeable against corporate stock or assessment bond funds, less cash balances in particular funds available for their liquidation.

4. Revenue bonds outstanding for five years.

5. Liability for lands taken by condemnation; judgments and open market orders.

The 10 Per Cent. Constitutional Limitation.

These classes of debt make up the total of the city's $1,137,211,853.77 gross funded debt as of March 31, 1913. The constitution says that the municipality may not become indebted in excess of 10 per cent. of the assessed valuation of its taxable real estate. The assessed valuation of the taxable real estate for 1913 was $8,006,647,860, and 10 per cent., therefore, was $800,664,786. Various constitutional amendments and court interpretations, however, permit certain deductions to be made from the gross funded indebtedness in computing the so-called "debt limit." Thus, there are deducted $19,698,222.48 of county bonds issued prior to consolidation on the theory that such obligations should not embarrass the greater city in the extension of its improvements. Likewise subtracted are $145,512,393.60 for water bonds on the theory that these bonds will be redeemed out of the revenues derived from the sale of water and $117,425,778.73 for rapid transit and dock bonds declared by the Appellate Division to be self-supporting under the constitutional amendment of 1909. These deductions foot up to a total of $282,636,394.81, or 24.85 per cent. of the total funded debt. Every dollar of this indebtedness is a claim against the general credit of the city, but since the proceeds of these borrowings have been invested in revenue producing properties the bonds are properly disregarded in determining the extent to which the city may increase its obligations.

Besides subtracting exempt bonds, an additional $293,139,615.85 is deducted from the gross debt in computing the credit "margin" because this sum is held by the city in the form of cash and securities for sinking fund purposes. The sinking funds consist very largely of city bonds. The city by holding 25.77 per cent. of its outstanding indebtedness as sinking fund investments enlarges its power to add to its borrowings from other sources.

The Net Funded Debt.

After making the foregoing deductions the comptroller's statement of March 31 shows a "constitutional" or net funded debt of *$561,435,843.11, or 7.01 per cent. of the assessed valuation of the real estate of the city. Liabilities of the city, consisting largely of contracts chargeable against corporate stock funds and which will involve the issuance of further stock on March 31 of $168,541,235.56, (including $88,200,000, the amount of the city's proposed immediate contribution to the new subways), bring up the total indebtedness to $729,977,078.67 or 9.11 per cent. of the assessed valuation of the city's real estate.

To find the borrowing margin, this sum must be deducted from 10 per cent. of the assessed total valuation. The result is $70,687,707.33. But the Board of Estimate and Apportionment has set aside all except $11,155,330.82 of this sum for specific purposes, thus $6,006,323.24 for rapid transit, $15,000,000 for docks and ferries and $38,526,053.27 for various other municipal purposes.

What the Debt Represents.

That portion of the city's indebtedness which does not represent investment in subways, docks and water, has been expended to provide bridges, schools, parks and streets, courthouses, fire and police stations and other more or less permanent structures of the city.

The Comptroller is still engaged in preparing the first inventory ever made of New York City's property. No one, therefore, now knows the exact value of this property nor what the assets are that offset the city's formidable indebtedness. This inventory, now in preparation, will estimate the present value of structures built out of bonds issued 25 or 30 years ago. If an investigation were made it would undoubtedly be found that a very large part of property purchased out of the proceeds of corporate stock within the last 50 years has now totally disappeared. Until 1909 it was the practice, for example, to pay a portion of current expenses out of 50-year bonds. Formerly, horse collars and blankets, tin pails, etc., for the Street Cleaning Department were purchased from the proceeds of 50-year bonds under a foolish law which authorized the city to charge against corporate stock the plant and equipment of the Street Cleaning Department, and left to the whims of subordinates to determine what constituted "plant and equipment." Taxpayers are still paying heavy interest and sinking fund charges on "capital" outlays of this character.

Unscientific Use of Borrowed Funds.

There is still injudicious use of proceeds of 50-year bonds. No classification has been made of the prospective life of different kinds of property acquired by the use of borrowed funds. The proceeds of 50-year bonds may be used to buy bed linen as a part of the original equipment of a hospital, or they may be used to buy a strip of real estate certain to enhance in value. The general theory under which long-term bonds are issued to pay for improvements is that by this means the cost of improvements which will benefit successive generations may be apportioned with practical equity to those generations. For the 50-year bonds issued today are not paid in toto by the taxpayers of fifty years hence. Each year the city sets aside a sum which, with interest accumulations, will wipe out the total principal at the end of the term of indebtedness. Thus, the taxpayers of each year contribute their proportionate share to the extinguishment of the debt. The principle is precisely fair. An alternative which other cities are increasingly practicing is to issue serial bonds falling due in successive years. The imposition of the burden is exactly the same, although the method employed slightly differs.

Scientific use of the city's borrowing power requires, first, that the term of bonds issued corresponds fairly closely to the estimated life of the property for whose acquisition they are issued, and, second, that the bonds be paid off by amortization or redemption by successive generations of taxpayers in proportion to their enjoyment of the property which the bonds represent.

Taxpayers and the City Debt.

Taxpayers may not justly complain of the major part of the city debt burden, for taxpayers in a large measure have directed the expenditure of funds which the debt represents. It is taxpayers who in new sections of the city insist upon the construction of schools in order that their properties may become attractive to tenants. It is taxpayers who want docks and water supply, and taxpayers who want parks, hospitals, courts, subways and bridges. The present debt of the city reflects expenditures necessitated by the period of its greatest growth, a growth that has brought unprecedented returns to many land owners. New York City is reaping the whirlwind of public improvement prodigality which came to its climax in the McClellan administration. Real estate speculators have tapped the city treasury to their hearts' content, for in the past improvements have been made in large degree as a result of local pressure and individual enterprise, and without reference to the general needs of the city.

Present Pressing Problems.

Consideration of the past, however, will profit no one except as it points the way to a right future course. More impressive than the mammoth proportions of the city's debt is the plain fact that if New York were today lacking its physical equipment of sewers, water works, parks, schools, etc., it could not, with its present resources, provide them. New York is confronted with a lean period in public improvements, for except as assessed valuations increase it will be compelled by the force of the constitution to stop spending borrowed funds for schools and other improvements. The tax department foresees a period of slow advancement in assessed valuations.

If this is true, taxpayers in Queens desiring improvements can no longer obtain them through burdening the taxpayers of the entire city. Taxpayers in The Bronx desiring subways can no longer escape paying the cost by pledging the "faith and credit" of the entire city. New York is now in a position where it must consider one of three alternatives—first the wider use of the principle of benefit assessments as a means of financing public improvements; second, the inclusion of capital outlays in current tax budgets, or, third, obtaining constitutional authority for using other means for financing improvements such as excess condemnation, the issue of specific lien certificates, etc.

One of Brooklyn's Longest Thoroughfares—Its Fine Residential Part Is Vanishing and Trade Is Increasing There—The Business Section of the Avenue.

PENETRATING almost the entire width of Brooklyn, Bedford avenue is of variable character. It derives its name from the ancient village of Bedford, the center of which in Revolutionary days was at Bedford avenue and Fulton street. Bedford avenue originally extended from Eastern Parkway north to Division avenue, in the Eastern District. Twenty odd years ago it was extended northward to Manhattan avenue, in the Greenpoint section of the borough; and, subsequently it was extended southward from Eastern Parkway to and through Flatbush practically to Coney Island. The invasion of the suburban area of Brooklyn by homeseekers and the great municipal improvements that followed required the opening of Bedford avenue southward. Its opening south of the Parkway was marked by the erection of the immense armory of Troop C of the National Guard, on Bedford avenue. For a long distance south of Eastern Parkway Bedford avenue is not improved to any extent, but in the immediate Flatbush section of Brooklyn the avenue is improved with fine detached homes. From Bergen street to the Parkway, Bedford avenue is improved principally with good apartment houses and with a sufficient number of stores to meet the demands of neighborhood trade. This part of the avenue is in one of the highest parts of Brooklyn.

From Manhattan avenue to Broadway, in Williamsburg, Bedford avenue is a motley aggregation of old tenement houses and small stores, intermingled with light manufacturing concerns. Here the avenue penetrates a great industrial section of Brooklyn, where some of the largest industries in the greater city are situated. There is little if any tendency toward modern improvement in this part of Bedford avenue. From North 12th street to Manhattan avenue Bedford avenue passes through Greenpoint (McCarren) Park, a large municipal breathing space that is bounded by Berry street, Nassau avenue, North 12th street and Manhattan avenue. Consequently there is a long stretch of the avenue that is a divisor of other and built-up parts. Manhattan avenue, with which Bedford avenue directly connects, leads to the bridge across Newtown Creek to Long Island City. At Flatbush, Bedford avenue ostensibly ends at Foster avenue, but as a matter of fact East 25th street is a continuation of it due south to Sheepshead Bay or the ocean front of Brooklyn.

Once a Fashionable Section.

Probably the most notable change that has taken place on Bedford avenue is in the section from Flushing avenue north to the fountain at Division avenue, in Williamsburg. Most of this part of the avenue was for two generations an exclusive residential quarter of Brooklyn. Old mansions occupy nearly every corner, bespeaking an elegance that has vanished, for this part of the thoroughfare has depreciated to the extent that a different class of population has come in. Many of the old mansions have either become boarding houses or are occupied for studio purposes of different kinds. Some of them have been transformed into club houses, notably the one occupied by the Hanover Club, at the southeast corner of Bedford avenue and Rodney street. When the extensive structural improvements in Flatbush were commenced fifteen years or more ago the best part of the Williamsburg section was drawn upon for population for the new outlying district, with the result that many old families in Bedford avenue were among those who followed the southward movement.

Business Invasion.

So extensive was this residential change that one of the large churches of Williamsburg sold its property in that part of Brooklyn and built a new edifice in the Flatbush section, so as to hold its old parishioners. Business is now invading the part of Bedford avenue, in Williamsburg, immediately opposite the fountain. Old brownstone fronts, that once housed some of Brooklyn's notables, are being remodeled for business purposes and more are being advertised for that purpose. Notable among the changes here was the demolition of the Dr. J. T. Brady mansion, at the southwest corner of Bedford avenue and Morton street. Thirty years ago or less, this building was considered one of the show residences of Brooklyn. Another house that was abandoned by its wealthy owner was that of the late Moses May, on the better part of Bedford avenue. He sold it a few years before his demise to move to a house on Jefferson avenue, in the part of Brooklyn near Fulton street and Bedford avenue, or part way across the borough. As this part of Bedford avenue has changed in residential tone, the intersecting streets that compared favorably with the avenue in character have changed accordingly. The opening of the Williamsburg Bridge, which is a short distance away, and the widening of Taylor street in a westerly direction to Bedford avenue have tended to still more strongly accentuate the changes on Bedford avenue. As the old Brooklyn Bridge changed the fine residential tone of a large part of Brooklyn Heights, so has the Williamsburg Bridge caused pronounced changes in the Bedford avenue neighborhood from Division avenue to Heyward street.

BEDFORD AVENUE AT DEAN STREET.

BEDFORD AVENUE AT THE FOUNTAIN.

What the Vacant Stores Mean.

While dwellings on Bedford avenue are being altered for business purposes to a degree, an anomaly exists in the Bedford avenue blocks immediately to the north, or from Division avenue to Broadway. Here there are numerous vacant stores which a few years ago were well rented. Undoubtedly the cessation of heavy traffic on lower Broadway, from Bedford avenue to the ferries at the foot of Broadway, have had much to do with the business changes in these blocks. Between South 8th street and South 9th street, in this part of Bedford avenue, there are seven vacant stores, while a large store at the southeast corner of South 9th street is also vacant. At the northeast corner of Bedford avenue and South 8th street is a 4-story department store building that was abandoned as such a few years ago and is now used as a knitting mill. Smith, Gray & Company still maintain their original store at the southeast corner of Bedford avenue and Broadway.

A notable improvement in the old fine residential part of Bedford avenue is taking place at the northeast corner of Keap street, where the Williamsburg branch of the Young Women's Christian Association is erecting a handsome large building to be used as its headquarters. At 559 Bedford avenue, on the northeast corner of Rodney street, is the large residence where the late Millard F. Smith lived. The house is four stories and 45x60 feet in size, while the plot is 45x100 feet, with a garage on the rear fronting in Rodney street. This house is on the market and will probably be altered either into a club house or studio building if it changes hands. In the vicinity of Heyward street, there are some fine apartment houses on Bedford avenue.

A Dividing Line.

A distinct improvement has been made on the west side of Bedford avenue in the block from Flushing avenue to Wallabout street. A row of 6-story brick and stone flats with stores have superseded the old Coe & Merritt carriage factory that long stood on the site. From Flushing avenue to Myrtle avenue there have been very few structural changes on Bedford avenue. Old frame dwellings and stores comprise the improvements Flushing avenue was always considered the dividing line between Williamsburg and Brooklyn in the days of the separate existence of those municipalities. The old edifice of the Bedford Avenue Baptist Church, on the west side of Bedford avenue, between Myrtle and Willoughby avenues has just been bought by the Congregation Beth Jehuda and is now used as a synagogue. This building marks the great change in the kind of population in the vicinity. There is a large plot at the southwest corner of Bedford and Willoughby avenues that is on the market. This corner was for many years used as a coal yard. From Willoughby avenue to De Kalb avenue Bedford avenue is made up of old dwellings and a few apartment houses that retain the same class of population they always had, as do also the dwellings on Bedford avenue from De Kalb to Lafayette avenue.

A Busy Trade Center.

From Lafayette avenue south to Fulton street, a distance of one-half mile or more, Bedford avenue is a busy trade center and there are some very good small stores there, with here and there a garage, as well as numerous automobile showrooms. The most prominent improvements on this part of Bedford avenue are the Bedford branch of the Young Men's Christian Association, at the northeast corner of Monroe street, the old Masonic Temple, at the northwest corner of Madison street and a block front of modern stores, offices and assembly rooms in one building, on the west side of the avenue from Madison street to Putnam avenue. The oldest public school building in Brooklyn is at the southwest corner of Bedford and Jefferson avenues. During the last ten years many brownstone flats on Bedford avenue, between Jefferson avenue and Fulton street, have been altered into business buildings in their two lower stories. There is a great deal of pedestrian traffic on this part of Bedford avenue evenings, while afternoons also contribute a good quota of people.

South of Fulton Street.

Bedford avenue, from Fulton street south to Bergen street, is somewhat broken in character. Most of the dwellings in this part have been either remodeled or are used for business purposes, while the long block front on the west side of Bedford avenue, from Brevoort place to Atlantic avenue, is vacant. There were prospects, at one time, that the city would take this block for park purposes, but the plan was abandoned. The Union League Club of Brooklyn has a fine club house at the southeast corner of Bedford avenue and Dean street, in this part of the avenue. Nearby, Rogers avenue meets Bedford avenue diagonally, thus forming a square in front of the club house, in the center of which is a heroic size equestrian statue of General Ulysses S. Grant, which was presented to the city by the Union League Club many years ago. On the west side of this square some new apartment houses and stores have been erected. The armory of the 23d Regiment of the National Guard occupies the west block front of Bedford avenue, from Atlantic avenue to Pacific street. There are very few, if any, store vacancies in the strong business part of Bedford avenue.

A BUSINESS SECTION OF BEDFORD AVENUE.

APARTMENT BUILDERS OPPOSE AMENDMENTS

Extra Stairways Would Be Impracticable in a Small Flat—Besides They Would Add to the Cost of Construction—Will Appeal to Mayor Gaynor.

WHEN it became known that the bill providing for two independent means of egress in all apartment houses and otherwise amending the Tenement House Law had passed the Legislature and had gone to the Governor decided opposition to the measure began to appear among architects and speculative builders. In answer to a number of inquiries it was stated at the Mayor's office that a hearing would be granted as a matter of law and that the date would be announced in the City Record.

The bill gives the builders of future apartment houses the choice of providing either two independent stairways, a fire tower or an outside fire-escape. The extra stairway must under the terms of the bill be remote from the one already provided for by law, must be directly accessible at each story from each apartment without having to pass through the first way of egress and must be separated from the other by walls.

In the past the law has assumed that fireproof buildings were safe enough without being equipped with special fire-exits, but the public movement in behalf of fire-prevention has developed in official circles a belief that every apartment house hereafter erected should have at least two means of exit. While the pending measure does not relate to houses in being, it is not improbable that, should it be enacted, laws for the equipment of all other apartment houses similarly would follow in due time.

Increases Construction Cost.

The pending measure is objected to principally on the ground that it increases the cost of construction, and consequently will either reduce the net income from real estate holdings or increase rentals to the public. Apartment house architects and builders interviewed on the subject mostly expressed repugnance to defacing the exteriors of costly apartment houses of the first class with iron stairs and balconies, and some of the principal builders opposed the extra interior stairways not only on account of their cost but for the further reason that they would be very wasteful of space and quite impracticable in houses planned for small suites of three or four rooms, as many are nowadays.

A firm of architects who have planned as many apartment houses of the first class as any other firm in the city during the past decade, said that they would certainly oppose the approval of the bill by Mayor Gaynor. They said further:

Needlessly Exacting.

"Regarding exits in fireproof buildings, it is the professional opinion that requirements are becoming needlessly exacting. The present law sufficiently safeguards the tenants in apartment houses up to twelve or thirteen stories in height. When a building exceeds this height, an additional exit should be provided and invariably would be by the owners and architects. It is very undesirable to put outside fire-escapes on a fireproof building, and within the last few years the owners have been building fireproof apartment houses that are exempt from fire-escapes, in preference to building non-fireproof buildings. Furthermore, what woman or child would use a fire-escape eight or more floors up over the street?

"An additional flight of stairs either inside or outside would not be objectionable were it not for the fact that to meet the law when amended, these stairs must be directly accessible at each story to each apartment without having to pass through the first way of egress. Why not have a fire tower reached through the public hall if we must have another stairway?

"As an instance, consider a corner, say 100 by 100 feet, or 100 by 125 feet, made up of two, three, four and five room suites. One can readily see that the number of additional stairways that would be required, and if fire-escapes were provided—what an architectural monstrosity!

"Fire towers as permitted under the Tenement Law, without windows to the outer air, are a most undesirable means of exit (even though electrically lighted). Proper ventilation is a requisite and to secure ventilation, means a great loss of rentable area.

Caution Advised.

"Before the amendments become law, careful thought and study should be given to the problem, and architects and builders will readily agree that it will be an unnecessary and unwarranted hardship and extravagance in planning to put in all of these stairs and towers. Fire experts will tell you that in case of fire, people use only the exits they are accustomed to, instead of more. Let us make the one or two invulnerable.

"As we said before, builders have been going nine stories in height on 60 foot streets to avoid fire-escape requirements, etc., which has been a most desirable thing for the beauty of the city. The amendments to the law will in all probability bring them back again to six-story non-fireproof buildings with fire-escapes.

"We trust the entire matter can be carefully thrashed out before the amendments become law. If so, architects and builders will be most grateful.

"Careful consideration should also be given to all the other amendments, and those amendments in reference to the use of reinforced concrete, for building of embankment walls, etc., should be given some consideration by the Joint Committee of City Departments so that the Tenement House Act and the new Code (when we get it) will not be in conflict.

"The amendment in regard to retaining walls allows a maximum of 24 inches. The curb at the rear of the janitor's apartment is generally 7 feet 6 inches below the curb, and from the ceiling to the sill of the first-story window is generally 3 inches; therefore, the maximum of 24 inches allowed in the amendments would be good for only 8 feet high. This in itself requires careful consideration in order to meet the desired result, and to conform to the Building Code."

Extra Fire Exits.

In anticipation of the introduction of a measure such as this The Record and Guide interviewed some months ago a considerable number of architects and builders of prominence and discovered a strong feeling existing against exterior fire-escapes.

Ralph S. Townsend of Townsend, Steinle & Haskell, (Inc.) could not see of what use additional fire-escapes would be on houses constructed under the new amendment.

"The best fire-escape for practicability and safety," said Mr. Townsend, "consists of a stairway or stair tower enclosed in fireproof walls, with all openings protected by self-closing fire-boards, communicating only with public halls, on each floor. This gives a direct means of egress to all tenants, and, as these stairways are constructed and finished with fireproof material throughout, there is nothing in them to burn or cause conflagration.

"We therefore strongly object to the addition of outside fire-escapes, which, owing to the nature of the occupancy, cannot be protected from flames bursting out of the window on the various floors, which would probably compel fleeing tenants to pass through flames in order to reach the ground."

Charles Buek, architect and builder of high class houses for many years, said that exterior fire-escapes were makeshifts and excusable only where defective planning and faulty arrangement of the interior as to stairs and exits made provision of the kind unavoidable. The tenement house law as it stood wisely dispensed with them on fireproof buildings.

Alex Kahn of 220 Fifth avenue, one of the builders of the Hendrick Hudson, and partner of Frederick Johnson in many operations, voiced the opinion of himself and his associates that the rules and regulations heretofore laid down by the building and tenement house departments have sufficiently provided for the safety of tenants in fireproof apartment houses.

Capt. John P. Leo, architect, builder and a member of the Board of Examiners, was of the opinion that the only solution of the problem would be found in the installation of smokeproof towers containing stairs and accessible at each and every floor.

34th Street Route Cancelled.

The Public Service Commission rescinded a resolution previously passed laying down a rapid transit route in 34th street, Manhattan. This route was laid out by the commission for use as either a subway or a moving platform. Last summer, after protest from interested property owners, the commission withdrew the route from the Board of Estimate and Apportionment, where it had been sent for approval. This action leaves 34th street without a rapid transit route.

—Park avenue is making good on the best predictions for its future. The Ogden Goelet estate is the latest to start a building operation. At the southwest corner of 55th street they will erect a twelve-story apartment house from plans by Julius Harder, and Moore & Wyckoff will be the agents. It will be a house of big apartments. On three floors there will be but one apartment each of nineteen rooms, and on the other floors two apartments each.

AWARDS FOR THE COURT HOUSE SITE

Total Value of the 62 Parcels Taken Fixed by the Commissioners at $6,126,000—And $12,600 More for Trade Fixtures.

THE commissioners to condemn the property for the new Court House, namely Abram I. Elkus (chairman), Henry Schneider and James J. Coogan, commissioners have filed their preliminary report fixing the value of the properties taken by the city.

The total value of the property taken as fixed by the commissioners is $6,126,050.63. The tenants who occupy portions of these different properties are to receive from the owners of the property—that is to say, deducted from this amount—the sum of $46,224.17, being the value of their leasehold interests. These tenants are also to receive from the City of New York the sum of $12,602.82 being the value of their trade fixtures which the city destroys or injures by reason of taking their property. The total amount which the city will have to pay, therefore, according to this report, will be $6,138,653.45.

This proceeding was begun on June 7, 1912, and the commissioners immediately began hearings. There were 62 parcels acquired in the proceeding, comprising about 73 city lots. Most of the parcels are improved, and some of them with large buildings from six to twelve stories in height.

The property owners were represented by no less than thirty-five lawyers, among whom were George W. Hubbell, Bowers & Sands, Truman H. and George E. Baldwin, Michael J. Mulqueen, Edward W. Murphy, Weekes Brothers, Philbin, Beekman and Menken, Deyo and Bauerdorf, Rosenthal and Steckler, Zabriskie, Murray, Sage and Kerr and The City of New York by Assistant Corporation Counsel Charles D. Olendorf.

The record consists of 6,707 typewritten pages. There were about one hundred court sessions and the commissioners spent about twenty-five days in examining the property, reading the testimony and briefs and considering their decision.

Herewith is printed a complete list of the properties taken, with names of owners and lessees, and awards as fixed by the commissioners.

LAW OF CITY CONTRACTS.

Contractor Not Liable for Damage Caused Through Subcontractor.

A trial of great interest to contractors working for the city has just ended before Justice Vernon M. Davis and a jury in the Supreme Court in this County.

The Lord Electric Company sued the City of New York, through Eidlitz & Hulse, its attorneys, to recover the sum of $28,138.56 with interest, being the balance due for work that it performed in the erection of the Manhattan Bridge, in this city.

The City of New York set up in its defense that a fire on the bridge in March, 1910, resulted in damage to the city equal to the amount claimed by the contractor. The city claimed further that, while the fire was caused by the negligence of the sub-contractor of the Lord Electric Company which was engaged in asphalt work upon the bridge, the primary obligation was between the city and the contractor, and that it was the contractor's duty to look to the sub-contractor for reimbursement to the extent that the city claimed damage against the contractor.

In support of this contention, Assistant Corporation Counsel Martin, relied upon two provisions of the contract and specifications. The first is contained in Article Y of the usual form of contract between the city and contractors and reads in part, as follows:

> And he will indemnify and save harmless the city from all suits or actions and damages or costs of every name and description to which the city may be subjected or put by reason of any injury to the person or property of another, resulting from the negligence or carelessness on the part of the contractor, his servants or agents, in the delivery of the materials and supplies or by or on account of any act or omission of the contractor, his agents or servants.

Upon this branch of the case, Mr. Hulse, on behalf of the contractor, argued that the words "servants or agents" did not include "sub-contractors" and that only some act or omission to act on the part of the employees of the Lord Electric Company would give the right to the city to claim damages against the contractor.

The second provision relied upon by the city is in paragraph 18 of the specifications, which says: "The contractor shall be responsible for all injury to persons or property due to his operations."

The Corporation Counsel contended that this provision meant the operations not alone of the contractor but of all sub-contractors employed by the contractor.

In reply to this, Mr. Hulse argued that the words "his operations" meant only the operations of the contractor itself and not the operations of any sub-contractor engaged upon the work, even though he was a sub-contractor under the general contractor, who held a contract with the city; that the contract also contained a provision that no subcontractor should be employed upon the job except with the written approval of the Department of Bridges; that the Department of Bridges, having consented in writing to the employment of the asphalt paving company as a subcontractor upon the work, it made the asphalt company an independent contractor, for whose negligence the general contractor was not responsible; and the city, therefore, was relegated to its remedy of prosecuting an action against the sub-contractor, the asphalt paving company, for the damage sustained by the city.

Justice Davis ruled that these contentions, on behalf of the contractor, were sound, and directed the jury to find a verdict in favor of the contractor and against the city for the amount claimed, $28,138.56 with interest.

This seems to be the first interpretation given by the courts of this state in relation to these particular provisions of the city contracts, and it will be of interest to note whether the appellate courts agree with the rulings made by the trial court, if an appeal is taken.

REAL ESTATE RALLYING.

Enormous Interest in the Conservation Movement—Selecting Committees.

Committees are being selected by the temporary committee engaged in organizing the taxpayers' revolutionary movement for the conservation of the city's resources and the emancipation of real property. Chairman Chesebrough expects to be able to announce the full list next week. The declaration of principles is being signed by thousands of citizens in all the boroughs. Five hundred copies are in circulation.

Brands from the main conflagration have started other fires in several places. Apartment house builders have raised a protesting voice against the proposed amendments to the Tenement law, especially the one requiring two means of exit from every apartment, on the ground of impracticability and unnecessary expense. General contractors are awaiting the appearance of the new building code with some anxiety, to see whether it will increase building costs or not.

The work of organizing the taxpayers in the five boroughs of the city is making rapid and steady progress. A few of the most recent signers not heretofore published, are as follows:

Alexander J. Hemphill, W. A. Reade & Company, Henry C. Tinker, Wilbur C. Fisk, Robert C. Ogden, Robert H. McCurdy, J. Horace Harding, Henry Sanderson, Edgar L. Marston, William N. Cohen, McDougall Hawkes, William B. Ellison, John E. Parsons, Abram I. Elkus, J. Edgar Leaycraft, George F. Butterworth, Edward J. Hancy, Albert G. Milbank, Jacob J. Shubert, Walter E. Maynard, Henry Lane Eno, Jacob Wertheim, Theodore Roosevelt Pell, Worthington Whitehouse, Ranald H. MacDonald, Remsen Johnson, C. H. P. Gilbert, Lispenard Stewart, Charles C. Bull, T. Oakley Rhinelander, Philip Rhinelander.

Equitable Office Building Corporation, by T. C. DuPont, President; Norman Henderson, Lyttleton Fox, Charles E. Manierre, 50 Broad Street Company, J. W. Dimick, A. Gutwillig, Jacob Hirsh, Robert T. Oliver, Edward Hubbard Litchfield, The Brooklyn Improvement Company, The American Lithographing Co., B. K. Bimberg, Oppenheim, Collins & Co., Harris Mandelbaum, Fifth Avenue Building Company, Marc Eidlitz & Son, J. C. Lyons, Kaskel & Kaskel, Jere Johnson, Jr., Company, Edmund L. Baylies, Olin J. Stephens, Lewis Cass Ledyard, Jr., John G. Milburn, James Speyer, W. Brenton Welling, Henry Heide, Henry E. Coe, Henry Corn.

The following real estate organizations have joined as organizations:

United Real Estate Owners Association, representing 5,000 members; Brooklyn Real Estate Board of Brokers, representing 75 members.

Announcement is made by W. H. Chesebrough, temporary chairman of the new taxpayers' movement, that acceptances have so far been received from the following named gentlemen to act as committeemen for the Borough of Manhattan: Clarence H. Kelsey, Alexander J. Hemphill, William B. Cardozo, Henry Morgenthau, B. Aymar Sands, Allan Robinson, Adolph Bloch, Robert E. Dowling, Alfred E. Marling, Oakleigh Thorne, H. S. Black, E. A. Tredwell, Wilbur C. Fisk, Ernest Flagg, Louis V. Bright, Richard M. Hurd, Clinton R. James, L. J. Horowitz, Joseph P. Day, Lawrence Elliman, Albert B. Ashforth, Walter T. Rosen, Dr. Abraham Korn, Irving Ruland, Joel S. DeSelding, Joseph Schwab, Charles Schnelle, Walter Lindner, Frederick M. Hilton, Bryan L. Kennelly.

The list is far from complete because the invitations were sent out only a day or two ago, and sufficient time has not elapsed to receive a more general response.

The following acceptances have so far been received as members of the Brooklyn Committee: David Porter, Howard C. Pyle, Frank H. Tyler, Arthur J. Waldron, William E. Harmon, Thomas Krekeler, Isaac O. Horton.

The following acceptances have been received as members of the Bronx Committee: J. Clarence Davies, William A. Cokeley, Frederic Johnson, Edward B. Boynton, Robert E. Simon, Jacob Leitner, Elmer D. Coulter, Sigmund Feust, J. Harris Jones.

—Following objections made by the Allied Real Estate Interests and the Citizens' Union to the proposed $8,000,000 filter plant for the Croton water, the Board of Estimate postponed action on the bid of the Keystone State Construction Company. Later the Citizens' Union served a temporary injunction upon the members of the board, restraining them from taking action.

NEW 5TH AVENUE BUILDING.

W. W. Astor Responds to Popular Feeling Against More Tall Buildings.

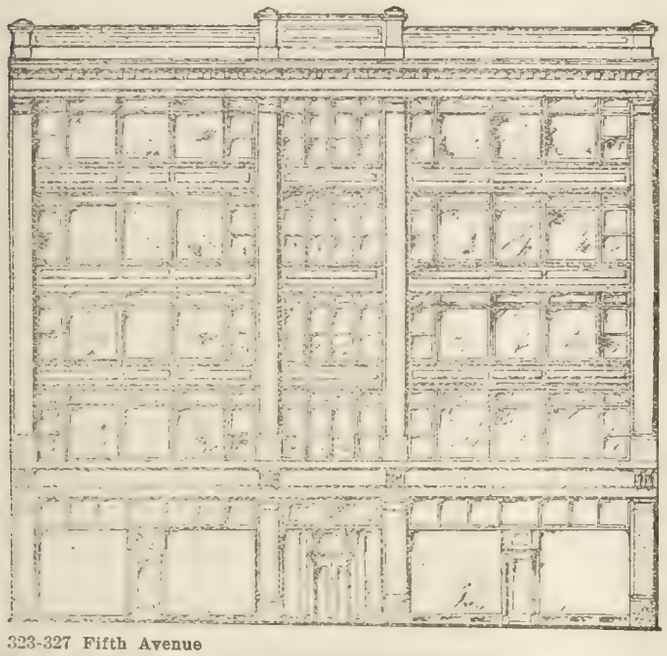
A loft building with features of unusual interest is to be erected by John Downey for William Waldorf Astor, Esq., on plot Nos. 323-327 Fifth avenue, between 32d and 33d streets, the site of the old residences recently occupied by William Baumgarten & Co. In the first place it will not be a skyscraper, but will conform to the new public preference for low buildings on Fifth avenue.

The plans prepared by Mr. J. F. Burrowes, architect, call for a five-story, fireproof building with four stores on the street floor. The four lofts will be leased to high-class tenants only, and no manufacturer will be permitted in the building.

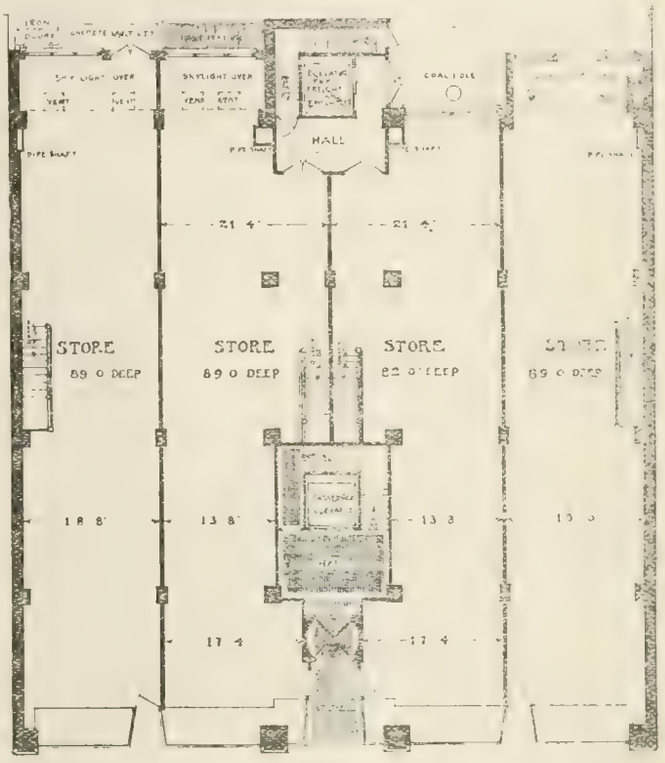
All shipping and receiving of goods will be done from the rear, a large yard being provided with a driveway to 32d street. Employes will also use this entrance.

As a result of the yard space and several surrounding courts in the rear, the lofts and stores will be unusually well lighted and ventilated. Rear windows and doors will be fireproof.

The front will be limestone and semi-glazed face brick, and is designed to give a maximum of window area.



Exit facilities will be ample, consisting of two fireproof interior stairways in fireproof enclosures and an outside iron stairway in the rear. The building will be ready for occupancy about November 1.



Advantages of Low Buildings.

It will be noticed that in this instance the owners have adhered to their general practice of not erecting a high building. In their opinion a well proportioned building of moderate height is preferable in many ways to the usual skyscraper type so common in New York.

This idea seems to coincide with the recently aroused public sentiment in favor of medium height buildings on Fifth avenue.

A low building has also certain advantages which should appeal to the occupant. The halls and elevators are never congested, fire risks are greatly minimized, and freight is shipped and received without delay.

323-327 Fifth Avenue J. F. Burrowes, Architect.

THIS BUILDING WILL BE ERECTED FOR WILLIAM WALDORF ASTOR. IT WILL RESPOND TO THE NEW PUBLIC SENTIMENT IN FAVOR OF MEDIUM HEIGHT BUILDINGS ON FIFTH AVENUE.

THE LEGISLATIVE SESSION.

A Notable One from a Social Standpoint —Many Radical Measures Enacted.

The session of the Legislature which ended last week was in some respects a notable one. It enacted an unusual number of bills of the first importance from a social standpoint—bills regulating the conduct of business and safeguarding the interests of employees. The body of the legislation of this sort was unquestionably demanded by public sentiment and the provisions it contains are, on the whole, equitable. The Legislature deserves credit not only for what it accomplished but also for much of what it declined to do. It left in committee many bills of a radical nature out of harmony with American traditions and institutions, though dictated by humanitarian impulses.

The dominant feeling among representative leaders of the real estate profession in this city with respect to the work of the Legislature was, it is believed, expressed in the following sentiment by an officer of the Real Estate Board of Brokers:

"The new legislation for the most part is in acordance with the spirit of progress. It imposes new burdens upon property and upon business enterprises, but the burdens were made as reasonable as could in fairness be expected. Both the Legislature and the Governor showed themselves open to argument and in a number of instances modified needlessly severe provisions without changing the main purpose of the measures in which the objectionable provisions were contained. Thus, the bill which originally called for fireproof walls to enclose stairways in old factory buildings was changed to permit walls of slow burning construction instead. If the bill as originally drawn had been enacted, it would have been necessary to suspend manufacturing in thousands of factories while buildings were being practically reconstructed. Walls of slow burning construction will serve every purpose contemplated by the bill in its first and unreasonably severe form.

"The same is true of others among the very important bills amending the Factory Law, the Fire Insurance Law, and other existing laws as well as those providing for entirely new statutes, as, for example, the Liabilities Insurance measures. Of these measures there were perhaps half a dozen, but the one passed by the Legislature was undoubtedly the best. With respect to the fire insurance amendments, they will serve to protect both the community and legitimate applicants for insurance; and if they achieve this, brokers should not complain about a little increase of red tape in writing policies.

"Finally, the open-minded attitude of the Governor was shown by the fact that he abandoned more than one contemplated piece of legislation when he found that his first judgment had been based on insufficient knowledge of actual conditions, as was the case with the Stock Exchange program which he announced upon entering office."

Indeed, if it had not been for the Stillwell incident, the circumstances surrounding the bill exempting from taxation certain outstanding State bonds and some other matters that are hard to explain away, the session would be open to but little criticism, except such criticism as is based on differences in political convictions. This, at any rate, appears to be the verdict to-day, in advance of full knowledge concerning the mass of "thirty-day bills" left in the hands of the Governor. Of these there are several hundred, and it is quite possible that some of them may contain "jokers" slipped in during the hurry of the last few days of the session without the cognizance of the majority of the members, as rumor declares; but the Governor's friends are confident that he will permit no measure to become law without having had it carefully examined. It is felt also that any error, intentional or otherwise, may be corrected by the extra session that is to convene on June 18.

Important General Measures.

Among the more important acts passed by the Legislature are the following, of which that relating to woman's suffrage is perhaps the most radical:

The ratification of the amendment to the constitution of the United States providing for the direct election of United States Senators.

The adoption of a concurrent resolution proposing an amendment to the constitution which will extend the right of suffrage to women.

The establishment of a State Board of Estimate, to consist of the Governor, Lieutenant Governor, temporary President of the Senate, chairman of the Finance Committee of the Senate, Speaker of the Assembly, chairman of the Ways and Means Committee of the Assembly, Controller and Attorney General, which will take up for the first time in the history of the State the preparation of a budget in a scientific way for submission to the Legislature.

The establishment of a Department of Efficiency and Economy to make a study of the State offices, institutions and departments. The Commissioner will be a member of the Board of Estimate and will receive statements of appropriations needed for the several departments.

The reorganization of the Highway Department with the provision for a single headed commission.

The reorganization of the Labor Department, with many additional powers in the way of inspection and creating an Industrial Commission.

The enactment of twenty bills proposed by the State Factory Commission, which experts declare give New York better progressive labor laws than any other State in the country. The laws are particularly directed against child labor and the employment of women in night work.

The enactment of a home rule law, which gives the cities more power to govern themselves than they have ever had, and which it is believed will reduce the number of local bills introduced by more than eighty per cent.

Giving the Controller the power of audit over all expenditures by State departments, and which, it is predicted, will effect a saving of millions of dollars each year.

Comprehensive reform in the insurance and banking laws by series of bills introduced at the request of the department heads.

Harlem Ship Canal.

Senator Anthony J. Griffin's Harlem Ship Canal Bill, appropriating $1,100,000 for the purchase of the land necessary to straighten the Harlem Ship Canal, has been signed by Governor Sulzer. The betterment of the Harlem River is an imperative necessity to the Barge Canal traffic and that of the great Inland Canal System from Boston to Florida.

Notaries Public.

Two measures were enacted by the State Legislature amending the executive law in relation to the powers and duties of notaries, being known as Chapters 208 and 248, both of which were introduced in the Senate by Senator Griffin. Chapter 208 was formulated by George W. M. Clark, one of the attorneys for the American Real Estate Company, and for many years connected with the office of Woodford, Bovee & Butcher, attorneys for the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company. This law, which went into effect April 4, permits a notary to take affidavits and acknowledgments anywhere within the State of New York, without the filing of County Clerk's certificates in the County in which the acknowledgment may have been taken; the only limitation being that the notary must either have qualified or have filed a certificate of qualification within the county in which the deed is to be recorded.

This will permit a notary public who resides in Kings County, for instance, and has an office in New York County, to take the acknowledgment of an instrument affecting property within his home county, without the need of a certificate from the Clerk of New York County, certifying that he has qualified in New York County as was necessary under the old law.

The other amendment applies merely to notaries residing in The Bronx and appointed for the County of New York. It permits all such notaries to continue in authority provided they shall file their certificates with the Clerk of the new County of The Bronx, prior to January 10, 1914, and permits them to continue to act for the full length of the term for which they have been appointed. This act also confirms the official acts subsequent to the passing of the act creating Bronx County, which eliminates certain questions raised by some of the title companies as to the sufficiency of acknowledgments taken before notaries residing in The Bronx.

BRONX ECONOMICAL.

While Population Has Increased 11 Per Cent., Appropriations Decreased 23 Per Cent.

The present administration of the Borough of The Bronx took office January 1, 1910. In 1903 the budget appropriation for current expenses for the Borough of the Bronx was $1,026,000; in 1908, $1,512,975, an increase of 47.46 per cent., and in 1913 it was $1,157,826.17, a decrease of 23.47 per cent. The appropriation for 1913 is less than for any year between 1906 and 1910 inclusive. Population increased in the Borough between 1903 and 1908 at an average rate of about 11 per cent. a year, and between 1908 and 1913 at an average rate of about 12 per cent. a year, or 60 per cent. in the five years between 1908 and 1913. It is to be noted, therefore, that while population increased 60 per cent. in the Borough from 1908 to 1913, expenditures decreased 23.47 per cent. In 1903 the cost of borough government per capita was $3.82; in 1908 it was $4.62; and in 1913 it is $1.98 ,a decrease of 93 per cent. In 1903 the cost of borough government compared with the assessed valuation was .427 per cent.; in 1908 it was .343 per cent.; and in 1913 it is .181 per cent.

Taking $1,512,975, the budget appropriation of the year 1908 as a standard, we find the budgets of the four years beginning with January 1, 1910, as follows: 1910, $1,225,466; a saving of $287,509; 1911, $1,115,468; a saving of $397,507; 1912, $1,128.332; a saving of $384,643; 1913, $1,157,826; a saving of $355,149.

The saving in the four years amounts to $1,424,810.

Out of the foregoing appropriations, the following sums were unexpended and were returned to the City treasury: From appropriations, 1910, $113,481; 1911, $62.043; 1912, $34.403.

The total savings were $1,634,739.10.

Was One of the Founders of the American Real Estate Company.

Edwin K. Martin, for many years President of the American Real Estate Company and one of the most prominent figures in the New York real estate field, died at his home in Park Hill, Yonkers, on Sunday morning, May 4, after a protracted illness.

Mr. Martin had been actively identified with New York real estate interests for more than twenty-five years and was one of the organizers and directors of the original and oldest corporation now doing business in this field in the city, the American Real Estate Company, in 1888. He not only took an important part in the building of this large corporation but also figured as an individual operator both in this city and in Yonkers.

One of Mr. Martin's greatest and best known operations was the development of the Park Hill district of Yonkers, which he transformed from a hilly, rocky forest into one of the most beautiful suburban developments in the world. He laid the property out along original lines, following the topography of the land and preserving its natural beauties in every way possible. He was a great lover of nature and this attractive development will stand permanently as a monument, not only to his imagination and love of the beautiful but to his practical business ability as well.

As President of the American Real Estate Company, Mr. Martin was one of the first to realize the possibilities which would be offered in upper Manhattan and The Bronx in the development of the subway system, and under his direction this company bought extensively of the old estates lying along the projected transit lines. These in the past few years have been transformed into city property and are today thickly populated.

Before rounding out his life with a successful business career in this city, Mr. Martin had led a most interesting and useful existence. He was born in Millersville, Lancaster county, Pa., sixty-nine years ago. He was a student at Phillips Andover Academy when the Civil War broke out. He at once returned home and enlisting in the 79th Pennsylvanian Volunteers, though but sixteen years of age, left almost immediately for the front. He served throughout the war and took a useful part in many of its most active campaigns, fighting under General Thomas at Chickamauga. At the dedication of his regimental monument on that memorable field a few years ago Mr. Martin delivered the dedicatory address. For some time he was on General Sherman's staff and while there he organized the system of distributing mail on trains which was subsequently adopted by the United States Government and is in effect that which is now in use.

At the close of the war Mr. Martin returned to Phillips Andover, took up his studies where he had left off and completed his course. He attended Princeton University for a year, going then to Amherst, where he graduated three years later. After graduation he attended Columbia Law School and practised for fifteen years in Lancaster, Pa., taking a prominent part in the politics of his state.

Mr. Martin became interested in the New York real estate field through a former college classmate and he moved to this city 25 years ago, when he and his associates organized the American Real Estate Company. He later became president of this corporation and held that position for fourteen years, retiring from active business five years ago. He remained as president of two smaller real estate companies, the Penn Realty Company and the Amherst Realty Company.

Mr. Martin was very active in the affairs of the City of Yonkers and did a great deal to assist in the development of that flourishing suburb. He was not only interested in public affairs but was a man of broad interests and sympathies along many lines. He was a great lover of the out-of-doors and was prominent in the organization of the Park Hill Country Club and the Dunwoodie Country Club, at different periods occupying the presidency of both these organizations. He was also a member of the Campfire Club and devoted to out-of-door sports of every kind. He was a great reader, with a particular literary appreciation for historical and philosophical subjects, and was the author of the recognized monograph on the German Quaker sects in America, dealing particularly with the Mennonites. He was one of the founders of the Pennsylvanian German Society of New York and a member of the Pennsylvania Society, Alpha Delta Phi, the Hardware Club, the Yonkers Chamber of Commerce and the North Side Board of Trade, and a former President of the Yonkers Board of Trade.

THE LATE EDWIN K. MARTIN.

Mr. Martin was also a trustee of St. John's Riverside Hospital and a member of the Park Hill Reformed Church in Yonkers. He is survived by his wife, who was Miss Caroline A. Varick of Jersey City, and two daughters, Mrs. Gilbert H. Wildman of Yonkers and Mrs. Royal Victor of New York.

New York Title Insurance Co. Moves.

The officers and directors of the New York Title Insurance Company have sent out invitations to the real estate interests of the city to inspect the company's new offices on the ground floor of the Title Insurance building, 135 Broadway, into which they will move to-day.

The inconvenience experienced by those having business with this company in having to ascend to the second floor prompted the officials to move its administrative offices to the ground floor, which has been equipped with every device for facilitating the handling of a constantly increasing volume of business and where its clients may quickly and easily find the departments they seek. An important feature of the new offices is the employment of an indirect lighting system to afford a uniform degree of illumination regardless of whether the day is clear or cloudy.

CITY REAL ESTATE.

Thirteen Hundred Million Dollars' Worth Exempt From Taxation.

Comptroller Prendergast has had compiled from the list of tax-exempt properties a schedule of all pieces of real property therein belonging to the city. The schedule contains as far as possible names of the grantors of the premises, the date of acquisition, the cost of site, and the cost of structure, etc.

Much difficulty was experienced in gathering dependable information relative to waterfront properties. Many of these properties, originally owned by the city, had been alienated by it under the quit-rent system, and were later re-acquired by it. Owing to the many changes in the boundaries of these properties and in the water line itself because of the great improvements made, it has been exceedingly difficult to identify the various parcels under the present lot and block description. It is believed, however, that in time all the necessary information can be obtained.

While the cost of these properties undoubtedly aggregates a very large sum, no attempt has been made to tabulate the costs, for the reason that the figures would have no real significance. Many of the properties were acquired under the charters of 1686 and 1730, and others again for a merely nominal consideration, while the cost of construction of many of the older buildings is not now obtainable. For accounting purposes present values are used, based upon the assessed valuations officially determined by the Commissioners of Taxes and Assessments.

For the current year they are as follows:

Department of Education.....	$116,134,350.00
Department of Parks.....	669,503,355.00

Washington Heights Houses Well Occupied.

Butler, White & Hill, real estate, of 4231 Broadway, at 180th street, report that the percentage of occupancy in the Fort Washington section is good. The production of new houses was small last year and few have now more than one or two apartments vacant. Tenants seem to be satisfied with their quarters, and agents do not look for much changing about next fall. Comparatively little moving was done on the Heights last week.

For many years the section around the subway station at 181st street was the most active in the entire borough. Reginald Pelham Bolton once counted five hundred buildings either in course of erection or planned—all at one time—in that center. Last year was the most inactive for builders in a decade, but meanwhile tenants have been steadily moving in, and the percentage of occupancy for apartments is higher than ever before.

—In none of the boroughs have the plans filed so far this year equaled the record made last year. But last year was a big one in Manhattan, and a recession in heavy construction is quite in order at this date, and besides it strengthens the technical position of the market.

BUILDING MANAGEMENT

Conducted by Raymond P. Roberts, Building Manager for the American Real Estate Company.

BUILT-IN FURNITURE.

Tenants in High-class Houses Learning to Expect It.

Built-in furniture is a subject of growing interest among architects and builders in some other cities, where the fashion has been carried to considerable length, not only in designing private residences but more particularly in designing modern apartment houses of an artistic quality. The fact is being forced on builders in these days of high rentals that tenants who pay the first-class rates are entitled to more than is provided in most houses. An elevator and an imposing entrance hall are no longer accepted as full equivalent for the higher rates.

By built-in furniture is meant something more than a narrow little bookcase. Building managers who oversee the planning of apartment houses and apartment hotels for the estates in their charge are thinking a great deal about built-in furniture, and tenants are learning to look for it. Economic conditions in New York City are changing. Young women have entered business life in large numbers; they have by so doing narrowed the opportunities of young men here, and have reduced the average wages paid to young men in clerical occupations.

New Economic Conditions.

The consequence is that in order to make a home financially possible for many a young married couple in the city, the young wife continues to be a breadwinner as well as the husband. Their combined salaries enable them to live in better apartments than if they had to depend on the husband's wages alone. Indeed, if it were not for the willingness of the young women to continue at work, matrimony would not be possible in a great many instances.

Under these circumstances it is necessary and desirable to reduce housekeeping to the minimum amount. Luncheon is always, on week days, partaken of downtown, and the principal meal of the day comes in the evening at a neighboring restaurant. A charwoman comes in to clean the apartment—on stated days, so there is little or no household drudgery for the young wife. This is the type of family that is creating the demand for small suites and has caused the owners of many houses planned with large flats to make them over into smaller suites.

Both single men and women are demanding better accommodations than they have had in the past, and for but little more outlay—and they're going to be supplied, if not in one part of the city, then in another. They will get, in other words, hotel comforts for boarding-house prices. It will be found also that built-in furniture will help to keep apartment houses filled with good tenants when plain houses are left with many vacancies.

What to Do and How.

Bookcases of just the right kind will be found of great utility, and when these are installed in a house at the time it is built the cost will be consideraby less than the cost of portable bookcases. Sideboards and china closets make the dining-room truly charming, no matter how simple and inexpensive they may be, providing a little thought is expended on their arrangement.

Comfortable Seats.

In regard to built-in seats, a writer in the Pictorial Review recently said that often such a seat can be built in a corner where the wall forms one end, thus leaving only the other end to be provided. Seats should be boxed in to provide chests for storage, and covers should be provided which can be raised to give access to the storage space. Have the front board under a seat recessed so that in sitting down you will not kick the heels against the front. A comfortable sloping back should be provided and all dimensions should be carefully worked out—broad, low seats usually being the most comfortable. Seats 24 inches wide and 12 inches high will be found very satisfactory when cushions three inches thick are added, making the total height 15 inches. Drawers are frequently built in under a seat.

Built-in Sideboards.

With a little skill it will be found possible to design and build a sideboard in the dining-room which will be much cheaper than a ready-made sideboard. This will have the added advantage of "fitting the house." The easiest way is to provide an alcove for the sideboard by taking a little jog off the kitchen and building a simple chest of drawers below with cupboards for china above. Ornate sideboards of queer design will of course find no place in homes of good taste; but a simple design will be found very attractive as well as convenient, and such a piece of furniture undoubtedly pays the builder for his outlay.

China closets can be built in at about half the cost of ready-made china closets. In some houses two china closets are provided, being built in two corners with a window between. This is a very good arrangement. If the dining-room is small no sideboard is needed other than a simple chest of drawers between the closets. The price of simple cabinet work of this sort is surprisingly low when it is included in the contract for the house.

CHARLES E. HORTON.
President Building Managers' Association, which will meet at Cincinnati June 10 to 14.

Wardrobe Door Mirrors.

In the room of the husband and wife it is a good idea to provide two built-in wardrobes, so that each person may have ample storage place for his or her clothes. An excellent arrangement is to have a chest of drawers built into the space between the two wardrobes with shelves above. To carry out the scheme to the point of greatest comfort have full length mirrors applied to the panels of the two wardrobe doors. These mirrors take the place of an expensive cheval mirror and they will prove most convenient, as the woman can view both the front and back of her gown at the same time by swinging the doors to catch the reflection.

ELECTRIC SERVICE.

Owners and Managers Can Save Costs by Providing for It at the Right Time.

Illumination engineering has devised so many improvements in electric lighting facilities in recent years that a building of any character, but especially a residence or apartment house, that was planned more than five years ago, is deficient in lighting facilities, unless it has been done over and brought up to date. With the introduction of the tungsten high-efficiency lighting units an immediate change was found necessary in the scheme of locating and supporting lamps, and to-day we find in properly designed installations more outlets of a minimum candlepower and always high enough to prevent a direct glare from the lamp into the eyes.

Portable Lamps.

In addition to permanent fixture outlets for lighting, it has become necessary, because of the socket being close to the ceiling, to provide plug outlets for portable lamps.

Portable table, piano and stand lamps are on sale, not only in the lighting-fixture stores, but in hardware stores and department stores, and you can hardly find a home using electricity that has not at least one, and usually several, portable lamps. Therefore, the architect and owner should provide for the convenient connection of such portable lamps.

"Strange as it may seem," said an illuminating engineer recently, "the architect specifies Underwriters' inspection and a certificate for the original installation, and then, by not providing for convenient connection of portable light, heat and power devices, endangers the owner's property when temporary and unsightly connections are used for such devices. It is acknowledged to be a fact that there is danger in the temporary wiring, when used for permanent connections."

Plug Outlets.

This engineer recommended the following installations for plug outlets:

Entrance Hall—At a convenient point,

a stand or table lamp for general illumination.

Parlor—Piano lamp, also table lamp.

Living-room—Table lamp in center of room, desk lamp for writing desk and lamp for lighting book-case.

Dining-room—Stand or table lamp for general illumination.

Bedrooms—Table or bed-clamp lamps.

These few plug receptacles will cost very little when installed during the construction of a house, and will make a better job with a minimum length of attachment cord to the portable lamp.

The engineer advises that a separate circuit be installed for the ceiling lamps and a separate circuit for the brackets, toilet or plug outlets. With the advent of innumerable heating and cooking devices, the blowing of a circuit fuse has become a regular thing, not from any fault of the lighting system, but entirely on account of overloading the fuse by adding a device that was not intended to be connected to the circuit in addition to the lamps, and the owner will appreciate the benefit of a second circuit in the room when the fuse blows out on the first one.

QUESTIONS and ANSWERS

Architects' Fees.

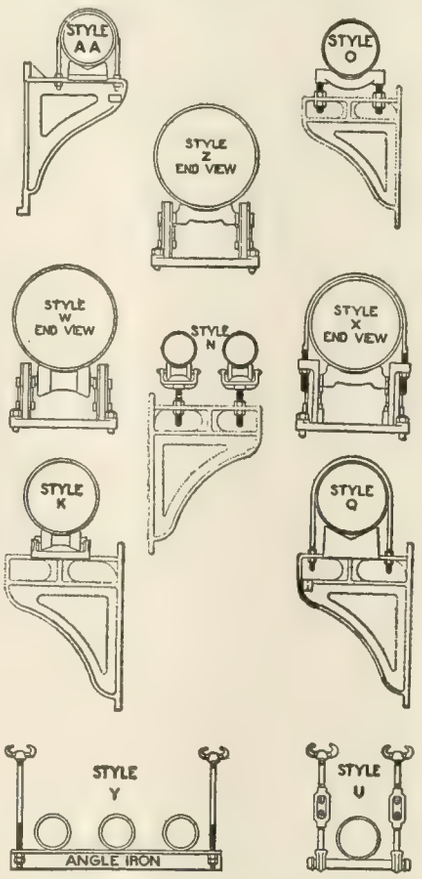
Can you advise me regarding the customary fees of architects?

Answer.—The architect's fee is based upon the total cost of the work and the minimum fee is 6 per cent. The total cost comprehends all the material and labor necessary to make the structure complete, plus the contractor's profits and all articles purchased under his direction. When the architect is not retained to supervise the work consultation fees and professional advice are to be charged according to the services rendered. The services of specialists are separate from the architect's commission, the entire fee is payable in the following proportions: Preliminary studies, 1; drawings, 2; specifications, 1; permits, 1; equalling 3 per cent. of the total cost, in addition to detail drawings, 2; supervision, 3; making a total of ten apportionments, equal to 6 per cent. of the total cost of construction. This fee is for ordinary professional work and does not include specialized services. Exceptions are made as follows: Dwellings, costing less than $5,000, the commission is 10 per cent.; lofts not requiring special planning for machinery, 5 per cent.; alterations to dwelling, 12 per cent.; alterations to business buildings, 10 per cent.

Wind Pressure.

Can you tell me how wind pressure is figured on sides of buildings?

Answer.—Architects figure that a fresh breeze blowing 10 miles an hour exerts a wind pressure of 0.49 pounds per square foot; a stiff breeze at 20 miles an hour, 1.97 pounds; a strong wind blowing at 30 miles an hour, 4.43 pounds; a high wind blowing 40 miles an hour, 7.87 pounds; a storm blowing 50 miles an hour, 12.304 pounds; a violent storm blowing 60 miles an hour, 17.733 pounds; a hurricane blowing 70 miles, 24.153 pounds, and a violent hurricane blowing 100 miles an hour, 49.200 pounds.



The wind is considered as blowing in a horizontal direction, but the resulting pressure upon the roof is always considered as being at right angles to the slope and, as ascertained by the United States Signal Service, is as follows: 10 miles, .4; 20 miles, 1.6; 30 miles, 3.6; 40 miles, 6.4; 50 miles, 10.0; 60 miles, 14.4: 80 miles, 25.6; and 100 miles, 40.0.

USEFUL APPLIANCES

Novelties, New Applications of Familiar Devices and the Trend of Invention, Designed to Aid the Architect, Builder and Building Manager, Described Without Regard to Advertising Consideration.

New Pipe Hangers.

The Crane Company, 30 Church street, is introducing some specialties in pipe carriers for use in all types of buildings. Some of the new designs are shown herewith. The importance of using proper pipe hangers for different kinds of pipe and under different conditions should never be lost sight of by architects. For that reason the accompanying cuts will show what progress has been made in that line.

Fresh Air on Tap.

The American Blower Co., 141 Broadway, is introducing a mechanical device which provides abundant fresh air for stores and offices, as well as in other places where great heat or a large amount of carbon-dioxide gas is generated. It can be set into the top sash of a window, transom, or end of a skylight, providing positive ventilation at all seasons of the year. The chief feature of this device is that it can be installed quickly, and its operating cost is remarkably low, this feature having been worked out carefully to the minutest detail by the company's engineering department. Another novel feature about this device is that the flow of air can be directed at any angle from floor to ceiling without stopping the motor, and the air can be forced in or reversed, and the bad air forced out by merely pulling a chain. It should commend itself very favorably to those having trouble with the ventilating problem.

A New Gauged Shingle Hatchet.

Carpenters and others having to do with shingle work or lathing will be interested in a hatchet of distinctive merit that L. A. Sayre & Son, of 8 Oliver street, Newark, N. J., are putting on the market. It is equipped with a No. 144 head with 169 points. On its shank a gauge is set in such a way that it can not slip and is readily changed. The hatchet is also made with a No. 44 overhead with 81 points milled surface, and they can be purchased with milling, ranging from 64 to 225 points.

Atomizing Engine Fuel.

The Remington Oil Engine Co., of 120 Broad street, has something new in the form of a fuel atomizer, as a separate part of its well known engine, which does away with hitches in fuel feed. This consists of a patented nozzle thoroughly water jacketed to prevent the formation of carbon within the nozzle while the fuel is being atomized into the cylinder. This construction allows the water jacket spaces and fuel spaces to be open for inspection. Any person having use for an oil engine will do well to consider this feature in connection with power engine, especially in cases where they are used for pumping seepage in basements of buildings, or in raising water in auxiliary systems to upper floors. It is especially important where oil engines are used to drive dynamos in isolated plants.

Prevents Theft of Lamps.

Building managers seem to have been picked out as the special victim of the petty larcenists all over the country, simply because until recently inventors have been lax in perfecting a locking device for incandescent lamps. Pass & Seymour (Inc.), of 178 Fulton street, have a socket on the market that positively locks lamps so that they cannot be stolen. The cost of these sockets is said to be very low, but the protection is positive, because the lamp cannot be taken from the socket by a dishonest person without destroying the globe.

A Gasoline Hoist.

It is frequently impossible for a contractor to make use of a steam hoist unless he can carry to the work a cumbersome boiler or use electrice equipment. In such cases, where more power is required than can be easily obtained by manual labor, the gasoline hoist is a real need.

The gasoline hoist developed and now being put on the market by the American Engineering Co., Philadelphia, has a patent friction drum arrangement, control levers all located on one side of the machine within easy reach of the operator, and spur gears protected by guards. In addition, the machine carries a winch head on the outside end of the drum shaft, so that a separate rope can be handled without using the drum.

Removing Tight Screws.

To remove a stubborn screw from a piece of wood, heat any sound piece of iron red hot and hold it against the screw head for a little while. Wait for the screw to cool down, when it will be found that it can be removed quite easily with the same screw-driver that just previously would not budge it.

According to report, the contracts in the sale of the Carnegie plat at Fifth avenue and 91st street will be signed "in a few days." Hope no dispute over reform spelling will upset the deal.

Owing to rapid advance of industry, emigration from the German Empire has decreased from 220,902 in 1881 to 18,545 in 1912. Ninety-three per cent. of the emigrants in the former year came to the United States, while only 70 per cent. of those of last year were bound for America.

Comptroller Prendergast submitted a schedule to the Sinking Fund Commission this week, showing that the 5,500 parcels of property owned by the city are worth $1,300,000,000. The funded indebtedness of the city is $820,000,000, so that it has an equity of $480,000,000. The value of the equipment of personal property is more than $40,000,000. It is considered likely that within a few years the value of the parks alone will offset the entire present funded debt.

The award to Borough President McAneny of the medal of La Societe des Architectes Diplomes par le Gouvernement, the principal architectural society of France, is a very unusual distinction for a public official in America. The medal will be presented through the American group of the society at a dinner at the University Club on May 27. It comes to the Borough President because of his "work in connection with the erection of the civic centre, the limitation of the height of buildings" and his "efforts in upholding on every occasion the high standard of architecture" in this country.

Reduce Building Costs.

There is no single man in New York whose opinions in respect to the improvement of the Building Code are worth such careful attention as are those of Mr. Ernest Flagg. His recommendations are always disinterested and they are always based upon a thorough understanding not merely of local conditions, but of the practice of large European cities. There can be little doubt that the method of regulating the height of buildings, which Mr. Flagg proposed some years ago combines more advantages with fewer disadvantages than any other method of meeting the problem.

There is much to be said also in favor of his general opinion that unnecessary burdens are imposed upon property owners and builders by the extremely rigid requirements which are exacted in the name of fireproof construction. The object should be not to make buildings entirely fire-proof at any cost but to make them sufficiently fire-proof at a cost which would not be excessive and which could be applied alike to all city buildings.

There is also much to be said on behalf of his protest against the excessive specification of detail, which has always characterized New York building regulations. This minute specification assumes that there is only one right way of building properly, whereas there are often many ways of attaining a result. Furthermore, even if one way is better than other ways at the time the code is adopted, improvements in building methods will usually provide before long a better substitute. Building regulations should, consequently, be drawn, as they are in Europe, in general terms, leaving to the administration of the law the discretionary authority to decide whether as a matter of fact any particular method conforms to the standard established by the law.

Mr. Flagg is right in claiming on behalf of such a system the great virtue of elasticity. At present a code, no matter how fairly and skillfully drawn soon loses its availability because of the rapid improvement in building methods. A strong prejudice has always existed in this country against conferring much discretionary authority on administrative officials, because of the danger that the power might be exercised in a spirit of favoritism. But no municipal Building Superintendent could exercise a grosser favoritism than has resulted in the past from the automatic operation of the code merely because of its rigidity, and a builder or a building material manufacturer could be prohibited against discrimination by an appeal to the Board of Examiners. Every attempt to make a law independent of its own proper administration must fail in the long run.

The Wasting of Public Funds.

The Record and Guide desires particularly to call the attention of its readers to the series of articles upon the cost of government in New York City which is now in course of publication from the pen of Mr. Henry Bruere. There is no one in the city who is better qualified to analyze the causes of the increase in the cost of the New York municipal government than is Mr. Bruere. He has for years been a Director of the Bureau of Municipal Research and has followed the financial administration operations of the city in every detail with patience and with care. He is in addition a recognized expert on the general problems of city government and has made valuable contributions to the practical solution of those problems. The work of his bureau has attracted much attention throughout the country and has resulted in the organization of similar bureaus in other cities. Any contribution which he made to the discussion will consequently be authoritative and will deserve careful consideration.

Property owners should scrutinize carefully the various tables, published by Mr. Bruere in which the expenditures of the city are analyzed and an attempt made to trace the responsibility for the largest increases which have taken place during the past ten years. The analysis of such tables does not make very exciting reading but no taxpayer who wishes to do his small part towards remedying the evils and abuses of the present systems can afford to neglect this work. It is essential to the effective protection of his own interests and to the proper performance of his duty as a citizen. It is all very well to talk about economy and efficiency in general, and such talk doubtless has some value, because economy and efficiency are general ideals as well as practical arts. But the important question is: How can substantial economies be effected?

A city administration which proposed to reduce the budget by a general cutting down of appropriations to four-fifths of their present amount would be saving money; but it would certainly be saving money at the expense of the public service. It would be putting the relatively efficient and the relatively inefficient branches of the service in the same class and treating them both in the same drastic manner. It would consequently be punishing and discouraging efficiency. Once admitting the existence of an effective desire for administrative economy this whole question becomes one of detail. To be sure these details must be left in the long run to experts who have the time, the equipment and the experience to make the exhaustive investigations which must precede any intelligent separation of the relatively efficient and the relatively inefficient branches of the government, but if the work of these experts is to be permanently valuable it must be understood and checked by the more intelligent part of the local public opinion. It is because tax-payers in the past have been indifferent to the details of their local government that they have been obliged to pay the enormous costs of extravagance, and the absolutely necessary foundation in public opinion for a really economical government must consist in an active and intelligent interest by property owners in the detail of the methods and results which are used or obtained by the different branches of the city government.

For this reason it is very much to be hoped that the new taxpayers' association which is now being organized with so much success, will appoint a Committee on Economy and Efficiency. Such a committee should not be constituted merely for the purpose of meeting a temporary emergency. It should be one of the important permanent committees of the association and its work should consist of investigating on behalf of the association the conduct of the various departments and the value of any proposal made in the direction of improved policies or methods. The committee could report to the association the result of its labors and the members of the association would thus have a research bureau of its own, upon whose recommendation it could depend. Of course the committee, in order that it might not duplicate work which was already being performed by other agencies would naturally cooperate with any existing instruments which were engaged in similar work, such as the Bureau of Municipal Research. Its essential task would be to awaken in property owners a lively and an intelligent interest in the prosaic and intricate details of the municipal administration and to keep them informed as to its needs and possibilities.

It is much to be hoped that if such a committee is established the work will be performed not chiefly by a paid secretary, but by members of the association. Nothing is more necessary in order to create a mutually helpful relation between the city government and public opinion than the familiarity with the details of the local administration by prominent and responsible citizens. The English system of bestowing municipal authority on a common council that works by means of committees, brings this about naturally, because the members of the council are frequently changed, and in the course of time a large number of local business men become familiar by experience with the details of the administration. But the New York system of concentrating power in a Mayor and a Board of Estimate does not provide any machinery for keeping property owners interested in the details of the city's business and well informed about it. The same result can be accomplished in New York only in case the Chamber of Commerce, the Merchants' Association and the new property owners' association do by unofficial means the work for which no official provision is made.

THE WEEK IN REAL ESTATE.

The real estate market was brightened in some measure by a few large deals involving valuable properties and a number of sales of old buildings, whose ownership has been unchanged for many years. The most notable feature of the week's trading was the $1,000,000 exchange of a Convent avenue apartment house for a large vacant Riverside Drive plot, which is to be improved with a 10-story apartment house. Another important transaction which furnished a strong tone to the mid-town loft section, was the sale of part of the old sanitarium holdings of the late Dr. William T. Bull, which passed into the hands of a well known firm of active operators in the loft district. Other prominent transactions were the additions to the Clark holdings on West 72d street which probably means the erection of a commercial structure; the re-sale of the Garden Restaurant property in exchange for an upper Harlem apartment house; the purchase of a row of old flats in the Columbus Circle district for improvement into an elevator apartment building, and the sale of the Andrew Carnegie plot at the northeast corner of Fifth avenue and 91st street. An interesting phase of the week in real estate was the sale of the old brick building at 33 Catherine street, which has been in the Rutgers and Crosby families for over 165 years. It was one of the last remaining parcels of a big farm of several acres in that region, before the War of the Revolution. Tenement property on Forsyth street which had been in the Valentine family for nearly a century, was also disposed of.

The Bronx and Brooklyn markets were fairly active, investors making strong demands for flat and apartment houses in both boroughs. The suburban districts contributed largely to the week's activities, many summer homes being bought or leased.

Trials of a Property Owner.

Editor of the RECORD AND GUIDE:

I was very much interested in reading in your issue of April 19th a statement of Mr. B. Aymar Sands, that no one was buying real estate any more and he didn't see why they should.

I agree with him. The trials, troubles and tribulations that real estate owners have to submit to are almost unbearable. I do not wonder that real estate is dull and depressed; it would be a miracle if it were not. I have one house, but never again will I touch another. Any broker who tries to sell me anything stands a good chance of being murdered. My experience may have been typical, or it may have been unusual, but it is enough for me.

Nine months ago, having some spare money and being out of business, I was induced by a broker to purchase a five-story double tenement, four families on each floor, two stores on ground floor, cold water, tubs, quarter meters, no hot water or ranges. The house was full when I bought it and has been fairly well filled ever since, with the stores usually rented. The property was owned by an estate, to whom I paid $21,000 for it. There is a mortgage of $14,000, which is due June first. I put in $7,000 cash.

Shortly after I purchased the house the Tenement House Department notified me to change certain braces on the fire-escapes and to paint the fire-escapes. This was done, but I was three months getting a dismissal of the violation. The other day I received an order to paint the fire-escapes again; I will not do it twice in one year.

About twice every month I get orders from the Tenement House Department. Almost all are for trivial things and do not amount to anything, but all take time to look after, and annoy one. For instance, the last order reads: "Replace broken pane of glass in third hall; clean rubbish from cellar." There was absolutely nothing in the cellar, except some chips left by tenants who chop their wood there. I have had orders from the Board of Health, and orders from the Building Department, because a tenant put up a small board partition in the store without a permit. This caused me to make several trips to the department. The man I should see was always out. Finally, in disgust, I took the partition down, and the tenant moved out. The result was I lost two months' rent before the store was rented again.

Inspectors from the Water Department notified me that seven faucets in the house were leaking, and if they were not fixed I would be fined. I took my plumber and found that the faucets were in perfect condition, but the tenants had not turned them off. About a week after the inspectors came around again and found three of the faucets still running, owing to carelessness on the part of the tenants. When I got my last tax bill, I found "arrears" on it. I investigated and found that I had been fined $2 each for three leaking faucets; this is an absolute injustice, but what can I do?

Inspectors from the State Factory Bureau compelled me to dispossess two tenants on the fourth floor and one on the fifth floor because they did private dressmaking, which it seems is illegal above the second floor.

My janitor was arrested and fined $2 because ashes and garbage were mixed in the cans. Last week I was served with a summons to appear in court for the same reason. I told the judge that separate receptacles were provided, and that the tenants brought down their own ashes and garbage, but that it was simply impossible for me or the janitor to stand there and see that they were put in proper cans. The policeman who served the summons then lied about it and said the cans did not have covers. The judge told me to do all that I could to see that the ashes and garbage were kept separate, and discharged me. I was summoned to be in court at nine o'clock and it was nearly one o'clock before I was called, practically a whole day lost.

Inspectors from the Water Department compelled me to put in a meter for stores only, although in one store there is no water, and in the other store only one faucet. This cost me $90 and was an entirely unnecessary expense. The water bill for the last six months for this meter amounted to $2.20.

I received a notice from the Fire Department to make four flues smokeproof. I found nothing the matter with the flues; it was entirely the fault of the tenants' ranges; but after considerable trouble I could not convince the department inspector of this fact, and, rather than have them commence an action against me, which they threatened to do, I had the flues lined with cast-iron pipe, lead caulked, which cost me $187—entirely unnecessary. About a week ago I was served with another order to make the same flues smokeproof, work that was done last October.

Another annoyance: I have had occasion to dispossess tenants. In every case the tenant has got from three days' to a week's grace, and in some cases, where the tenant did not appear and the marshal looked up the warrant, he found that the papers were marked as being postponed for a week or ten days. Tenants have bragged that they pay some court officer to get this done.

My mortgage is due June 1st, and when I went to the holder of it to see if he could extend it for three years he referred me to his attorney. The attorney said that he would extend it for $210. I told him I would not pay him a cent, but would pay off the mortgage. He said that would suit him as well, as he could get a commission for reloaning the money.

My experience is that a property owner has absolutely no redress against the raft of inspectors that make his life a burden. I could tell you a whole lot more.

My house was assessed at $22,000, but this year the valuation for tax purposes was jacked up to $23,500. The net return on my $7,000 for the past nine months has been a whole lot of trouble and just 3¼ per cent., and if I was not in a position to pay off the mortgage I would have to pay $210 of this to a lawyer to have it extended.

April and Four Months' Building.

Building operations continue to expand as the spring season advances, but the preliminary returns to Bradstreet's for April (109 cities reporting) fail to equal the enlargement over a year ago shown in the first three months of the year. Indeed, based upon the 109 cities' returns, a slight decrease from April a year ago is to be reported, though this decrease bids fair to be converted into a gain when the remaining cities' returns are received. It of course needs to be remembered that April, 1912, saw the greatest expenditure for building ever recorded in any month, and any gain, however slight, over this total must be regarded as indicative of exceptional activity in building, the more so, in fact, in view of the general complaint of scarcity of capital for new enterprises, which is voiced in so many lines at present. In reality, to judge from the sustained activity in building and the known higher rates charged on these loans than are paid in other enterprises, it would seem that it is not so much a scarcity of money as it is a question of rates. In other words, money can be had—at a price; but the price is higher, and money, like all other commodities, is worth more than it was some time ago.

The total expenditure for building in April at 109 cities reporting to Bradstreet's at this early date in the month was $79,667,407, as against $82,,366,731 in April a year ago and $65,942,553 in March, 1913. There is here indicated an increase of 20.8 per cent. over March, but a decrease of 3.2 per cent. from April last year. Despite the decrease in the total from April, 1912, however, it is worth noting that fifty-seven cities out of 109 show gains, while fifty-two show decreases. Furthermore, it is found that the falling off at New York in building, as in clearings, is accountable for the decrease, small as it is, in the country's aggregate. Thus, with New York excluded the country's building total is over 10 per cent. larger than in April a year ago.

Last of the Drexel Building.

Housewreckers began to take down the Drexel-Morgan Building at Wall and Broad streets on Monday. The plans for the building were filed in 1872. A. Gillman was the architect. Forty years of metropolitan progress have sufficed to render obsolete this once beautiful edifice. It was the second fireproof building of importance to be erected here, the Equitable being the first; and it was one of the last of the French type of business structures. Though for many years its walls have been darkly discolored, they were built of pure white marble, and contained seven stories, topped by a Mansard roof. In design and construction it was representative of the best form of utilitarian building of the era. It had a steam elevator, without which it would not have been built so high.

The first of the really high office buildings did not appear until the Western Union was built, in 1873, from plans of George B. Post. Smith & Rogers were the builders. Ten and a half stories high, with the three topmost ones in a Mansard roof, this was the tallest building of the time. Two elevators, one of them a water-balance, rendered its "great height" possible of utilization. Only two months later the Tribune Building, from plans by Richard M. Hunt, was started by Peter B. O'Brien, the general contractor. For many years this was the most conspicuous architectural work in the downtown section. Travelers coming by the sea and the rivers could see it miles away, just as in later years they observed the tower of the World Building over all the rest.

—The proceedings and papers of the Second National Conference on Housing, held in Philadelphia, December 4, 5 and 6, 1912, have been gathered together in a well-indexed book, entitled "Housing Problem in America." The importance of this volume from the standpoint of philanthropy is, of course, apparent, but the fact may not be so obvious that many of the technical papers are of great practical value to architects and builders, particularly in the matter of suburban houses. The book may be obtained from John Ihlder, field secretary of the National Housing Association, 105 East 22d street.

For Improving the Harlem River.

Congressman Joseph A. Goulden has introduced a bill in the House of Representatives, requesting an appropriation of $850,000 for the improvement of the Harlem river, with a view of straightening the channel at the curve near the Johnson iron works. The money is to be expended under the direction of the Secretary of War, but the title to the property will be acquired by the State of New York through action by the Legislature. The improvement of the Harlem river is very necessary in connection with Barge Canal traffic and the project for an Intercoastal canal system from Boston to Florida.

—Riverside Drive, with all its attractions as a real estate proposition, has had some vicissitudes. The burning of soft coal and the storing of cattle on the tracks of the New York Central, along the residential section of Riverside Drive, must cease, according to a decision of Justice Page.

BUILDING MATERIALS AND SUPPLIES

New Standards of Steel Specifications will Unify Fabricating—Building Material Exchange Optimistic—Prices Firmly Held.

Suburban Supply Dealers Seasonably Active—
Prospective Code Revision Checks Building.

BUILDING materials are fairly active in hand-to-mouth buying, but forward purchases are restricted. During the week spot business was rather brisk between retailers and wholesalers, but the latter are moving gingerly as far as engaging supplies from the mills is concerned. The reasons for this attitude may be said to be two-fold; the weight of tariff talk and the apparent easing off of Eastern building operations. It seems to be almost impossible to gauge the temper of the building market by either the current renting season or the condition of the building-loan market, the two basic factors upon which building operations are based.

Bradstreet's reports labor well employed, securities holding firm, money quiet, loans large and bank clearings heavy, while Dodge Reports show a heavy building movement almost everywhere throughout the country save in the East, where there is only a slight tendency to recover from the slump of the first quarter. The Building Department authorities here attribute most of the lassitude to a desire upon the part of the builders and investors to first ascertain the tone of the proposed new building code before going ahead with plans which they have almost completed and in many cases already have had the approval of the Bureau of Buildings. Speculative builders are hoping that certain proposed changes in the code will cut down the cost of construction, while others expect that the new code will increase construction costs. If the latter result obtains the building department expects a big rush of building construction toward the latter part of the year resulting from the general desire builders will have to get their plans filed and approved before the new code becomes operative.

The new specifications for structural steel work just issued by the American Bridge Company covering the design, details of construction and workmanship of steel structures for buildings only, printed in another column of this page, not only makes for conformity with its own practice and high class shop facilities, but goes a long way toward unifying steel frame construction work throughout the entire metropolitan district. They clear up many features of construction not heretofore clearly defined in relation to construction work of this class.

The temperament of the Building Material Exchange this week was distinctly optimistic. The movement of Portland cement was good and the call for common brick was steadier than that of the last three weeks. Lumber continues to stiffen in certain lines and structural steel holds firm although pig iron interests report some backwardness in last quarter purchases. Lime and plaster are easy, but there is no sign of lowering of prices anywhere excepting for some street reports to the effect that brick was shaded five cents a thousand in certain quarters during the last ten days to temporarily ease the barges now lying about the city in large quantities awaiting a more active buying market. This shading was not general, however.

THE BRICK SITUATION.

Buying a Little More Aggressive.—Outlook Good.

COMMON brick is showing a little more strength. Arrivals are still curtailed, but the supply in the market is sufficiently large to take care of demand. Practically all the yards are making brick now. Prices held firm although there was a report of a slight shading of less than a shilling a thousand. This, however, was not general.

Official transactions for North River common brick during the last week with records covering the corresponding week last year, follow:

LUMBER MARKET FIRM.

No Sign of Retrenchment As Far As the Wholesale Market is Concerned.

THE wholesale lumber situation conforms to other departments of building material in that prices are not only holding firm, but there is a fair call for material. The suburban dealers are not especially active, but the call for heavy timber in this city is abnormally large. The May report of the lumber market as issued by the New York Lumber Association, shows a healthy condition and there is little indication that tariff talk is having a depressing effect upon business.

Hemlock is strong on a $24.50 base for Pennsylvania and West Virginia and Southern stock, and very little stock is being sold at less than this base. As a matter of fact one West Virginia concern recently issued a $25 base list.

Yellow pine is in good demand. Mill capacity is well employed and inquiry is plentiful. As a result of the season's activity prices show some readjustment on both long and short leaf.

Cypress is firm at the prices quoted. The demand is very firm and stock for the most part is held in strong hands.

Eastern spruce is very strong and the local market is absorbing all arrivals at firm prices. Lath has jumped to $5 as previously reported. West Virginia spruce is in good demand and prices show no change from a month ago. Short spruce is also strong at list. All 1¼x8, 2x2½ and 1x1½ and 2-in. show an advance of about $1 from prices as previously quoted. List prices for short spruce can be reduced $1 for boat delivery, on July shipment.

There is a good demand for North Carolina pine, particularly low-grade stocks. Mills have ample sawing in hand and ahead, and quite a few items are substantially oversold.

Oak, maple and yellow pine flooring are very firm. Mahogany is in very large demand and supplies are shorter than they have been for years past, prices ranging commensurately strong.

STRUCTURAL STEEL STEADY.

New Specifications of the American Bridge Co. Clarifies Existing Requirements.

STRUCTURAL steel interests, like many others, report some hesitancy in buying, but there is a volume of business going on that justifies optimism.

The Record and Guide presents this week the new specifications for structural steel work as revised for the design, details of construction and workmanship of steel structures, other than bridges, by the American Bridge Company. The revision was made to make uniform certain features in steel fabrication, shop work and assembling which heretofore have not been very clear. Most of the requirements agree with those of other leading specifications, but there are several special clauses designed to cover features not generally clearly defined, which are described as follows:

For structures carrying traveling machinery, such as cranes, conveyors, etc., 25 per cent. shall be added to the stresses resultant from such live loads, to provide for the effect of impact and vibration.

Wind pressure shall be assumed acting horizontally in any direction, as follows: (1) For finished structures, a pressure of 20 lbs. per square foot on the sides and ends of buildings and on the vertical projection of roof surfaces, or (2) for structures in process of construction, a pressure of 30 lbs. per square foot on vertical surfaces and the vertical projection of inclined surfaces of all exposed metal or other framework.

The axial compression of gross sections of columns for ratio of l/r to 120 shall be (10,000—100 l/r) with a maximum of 13,000, where l is the effective length of members in inches and r is the corresponding radius of gyration of section in inches. For ratios of l/r up to 120 and for greater ratios up to 200 use the amount given in the following table.

SAFE COLUMN LOADS.

Ratio.	Amount.	Ratio.	Amount.
90	10,000	160	5,000
100	9,000	170	4,500

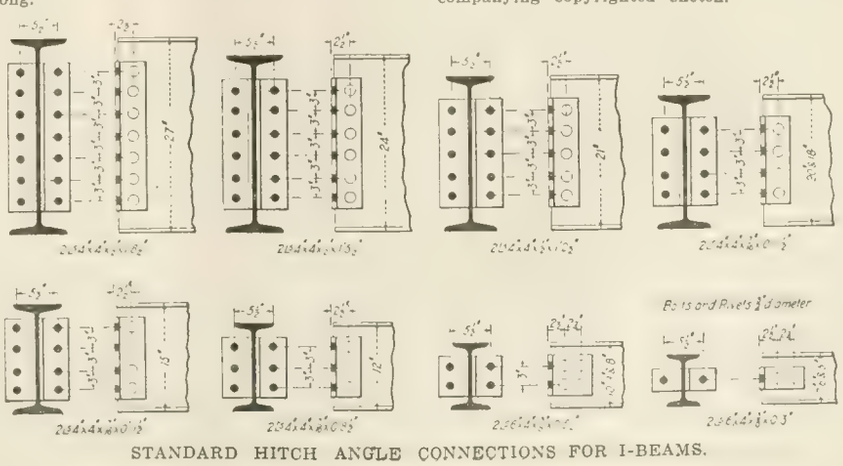
For intermediate ratios use proportional amounts.

For bracing and combined stresses due to wind and other loading, the permissible working stresses may be increased 25 per cent., provided the section thus formed is not less than required by dead and live loads alone.

In proportioning columns provision must be made for eccentric loading. Beams and girders shall be proportioned by their moments of inertia thus making gross areas of top and bottom flanges equal.



The lateral unsupported lengths of beams and girders shall not exceed forty times the width of the compression flange. When the unsupported length, l, exceeds ten times the width, b, of the compression flange, the stress per square inch in the compression flange shall not exceed (19,000 — 300 l/b).

The latticing of compression members shall be proportioned to resist a shearing stress equal to 2 per cent. of the direct stress. The minimum thickness of lattice bars shall be for single lattice, one fortieth; for double lattice, one-sixtieth of the distance between the end rivets. The minimum width shall vary between 1¾ and 2½-in. for different-size channels and rivets.

The specifications contain several very convenient tables, one of them being a comparison of values of compression loads for columns with l/r varying by 5-it. increments up to 200, as computed by the American Bridge Company, the American Railroad Engineers' Association, the Gordon formula and the formulae of the New York, Philadelphia and Boston building departments, thus affording quick comparisons of different values. A corresponding diagram is also given, with curves showing different values allowed by the formulae for stresses varying from 1,000 to 18,000 lbs. per square inch.

Other tables give the uniform allowable load on I-beams of all depths up to 50-ft. spans. Sketches are also given of revised standard hitch-angle connections. These are proportioned in accordance with test results for bearing and shear, disregarding moment; also for beams, with a table of their value. They show a single row only of field rivets in each hitch angle. For 12-in. beams and larger the hitch angles are 4x4-in. and for smaller beams they are 6x4-in. Rivets through a web inclosed between connection angles are rated as more efficient on account of friction and grip and are allowed a unit stress of 30,000 lbs.

THE WEEK'S REAL ESTATE NEWS

Brokerage Sales, Auctions, Foreclosure Suits, Building Loans, etc., Together With Brief Personal Items.

Nearly All Sections of the City Contributed to the Week's Business.

The news column this week shows trading in many sections of the city, sales being widely scattered. Upper West Side apartments maintained chief interest by virtue of several large transactions. The mid-town loft section was enlivened by the acquisition of a site to be used for a large commercial structure. Other big sales were effected, notably the purchase of the Carnegie plot on the north corner of Fifth avenue and 91st street. The Brooklyn market was active. In The Bronx, the market continues to be dull. An important feature of the week's business was the great number of leasing of business property in town and residential property in the suburban districts.

The total number of sales in Manhattan this week was 25.

The number of sales south of 59th street was 10 against 13 last week and 19 a year ago.

The sales north of 59th street aggregated 15 compared with 26 last week and 23 a year ago.

From The Bronx, 14 sales at private contract were reported, against 14 last week and 16 a year ago.

The amount involved in the Manhattan and Bronx auction sales this week was $968,690, compared with $583,687 last week, making a total since January 1 of $21,534,433. The figure for the corresponding week last year was $1,512,-174, making the total since January 1, 1912, $19,056,065.

New Subway Station.

A mass meeting was held under auspices of the Vyse Estate property Owners' Association last Monday, at the Superior Theatre, 172d street and Southern Boulevard, for the purpose of advocating a subway station at this point on the Lenox avenue branch. The meeting was largely attended, and pictures were shown, illustrating the congestion caused by the great numbers of people using the stations north and south of the suggested site.

After the speakers favoring the proposed station had been heard, the chairman, J. J. Haggarty, extended an invitation to anyone present who was opposed to the station to express his views, as there were city officials present who would like to hear both sides. After a few minutes wait and no response, Alderman Herbst arose to say that he would introduce a resolution at the next meeting of the Board of Aldermen which he has done, and which resolution has been passed without comment.

The Real Estate Show.

Westchester County made the star exhibit at the real estate show this year. Twenty-five firms clubbed together and financed a plan for producing eight large panoramic paintings of the county, of exquisite workmanship and a topographical model of the entire county. The Canadian Pacific Railroad exhibited a series of panoramic paintings of real estate developments along its lines. Fewer exhibits came from Long Island than last year, but the McKnight company was well represented. Motion pictures of landscapes in the neighboring suburbs were very interesting features. It was noted that the counties on the west side of the lower Hudson river—Orange, Rockland and Ulster—figured prominently in the show for the first time. When the new Interstate park and the west shore is made accessible there is likely to be more activity in that quarter than

MORRIS PARK AUCTION.

Some Expect It Will Be a Bargain Sale.—Clubhouse Will Be Used.

If any of those who are interested in improving the breed of horses happen to be in the neighborhood of Morris Park on May 31, they will see a good many things that will cause them to rub their eyes in wonder.

They will probably see more people in the old clubhouse than were ever there at one time in the palmy days of racing, but they may have to search hard to find familiar faces. In everybody's hand will be a small pamphlet, much as there used to be in the old racing days, but it will not be a program of the races, but a book map of the 3,019 lots into which the famous old property has been subdivided. In the crowd will be many persons ready to figure the value of a 25x100 lot, but very few who have the slightest interest in how fast a horse can get over that same bit of ground.

Not the least interesting feature of the coming auction sale of Morris Park is that J. Clarence Davies and Joseph P. Day have decided to hold the sale in the clubhouse which was for years the favorite meeting place of turf magnates and society notables. Here the Whitneys and the Keenes, the Morrises and the Dwyers used to gather on race days and discuss the relative merits of their strings of horses, and from here, also, to the nearby betting ring went many a commission large enough to buy several lots at the approaching auction sale.

Racing began at Morris Park in 1889 and continued until 1904. During that time it was recognized as the favorite and foremost center of the sport in the country. It also enjoyed prominence in a social way to a greater extent than any other race course around New York, with the result that it was not only well patronized by society folk during the racing season, but its clubhouse was the scene of many brilliant entertainments at other times. The clubhouse represented an investment of $500,000 and is practically the only thing about the old track that looks just as it did when the horses came thundering down the stretch to the shouts of thousands.

The old clubhouse has been kept in a good state of repair and the immense hall on the ground floor will make an ideal place for the big auction event. The hall itself has a seating capacity of 2,000, and with one side opening on a broad veranda, it is possible to see almost the whole of the property from any point in the room.

Now that the real estate community has had an opportunity to recover from the surprise occasioned by the first announcement that Morris Park is to be sold at auction, there has been much speculation as to the probable outcome of an attempt to dispose of so large an offering at one time. Heretofore an offering of 300 or 400 lots has been announced with some misgiving as to the market's ability to absorb so much property at once—this, too, at times when there has been a far greater public demand for real estate than there is at present. The State Banking Department has not been influenced by this phase of the situation, for it has ordered that the Morris Park sale shall continue until every lot has been sold. With a sale of such magnitude under these conditions, shrewd market observers are freely predicting that May 31 and the succeeding days will be the bargain days of recent real estate history.

Opposed to Central Purchasing Plan.

Borough President Miller of The Bronx asserts that the scheme for a central wholesale purchasing agency for the city is an "iridescent dream."

He says it will receive enthusiastic support from persons who have never run a city department. To save money is its design; to waste it will be the probable result.

"All the supplies used by the city can be bought in the city," adds the Borough President. "Real estate for storehouses is expensive; civil service laws and red tape increase the cost of the goods handled. A series of storehouses means long lists of employees and much trucking of goods to and from the storehouses, not to mention the interminable delays which such a system entails. The day has gone by when economic distribution may be had by carting supplies to a central storehouse and carting them away. Future economic methods will require them to be taken directly from the manufacturer to the place of use.

"It probably is true that open market orders for supplies costing less than $1,000 have been issued by the departments to the amount of $3,568,797, and that many of the goods have been bought at retail prices without competition, but this is no reason for the establishment of a central purchasing agency, with all its expense and loss of time. I venture to say that the loss of time alone to the city attendant upon waiting for supplies from the central purchasing agency by the various departments of the city will amount in dollars and cents to more than the average of the central purchasing agency through buying by wholesale.

"It seems to me that a far more practical solution of the difficulty would be in the creation of a supply bureau which could prepare specifications for the standardization of the various things used by the city. Every three months it could advertise for the supplies needed for the next quarter year.

"By this method the benefits of buying by wholesale and through open competition would be gained by the city, while the expense entailed by a central purchasing agency would be avoided. No storehouses, no trucking, no long list of employees, no bookkeeping, no delays, no red tape—it seems too good to be true!"

Westchester Avenue Assessment.

A resolution of the Board of Estimate for reapportioning the cost and expense of acquiring title to Westchester av, from West Farms rd to Eastern Boulevard; to Lane av, from Westchester av to West Farms rd, and to the public place bounded by Lane av, West Farms rd and Westchester av, Bronx, was referred, on Thursday, to the Borough President of the Bronx, for a public hearing.

The special committee of the Board of Estimate to which the matter was referred, recommended the re-apportionment of the cost of acquiring title, so as to place 75 per cent. on the present local area of assessment, 15 per cent. on the Borough of the Bronx, and 10 per cent. on the Borough of Manhattan.

Opportunities in the Wholesale Section.

Speaking of real estate opportunities in the old wholesale section, Aaron Rabinowitz, president of Spear & Co., real estate agents at 713 Broadway, said the great need there is for modern buildings.

"Analysis of the causes that have brought about existing conditions reveals," he said, "the fact that the majority of buildings are owned either by trustees, wealthy estates, or very substantial families whose holdings are unencumbered by mortgages, and who would neither sell nor modernize their holdings to meet the needs of tenants or appeals of brokers.

"The Sailors' Snug Harbor, owning the land bounded by Broadway, University place, Eighth and Tenth streets, by its very inability to sell, combined with its own reluctance to build and grant long ground leases, has done much to speed the northward movement.

"At the moment there is urgent need for new buildings of large area. A spirit of unrest prevails in the clothing and millinery trades, and unless new buildings are forthcoming trade conditions will force a shifting to other centres bidding for these industries.

"Proof of the present need for better quarters is found in the fact that practically all the more modern buildings are fully rented, as, for instance, the O. B. Potter Trust Building, at Astor place; the Raleigh Building, in Broadway, opposite Bond street; the Mason estate property, at Broadway and Fourth street; the Randolph Guggenheimer commercial building block and the Ward Building, at 709 Broadway. These are all excellent paying investments. Capital should find a profitable field for investment in the erection of tall loft buildings on the Wanamaker plot, opposite Waverly place, and the Ayer plot, near Houston street."

The Growing Biltmore.

Many people pause when passing near the Grand Central Depot to watch the forces of the George A. Fuller Company putting together the new Hotel Biltmore. The rapidity and smoothness with which the work is carried forward, but without apparent haste, is generally remarked.

The Fuller Company, which is in charge of the construction work, also built the Plaza in this city, the Copley Plaza in Boston, the new Ritz in Montreal, the new Fort Garny in Winnipeg, the Bellevue-Stratford in Philadelphia and the Blackstone and La Salle in Chicago. The steel framework goes down into the ground for a depth of five floors and will rise to a height of twenty-two stories. All of this great task must be accomplished by November, so that the hotel can be furnished and put in shape for the formal opening on New Year's Eve.

Several new things that the internal economy of the Biltmore will contain have been disclosed by the Hotel Register: The system first put in use by George C. Boldt in making each floor a hotel in itself will be followed at the Biltmore. Once a patron has registered he or she need never go to the main office again, but on leaving the hotel can leave the room key with the floor clerk and take the elevator directly to the street. This floor clerk can be reached at any time of the day or night, and any request can be carried out in less than half the time it would take if sent to the main office.

The telautograph will be installed throughout, and every order, no matter how small, will be recorded in black and white for future reference if necessary.

One of the principal entertainment features of the Biltmore will be the palm room. This will be decorated magnificently with subdued lighting and remarkable color effects. A portion of the hotel will be reserved for the tired business man. This is on the main floor, on the 43d street side, and will be an Eveless Eden in every sense of the word. This will be equipped with a dining-room, minus music, a club lounging room and a library.

The New York Central's great power plant will furnish all of the steam and hot water to be used in the mammoth hostelry, and all the coal that will be used in the Biltmore will be that in the kitchen ranges.

Isolated Plant Switchboard Panels.

The General Electric Co. has just issued Bulletin No. A4116 describing that company's isolated and small plant alternating current switchboard panels, both generator and feeder, for three-phase, 25 to 60 cycle circuit. The bulletin is made up principally of dimension and connecting diagrams, and miscellaneous data referring to the various panels and equipment.

Electricity in the Packing Industry.

Bulletin No. A4119, just issued by the General Electric Co. is devoted to the application of electricity to the operation of packing establishments. List No. 18 for April of new publications issued by the Department of the Interior, Bureau of Mines, containing Bulletin 48, "The selection of explosives used in engineering operations," by Clarence Hall and S. P. Howell; and Bulletin 55, "The commercial trend of the gas producer in the United States," by R. H. Fernald, are ready for distribution. Not more than one copy will be given free to anyone person. Lupton's New Catalog.

David Lupton's Sons Co., of Philadelphia, Pa., is issuing its new No. 7 catalog, which will be sent free upon request. Special emphasis is made of the unusual installation of its products and adoption of its system of roof lighting as shown in an insert of the catalog. A description is also given of the company's new motor driven Pond operating device. The catalog is improved and enlarged and should be on every architect's shelves, because it contains specifications and detail drawings showing the various kinds of fanlight and continuous sash operators in various kinds of buildings.

The Story of Joint Pipe.

Anybody who is interested at all in the problem of carrying water in difficult places will want to read the second edition, enlarged and revised, of the National Tube Company's book on Matheson joint pipe. The 1913 edition of this book is not only a work of art but it is of practical value in that it describes intricate ways in which pipe is laid. The chief value of this booklet to architects and engineers here in New York City lies in the fact that it is particularly adaptable to carrying high pressure loads in buildings where vibration tends to loosen joints. Copies will be sent upon application to the general offices at Pittsburgh, Pa.

Concrete Construction.

The Universal Portland Cement Co., 72 West Adams street, Chicago, is distributing a new book, "The Concrete House and Its Construction," published by the Association of American Portland Cement Manufacturers. It has 224 pages, 159 illustrations and is sold for $1 per copy. The index of chapters indicates its scope: "The Advantages of Concrete for House Construction"; "Architectural Design and Treatment of Concrete Houses"; Details of Construction"; "Operations in the Field"; "Calculations for Determining the Strength and Design of Reinforced Concrete in House Construction"; "Calculating the Bending Moments for Reinforced Concrete Beams and Slabs and the Determination of Size and Reinforcement"; "Tables for Designing Reinforced Concrete Construction and Their Use"; and "Concrete Block Houses." Persons desiring the book will receive one prepaid by sending $1 to the Universal Portland Cement Co., Chicago, Pittsburgh and Minneapolis.

—In the year 1909 the cost of coal consumed by the Department of Water, Gas and Electricity amounted to $613,806. The cost of coal in 1910 was $491,292, showing a saving of $125,514 over the cost of the previous year, a condition which resulted from more economical and efficient means of purchasing and handling coal. In addition, there was 2.5 per cent. more water pumped in 1910 than during the previous year. Standard specifications and contracts for coal have been adopted.

—Home mortgages are among the soundest investments. Usually the home owner will not let go until he is torn loose by adverse circumstances of the severest kind and when the other fellow walks the floor—you don't have to.—R. E. Board of Brokers' Bulletin.

LAW DEPARTMENT

Building Contract.

The rule of law that when the time specified in a contract for its performance has been waived neither party can thereafter rescind the continued on account of delay without notice to the other that it will be rescinded unless completed within a reasonable time, to be specified in the notice, applies as well to contracts wherein no time is specified for completing the work. In the latter case, if the work has extended beyond a reasonable time the notice is a prerequisite to an action to rescind. A conversation between the parties in which complaint was made of the delay, but no definite time specified for a completion of the work, is not such a notice as the law requires. The Court of Appeals of this State so decides in Taylor and Andrews against Goelet. In May, 1906, Frank M. Taylor and Frank M. Andrews, plaintiffs, entered into a contract with Robert Goelet whereby Goelet agreed to erect a building upon land owned by him, and when the building was completed to lease the premises to the plaintiffs for a term of twenty years at an annual ground rent of $42,000, and in addition an annual rental of 6 per cent. on the cost of the building. The contract provided that the building should be erected according to plans and specifications prepared by the plaintiff Andrews, who is an architect, and approved by the defendant. The plaintiff agreed to take a lease of the premises for the period and at the rental mentioned on the completion of the building, and in the meantime, beginning with the date of the contract, to pay the defendant $2,500 a month.

There was a provision in the agreement fixing the sum of $60,000 as liquidated damages for a breach of contract by the plaintiffs, and the payments of $2,500 a month were to be applied in the satisfaction of such liquidated damages if liability for the same accrued. The contract required the plaintiffs to furnish security for the rent, and on the execution of the lease and the furnishing of such security the amount of the monthly payments theretofore made by the plaintiffs was to be returned to them. There are other provisions of the agreement not material to the questions before the court, but the contract was entirely silent as to the time when the defendant should complete the building.

This action was brought by the plaintiffs to recover the sum of $52,788, the amount of the monthly payments up to February, 1908. The complaint alleges that the defendant failed to complete the building and lease the same to the plaintiffs within a reasonable time, according to the terms and provisions of the contract, and therefore the plaintiffs had elected to rescind the agreement and recover back the money paid thereon.

It was proved on the trial that in August, 1906, the defendant entered into a contract with the General Supply and Construction Company, a corporation of which the plaintiff Taylor was president, for the erection of a building on the land in question according to the plans and specifications prepared by the plaintiff Andrews and approved by the defendant. This contract provided that the building should be completely finished and ready for occupancy on or before July 1, 1907, and the contract price was about $378,000.

The work of constructing the building was then begun and it proceeded slowly, with the plaintiff Taylor personally in charge. July 1, 1907, was a reasonable time limit to allow for the erection of the building, but it was still unfinished in February, 1908. The plaintiffs had in the meantime made the monthly payments, which then amounted to the sum sued for, $52,788. The last payment was made on February 17.

At about that time the plaintiff Taylor, in a conversation with the defendant, spoke of the backward condition of the work on the building and of the interference by the defendant with the subcontractors, and said that unless the quibbling stopped and the job got under way he and Andrews wanted their money back and would rescind the contract.

—The consolidation of the Bureau of Water Supply, under one head instead of under six independent heads, as formerly, resulted in a yearly reduction in salaries of over $300,000, and in the elimination of proposed works which would have cost the city about $1,800,000. The substitution of other work effected an annual economy in operating and maintenance charges of $200,000.

Governor Hughes

Had the laws changed making it possible.

Governor Sulzer

Has had it carried into practical effect for the benefit of all the people.

When a Bank Failed

formerly a Receiver was appointed to dispose of the assets. A few individuals with plenty of ready cash obtained the bargains and made the money.

Governor Hughes had the law changed and the State of New York Banking Department takes charge of and liquidates all failed Banking Institutions.

Governor Sulzer's administration has ordered that if there are to be any opportunities for making money from the assets of failed Banking Institutions, all the people should be given an equal chance.

The Banking Department of the State of New York realize perfectly that such a large tract as 3019 separate lots of the Morris Park Race Track cannot be sold without sacrificing their value.

But the Property Must Be Sold—

There is no alternative.

That is what is meant by the

IT IS EASIER TO RENT OR SELL YOUR PROPERTY WHEN YOU USE

Windowphanie

"Makes Stained Glass out of Plain Glass"

ITS RICH EFFECT — At a trifling cost Windowphanie gives the effect of expensive stained glass. It admits a flood of rich, warm light and gives privacy. It does not fade, peel, or blister, if you get the genuine.

ITS USES — On windows, glass doors and partitions it adds greatly to the beauty of the rooms and makes other more expensive decoration less necessary.

SHUTTING OUT UGLY VIEWS — It shuts out ugly views and gives privacy in bathrooms, air shafts, etc.

ITS RENTING AND SELLING VALUE — Outward appearances, decorations, always make the deepest impression. This is so well recognized that builders often neglect necessary and substantial things in order to concentrate on the decoration.

ITS ECONOMY — Considering its big effect, it is the cheapest decoration you can get.

THE SERVICE OF OUR EXPERTS — Our staff of experts is at your disposal with helpful suggestions and thousands of designs and will estimate on contract work.

The Great Success of Windowphanie has Brought out Many Inferior Imitations

Details of the Woolworth Building

Of unusual architectural interest is the book of the Woolworth Building, recently published by the Atlantic Terra Cotta Co., of 1170 Broadway, New York. The book contains a series of truly remarkable photographs taken from temporary scaffolds during the construction of the building, and these photographs show the wonderful modeled detail to excellent advantage. The illustrations have a peculiar value, for it will never be possible to take such photographs again. In addition, the book contains an article entitled "The Architect and the Manufacturer," which will prove of great assistance to those who contemplate the use of architectural terra cotta. A copy will be forwarded on request to the Atlantic Company.

EXPLANATION OF TERMS USED AND RULES FOLLOWED IN COMPILING RECORDS.

Q. C. is an abbreviation for Quit Claim deed, i. e., a deed wherein all the right, title and interest of the grantor is conveyed omitting all covenants and warranty.

C. a G. means a deed containing Covenant against Grantor only, in which he covenants that he hath not done any act whereby the estate conveyed may be impeached, charged or encumbered

B. & S. is an abbreviation for Bargain and Sale deed, wherein, although the seller makes no expressed consideration, he really grants or conveys the property for a valuable consideration, and thus impliedly claims to be the owner of it

The street and avenue numbers given in these lists are, in all cases, taken from the insurance maps when they are not mentioned in the deeds. The numbers, it will occasionally be found, do not correspond with the existing ones, owing to there having been no official designation made of them by the Department of Public Works.

The first date is the date the deed was drawn. The second date is the date of filing same. When both dates are the same, only one is given. When the date of drawing is other than in the current year the stated year is given. When both the dates are in the same year the year follows the second date.

The figures in each conveyance, thus, 2:482—10, denote that the property mentioned is in section 2, block 482, lot 10.

It should also be noted in section and block numbers that the instrument as filed is strictly followed.

A $20,000—$30,000 indicates the assessed value of the property, the first figures being for the lot only and the second figures representing both lot and building. Letter P before second figure indicates that the property is assessed as in course of construction. Valuations are from the assessment roll of 1912

T. S. preceding the consideration in a conveyance means that the deed or conveyance has been recorded under the Torrens System.

Flats and apartment houses are classified as tenements.

Residences as dwellings.

All Christian names, streets, avenues, states and months are abbreviated when possible, also in some instances names of Banks, Trusts and Insurance Companies.

The number in ( ) preceding the serial number to the right of the date line, at head of this page, is the Index number for the Checking Index.

The Star following names of street or avenue in the Bronx Conveyances, Leases and Mortgages indicates that the property recorded is in the annexed district, for which there is no section or block number.

REAL ESTATE RECORD AND BUILDERS GUIDE.

THE BIGGEST MUNICIPAL DEBT IN THE WORLD

——Article II, Part II——

By HENRY BRUERE, Director, Bureau of Municipal Research.

ONE of the hardest problems confronting the next administration will be how to provide necessary schools and other improvements without increasing the tax rate to the point of public revolt.

The next five years, when corporate stock budgets will deal with thousands instead of millions as heretofore, may profitably be given to intensive city planning and to the development of a new program of public financing. Sooner or later the city will have power to exercise the right of excess condemnation in acquiring land for park and building purposes. It will have the power to take back into the city treasury a part of the enhanced value of real estate which results from the construction of important public works.

German Experience.

Practically every city in Germany has for years been in the position in which New York now finds itself. There comparative poverty restrains cities from incurring great indebtedness. At the same time the growth of population and the pressure of commercial demands is generally compelling physical reconstruction and the provision of modern public works. But German cities, accustomed to look at public questions from a public interest rather than from a private interest standpoint, have found a solution for their financial perplexities. Last year the city of Dortmund (215,000 population) found it necessary to build a new thoroughfare through the old part of the city, whose narrow, irregular streets were congested with traffic. The gross cost of the improvement was Mks. 5,875,000 ($1,468,750). The city exercised its power of excess condemnation and bought not only the property required for the thoroughfare, but the adjoining property, whose value has been increased as the result of the opening of the street. The city reported last fall that the prospective and surely to be realized return from the sale of property abutting on the thoroughfare and not required for its widening would be Mks. 5,700,000 ($1,425,000), making the net cost of the most important public improvement ever executed by the city, Mks. 175,000 ($43,750).

Fortunes Once in Real Estate.

Every informed taxpayer knows of the fortunes that were made in New York City at the time of the opening of the present subway. I have been told by one of the largest operators in New York realty that within a few days after the opening of the present subway he sold lots for $1,200,000 which had cost him $250,000 before the period of subway land speculation. Unquestionably, this operator was entitled to some profit in return for his foresight and the possible hazard of his investment, but even he would admit that his gain resulted more from the enterprise of the community than it did from the employment of his own abilities.

In this article Mr. Bruere brings out the startling fact that, through improvident fiscal management, the foremost city in America and the richest municipality in the world has virtually exhausted its constitutional borrowing power and must look for new ways of financing public works. On March 31, the net funded debt of New York City amounted to 7.01 per cent. of the assessed valuation of the real estate in the city, while contract and other liabilities increased the total indebtedness, exclusive of self-sustaining bonds, to 9.11 per cent. of the assessed valuation. As the debt incurring power of the city, except for certain income producing enterprises (water supply, docks, subways) is limited to 10 per cent. of the assessed valuation of the real estate in the city; as the current valuation is fully on a par with "market value," and as this value can not be expected to increase rapidly in the near future, it will be seen that the traditional fiscal policy of the city is no longer adequate to meet the necessity for expansion of municipal functions occasioned by the tremendous growth of population, a growth which has now attained a rate of about 200,000 a year. Mr. Bruere's article points out the choice of fiscal devices open to the city for taking care of its expanding activities. The present article, of which the second installment appears today, is the second of a series of five written by Mr. Bruere at the request of the Record and Guide, the purpose of the series being (1) to discover why taxes are increasing out of proportion to the growth of population and (2) to suggest available remedies.

1913 Bond Sale.

On May 20th New York City will hold its annual corporate stock sale. It proposes to market $45,000,000 of bonds, $25,000,000 of corporate stock for various municipal purposes, and $20,000,000 for extension of the water supply. The city agrees to pay interest at the rate of 4½ per cent. per annum for fifty years on these bonds. The last issue of 4½ per cent. bonds was on February 14, 1908, just after the 1907 panic. In November of that year $12,000,000 of 4 per cent. bonds were sold to the public and 4 per cent. ruled until 1910, when the rate was increased to 4¼ per cent. In May of last year the city sold $65,000,000 4¼ per cent. bonds at an average price of $100.747.

The present increased interest rate does not mean that the city's credit has been impaired. It means merely that the market is over-supplied with New York City bonds. This is clearly indicated by the current market quotations on New York City bonds. On May 2d, according to market quotations in the New York Times, the only New York City corporate stocks selling above par were the four and one-half per cents issued in 1908, the bid price being 101¼. The four and one-half per cents corporate stock issued during the present administration were quoted at 95¾. The four per cents issued in 1909 were bid for at 92½. The four per cents issued in 1906 were bid for at 90. The three and one-half per cents issued in 1904 were bid for at 80½. Corporate stock of the city cannot be issued below par. So investors in earlier issues are disadvantaged by each succeeding sale. For each new issue of bonds is likely to force down the prices of preceding issues, particularly those bearing a lower interest rate.

Causes of Depressed Bond Prices.

On the failure of the bond sale of June 8, 1909, the Bureau of Municipal Research sought to learn the effect on prices bid, of such conditions as frequency of sales, uncertainty of limit, volume of outstanding bonds, etc. Letters containing twelve questions were written to all the bidders at the sale. These included most of the important bond houses of the city.

In the replies received frequency of bond issues was repeatedly mentioned as the dominating factor in determining the reception of proposed bond issues by the investing public. One house wrote: "The question resolves itself almost entirely into one of supply and demand, with the assurance that for a definite number of years ahead New York City will supply as many bonds as the market can absorb."

Note: Increase in interest rate and decrease in average prices realized by the city.

The Metz administration of the finance department made an important contribution to the solution of the city debt problem, and that was the actual determination through litigation of the method of computing the city's borrowing margin. The new administration started with this very considerable advantage.

At the suggestion of the Bureau of Municipal Research the fusion board immediately on its organization in 1910 took a notable step which has laid the foundation for a proper policy in dealing with the vast problem of city indebtedness. This step was to establish the corporate stock budget. "Corporate stock budget" means merely that all corporate stock authorizations are to be considered at the same time and in relation one to the other, and are to be made but once in a year. Before 1910 corporate stock authorizations were included in practically every calendar of the Board of Estimate and Apportionment. As shown in the first article in this series on June 30, 1908, authorizations for the issue of corporate stock reached the great total of $180,000,000, whereas the borrowing margin was down to $3,000,000.

Corporate Stock Issues.

The very first step taken by the new administration was to rescind $24,278,406.48 of authorizations for which no specific liability had been incurred. Some of these authorizations dated back many years and stood on the books as continuous inducements to the prodigal use of the city's "faith and credit." In 1910 a corporate stock budget of $85,000,000 was prepared, of which $13,000,000 was set aside as a reservation for subway purposes. In 1911 a budget of $45,807,818.23 was authorized for purposes other than subways and the extension of the water supply.

In 1912 no corporate stock budget was authorized because of the board's desire not to infringe upon the city's borrowing capacity until the completion of the subway negotiations. Scattering authorizations to the amount of $36,716,280.45 were made for emergent needs. At no time since 1910 has the board authorized a penny of corporated stock expenditure in excess of the available borrowing margin. Clearly, had taxpayers five or ten years ago insisted that the Board of Estimate consider corporate stock authorizations with reference to each other and on the basis of a general financial program there can be no doubt that the expenditure of millions of dollars for questionable improvements that has since been incurred would never have been authorized.

Advance Borrowings.

A second important step which will protect the future credit of the city was taken by Comptroller Prendergast when he obtained authority from the legislature in 1911 to issue what are known as "corporate stock notes." Briefly, these notes may be issued by the Comptroller pursuant to authorizations of the Board of Estimate for the issue of corporate stock. They are sold to bankers at current market rates in the same manner as revenue bonds issued in anticipation of the collection of taxes, and must be redeemed within a year after their issue. They represent merely advanced borrowings on the credit of prospective corporate stock sales. The proceeds of corporate stock sales are now used to redeem outstanding corporate stock notes. Corporate stock notes give the city a very great advantage, for their use enables the Comptroller to borrow funds for public improvements as the funds are required instead of long in advance. Moreover, the corporate stock note plan makes it possible for the city to restrict the issue of corporate stock to an annual sale, thus obviating the disturbing influence of frequent and irregular issues.

Improved City Debt Administration.

Confronted by a serious situation in respect of the city debt the finance department, during the past three years, has dealt with this problem scientifically and efficiently. In this time it has considered a number of problems in relation to city debt, methods of floating securities, provision of sinking funds, etc., all of which are immensely important, but which are not especially pertinent to this article. It is worth while, however, mentioning one recent innovation, namely, the purchase by the city for sinking fund purposes of outstanding bonds at current prices. The advertisement for the May 20, 1913, sale requests tenders for the purchase by the city of $5,000,000 of outstanding bonds. This is excellent financial practice and wisely followed can be made to support the market for city bonds at times of stress, such as the present when a prospective new issue depresses the market for outstanding securities. It is desirable, moreover, that taxpayers should know that the present administration has set a high standard in administering the city's credit relations. The vast resources of the city, and the practically unlimited market for New York City bonds in the past, permitted comptrollers to give slight thought, and often second-rate attention to city debt matters. Under present conditions, the protection of the city's financial status from bond sale failures or disgracefully low market prices for New York City bonds, is one of the most important responsibilities of the Comptroller. In the future efficient comptrollers will give to the credit relations of the finance department special attention and continue the present practice of placing this branch of the business of the finance department in charge of a deputy specially trained in finance.

Table VIII.—Sale of Corporate Stock Notes.

Year.	Various Municipal Purposes.	Supply of Water	Rapid Transit.	Total Sales.
1911	$11,110,448	$11,390,129	$1,295,000	$23,795,578
Total three years	$76,213,078	$72,202,850	$6,976,683	$155,392,612

Note: It is estimated that $800,000 is saved annually in interest charges through the useful expedient of corporate stock note issues.

Constructive Steps Suggested.

Taxpayers cannot escape the payment of interest upon and provision of funds for the retirement of the city's outstanding debt. They can, however, insist that the future use of the city's borrowing capacity be based upon comprehensive city planning and conform to wise business practice.

I suggest the following steps for the city to take as supplementing the corporate stock budget and improved financial methods previously referred to:

1. That a plan for city improvement be skillfully framed looking as far ahead as it is possible in respect of every class of improvement. The city of Düsseldorf in Germany last year held a competition to obtain plans for its development for the next fifty years. Surely, New York City should be able to plan ahead at least five years. City planning is not Utopian romancing. It is sound business policy. The sooner New York undertakes it the better for taxpayers' pockets and citizens' comfort.

2. That taxpayers cast off their prejudices and assist in obtaining for the city power to execute its major improvements on the principle of excess condemnation or assessment in proportion to financial benefit. I have heard taxpayers express objection to the construction of the new subway by assessment of at least a part of the cost against properties whose value will be increased by their construction because other taxpayers reaped enormous gains from the construction of the first subway by the general credit of the city.

Taxpayers will surely find it profitable to consider a comprehensive plan for the city's physical development. I believe they will come to discuss without prejudice or selfish interest new methods of financing necessary undertakings. The first law governing all improvements should be the law of greatest good for the greatest number, and not the greatest gain for a particular property owner.

New Methods of Financiering.

3. That taxpayers urge the early completion of the inventory of city property and the establishment of a proper record now under way in the department of finance, in order that the city may show in its balance sheet a statement of its capital assets, to contrast with its capital liabilities or outstanding indebtedness. Such information is indispensable to a definite understanding of the city's financial condition. Not to have it means to leave the door open for the further misuse of borrowing capacity.

4. That the Board of Estimate establish at once a schedule of the probable life of improvements, in order that bonds may be amortized as nearly as possible during the life of the improvement for whose construction they were issued.

5. That taxpayers request an early settlement of still unsettled questions relating to the computation of the city debt.

On December 29, 1909, Comptroller Metz raised eight questions with the Corporation Counsel regarding the city debt which had not been passed upon specifically by the Court of Appeals in the city debt case, then recently concluded. To date, replies to these questions have not been given. In consequence, debt statements still contain several items of uncertainty. These items, when the borrowing margin is as limited as now, assume proportions of importance. For example, in the debt statement of March 31st there is included an estimate of $500,000 for judgments and open market orders. The exact sum provided for judgments is not stated. These judgments are the allowances made by courts in litigation in which the city has been unsuccessful. They are paid out of the proceeds of special revenue bonds. The Court of Appeals has held that special revenue bonds (redeemable out of next year's taxes) are not to be included in determining the city's constitutional debt. Why, therefore, should judgments payable out of these bonds be included?

Classify Charges.

6. That a charging classification be provided to govern the use of corporate stock funds. An important existing defect in the accounting practice of the city arises from the absence of definite instructions as to the classes of expenditure that may be charged against corporate stock funds. It is possible to provide a definite code of accounts to govern all charges of this character. The Comptroller has had this step definitely in mind, but in case the present administration is unable because of limitation of time to prepare such a code, taxpayers should urge that this step be taken early next year.

It is not possible at this time to forecast with definiteness the future growth of the annual budget appropriations for city debt service. The prospective issues of bonds for water and subway purposes in the next few years will maintain the average volume of annual issue which has prevailed since 1908. The new subways to be completed in 1918 will require the issue of approximately $150,000,000 corporate stock. The Catskill Water Shed to be completed in 1916 is estimated to require additional issues of $100,000,000. Interest and sinking fund charges will, therefore, in all probability, continue to increase. This increase in the face of present tax burdens will seriously interfere with necessary appropriations for current services of the city and is likely to constitute a considerable embarrassment to the next administration. Those who predict that the prospective investment in the new subways will early prove self-sustaining hold out a ray of hope to taxpayers and citizens who are otherwise confronted with a somewhat gloomy outlook regarding means available within the next few years for extending municipal activities.

It is clear that the present condition of the city debt gives added weight to taxpayers' responsibility to support and press forward economy and efficiency measures throughout the city government. Resolutions and protests are futile while present opportunities to effect economies exist. The way to save is for taxpayers to let city officials know now that they are prepared to give intelligent support to constructive efficiency work. In a period of plenty, waste and prodigality were easy to offset by the always available device of increasing appropriations. In the present period of restricted credit and pressure upon taxpayers, there is more hope for obtaining from voters a definite demand that the next administration of the city government shall work unremittingly to erect permanent standards for the scientific management of city business.

This need is urgent not only because of its importance to taxpayers, but because failure to utilize to its utmost every dollar of the city's resources will mean for some time to come that necessary services of vital consequence to the health and convenience of the public at large cannot be performed.

NEW YORK CENTRAL'S LATER TERMINAL PLANS

Not Satisfactory to Residential Property Interests—Public Hearings to Be Resumed—Great Opposition to Manhattanville Terminal Scheme.

THE modified plans of the New York Central Railroad for its West Side terminal improvements will be on public exhibition at the City Hall and the Grand Central Station next Monday. Being based on the tentative agreement between the railroad company and the Terminal Committee of the Board of Estimate which was arrived at some months ago, the present plans do not embody the changes which the West End and Washington Heights property interests have appealed for and which they hope and expect will be granted.

The agreement between the Terminal Committee and the railroad company was the subject of an extended report to the Board of Estimate last month, and a series of public hearings were held upon this report at the City Hall. Further action was postponed until the New York Central's engineering department could prepare the drawings in consonance with the report, with the understanding that the hearings would be resumed when all the interested parties should have had opportunity to study the plans.

Notice is given by the Terminal Committee that hearings will be resumed on Tuesday afternoon, May 27. A set of the drawings was submitted to the Board of Estimate by President Mitchel on Thursday. The New York Central will have a limited number of lithographic copies for distribution in about two weeks. In addition to the drawings there will be on exhibition next Monday a model of two or more sections of the line, including the covered portion through, or along, Riverside Park.

Grounds of Objection.

Objection has been made to the agreement which forms the basis of the report in several particulars, notably by the West End Association and the Washington Heights Association, the former challenging the railroad's claim either to ownership or a franchise over the land covered by its tracks north of 58th street, the latter protesting against the laying-out of huge railroad terminal yards along Riverside Drive between 137th and 153d streets. When the plans are ready for public consideration these objections will be renewed, and it is expected by property owners that the Terminal Committee will arrive at a better understanding of the respective rights of the city and the company and will insist on further modifications in the railroad plans, in accordance with the public demands.

Adjustment Between Ninety-seventh and Ninety-fourth Streets.

The railroad company has agreed to provide for the city a marginal strip 150 feet in width outshore of its right of way between a point slightly north of 97th street and a point midway between 95th and 94th streets. This will necessitate the extension of the present bulkheads outshore about 35 feet. For this purpose the railroad company will build a pile bulkhead platform at its own expense. This plan may entail a disturbance of the buildings of the lessees of the pier at Ninety-sixth street. The railroad company has also agreed that it will bear any expense involved in the readjustment of this matter. The railroad company has further agreed to pay for a pile construction extension of existing piers a distance to correspond to the loss in length inshore through the extension of the bulkhead.

The proposed extension of the bulkhead will not involve any change in the established bulkhead line. In order, however, that the piers at this point may be built outshore a distance corresponding to that which they will lose at the inshore end by the extension of the bulkhead, it will be necessary to secure from the Secretary of War an extension of the pierhead line some 33 feet at this point. This the Dock Commissioner has already applied for pursuant to authority for the Board.

Should the United States Government withhold its assent to the extension of the pierhead line as herein proposed, the railroad company agrees that it will pay for the construction of an equivalent amount of pier space at some other point in this locality along the river front, to be designated by the city.

Adjustment Between Eighty-first and Seventy-seventh Streets.

As reported on October 3d, the committee has secured from the railroad an agreement that there shall be a marginal way of 150 feet in width outshore of the railroad's right of way between Eighty-first and Seventy-seventh streets. This will involve the extension of existing bulkheads, the cost of which the railroad company has agreed to bear. This it will do by construction of timber platforms on pile foundations of sufficient width to give the desired marginal way. As at Ninety-sixth street, this will involve a shortening of the piers inshore by some 25 feet. The railroad company has agreed to extend the piers an equivalent distance by pile construction at its own expense; or, failing the assent of the United States Government, to provide equivalent pier space at some other point in this locality in the discretion of the Dock Commissioner. The plan within the limits named will require no extension of the established bulkhead line, but will require an extension of the pierhead line by some 25 feet.

Real Estate Adjustment in the Sixtieth Street Yard.

As pointed out in the report of October 3d, the city at present holds the fee of the beds of Twelfth avenue and the cross streets within the limits of the company's proposed Sixtieth street yard, and some of the land under water, the company owning the balance. The railroad desires to purchase from the city fees of these areas, the streets all having been closed by act of the Legislature. In its report of October 3d, the committee recommended that the company be here given a permanent easement for railroad purposes rather than a fee. In view of the fact that the company proposes to improve this area in part by the erection of expensive buildings, and in part by railroad improvements of a permanent nature, and in view of the further fact that the broken or checker-board type of ownership is illogical and renders the land in each ownership less useful than if it were in one, the committee is inclined to recommend that the city here alienate the fee, and sell the company all its right title and interest in the beds of these streets and the land under water between the bulkhead and exterior grant lines between 59th and 72nd streets.

—The commissioners of the Sinking Fund will meet next Thursday at the City Hall, Manhattan, for a public hearing, to authorize the institution of condemnation proceedings for the acquisition of the property for the improvement of the waterfront between West 44th and West 48th streets. The commissioners approved Dock Commissioner Smith's new plans on April 30.

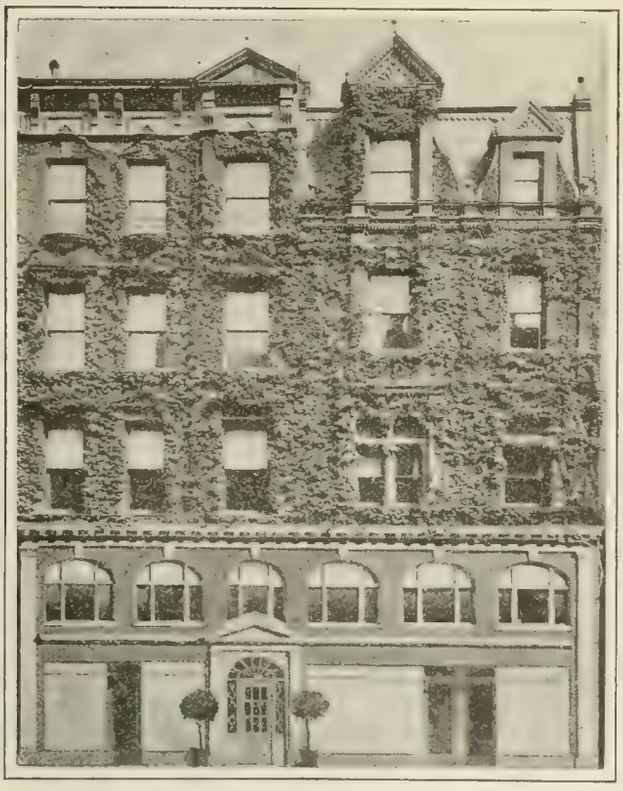
ALTERATIONS TO OLD DWELLINGS

An Evidence That the Neighborhood Is in a Transitional State—How the Income of a Madison Avenue Property Was Increased.

As a general rule the alteration of a building, when its character or use is changed from that of its original purpose, indicates the initial step of the transition stage of a neighborhood.

This transition is going on almost continuously in New York City and is the direct effect of our rapid and splendid growth. Sometimes the changes come so quickly that there is no time for the alteration stage, and good substantial buildings, adequate for many years more of use in their original form, must give way to the march of progress and be torn down to be replaced by new ones built on more modern lines and better fitted for their new requirements.

"Owners and builders, and their real estate advisers, usually give the question of an alteration or a new building where some change is advisable, deep consideration," remarked Charles Griffith Moses, vice-president of the J. Romaine Brown Company. "It is only where the final character of a neighborhood is not definitely determined, or where a temporary change can supply adequately the new demands, that an alteration is decided on, rather than demolition and replacement.



"In the financial and office building districts many comparatively modern and substantial buildings have been razed in the last few years, and the sites reimproved by the erection of new buildings to be used for the same purposes as were those destroyed. The first impression had of this condition is one of waste, but on more careful consideration, the sound economics of the situation became quite apparent.

"The high land values, the advantages of larger building units and the desirability of special buildings for banking houses or large corporations frequently make it profitable to destroy substantial buildings in order to clear the way for a more up-to-date improvement.

"The present tendency, where an alteration is deemed more advisable than rebuilding, is toward such radical changes in the original structure as will leave little but the shell, and while such changes are classed as alterations, they are in effect substantially new buildings.

BEFORE THE ALTERATION.

Herbert M. Baer, Architect.

A RECENT ALTERATION ON MADISON AVENUE.

Two old dwellings were made over into stores, offices and apartments.

Alterations Benefit Everybody.

"It seems to me that any judicious change in the form or character of a building, be it alteration or a new structure, is of unquestioned benefit to all concerned. It is certainly a glowing tribute to Manhattan land values to realize that they can and do advance so rapidly and that they absorb the value of a substantial and more or less appropriate building within twenty or twenty-five years of its completion."

The attached illustrations show a good example of what can be done in the way of remodeling old private residences in order to largely increase their revenue yield, without tearing down the old buildings and putting up a new structure.

These two houses, situated on Madison avenue, now known as "Madison Chambers," were leased for a long term of years by the Madison Chambers Company from Dr. Joseph A. Blake, a surgeon, who had occupied the premises for his offices and residence. Herbert M. Baer, architect, 665 Fifth avenue, was commissioned to remodel the buildings at the smallest cost to show the greatest return. The alterations, in brief, consist of the following:

Tearing out the basement and parlor floor of the old houses and installing on the ground floor three stores with janitor's quarters in the rear, and on the second floor four doctors' offices, making use of the elaborately equipped offices of Dr. Blake in the rear part of the house. A high-speed Otis elevator was installed, making accessible the upper floors, which are laid out into two and three-room apartments with kitchenette and bath; the top floor having studio rooms with skylights. On the roof, a penthouse consisting of large artists' studios with two bedrooms, bath and kitchenette was built, leaving part of the roof for roof garden purposes.

The total cost of the alterations was $25,000. The work was executed by the Grant Contracting Company in just four months' time, and the income yield was increased from a possible $7,000 or $8,000 a year gross to $25,000 a year gross.

Distribution of Office Buildings.

While the geographical limits within which office buildings are being constructed have not been materially extended in recent years, there continues to be a decided movement in the northern direction. More office buildings are being annually erected in midtown than formerly. On the average, they naturally rule very much less in bulk than the skyscrapers of the financial district, but they are far more numerous. Besides the buildings designed for offices exclusively, there are many of the class intermediate between the open loft and the thoroughly subdivided office building which are either in course of construction now or have been completed recently.

A long period of years has intervened since the pioneer office building of the modern type was erected in the various uptown sections where offices have since multiplied, as around Madison Square, Greeley Square, Times Square, the Grand Central Station, in the lateral streets near the Pennsylvania Station, and, of course, along Broadway and the new Fifth avenue. In most of these sections there are old office buildings descended from a period anterior to the appearance of the skyscraper. The present movement, wonderful as it is to behold, consists, then, mainly in the multiplication of steel skeleton office buildings within geographical limits long ago established.

City's Financial Activities.

Comptroller Prendergast has issued a pamphlet giving a summary of the city's financial activities during the first three months of the present year, paralleled with the figures for the first quarterly period in 1912. The purpose of this quarterly report is to present concisely the vast financial transactions of the City of New York, which equal in amount the combined fiscal action of the ten next largest cities in the United States. The general plan of the report is such as to make clear the general purposes of the city's expenditures and outlays, and the main sources from which it derives its revenues.

REAL ESTATE BOARD'S LEGISLATIVE WORK

Secures the Modification of Oppressive Factory Measures —Brokers Urged to Take More Interest in Public Affairs

By CHARLES F. NOYES

THE Legislature has adjourned and the smoke has cleared. Real estate interests, in my judgment, have not suffered any more severely than other interests, such as insurance, banking or corporations.

Many have complained regarding the stringent laws that have been passed at Albany. Many have blamed the organization in power for what has been done. I am thoroughly convinced that some of the laws that have been enacted, for which excuses will have to be made later on, are the direct result of the visionary, theoretical reformer whose work has been in evidence for the past several years. There is no denying the fact that reform has been in the saddle and all sorts of legislation, good, bad and indifferent, has been enacted in the name of the laboring man.

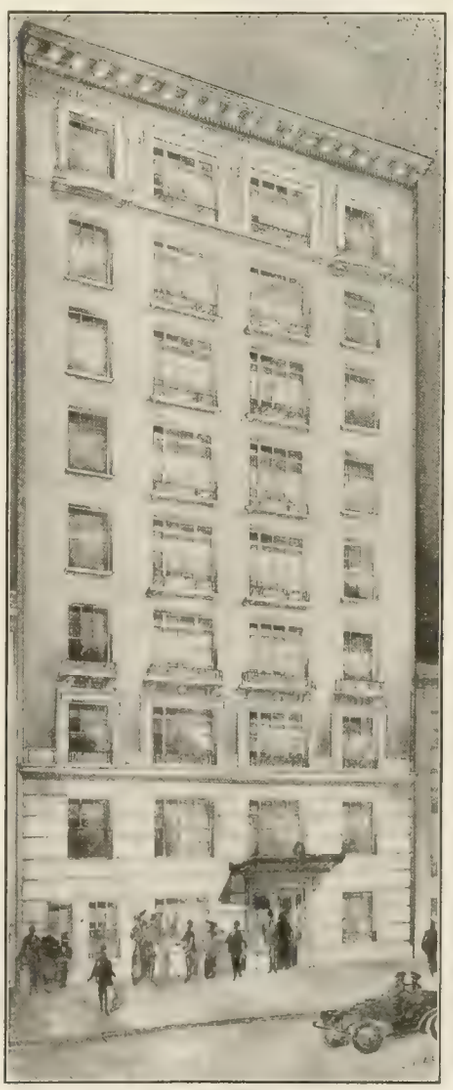
All legislation that will protect life against disease, death or injury is most commendable, and all legislation along the lines of giving labor a fair wage with reasonable working hours is commendable; but legislation that is so drafted that it carries useless theories to such extremes as to re-act against those who have caused the bills to be enacted is the worst possible legislation that could be offered for the results that are to be desired.

There is much good in the legislation enacted and known as the Wagner bills, which were the product of the investigation of the State Factory Commission that was organized shortly after the Triangle Shirt Waist Company fire. The fact that this legislation is not a great deal worse is due to the interest taken in the matter by a few prominent real estate men, such as Robert E. Dowling and Henry Morgenthau. There is no question but what the bills would be more satisfactory had the real estate men themselves taken the interest in the measures that the subject deserved. They did not do so and they are primarily to blame for anything that has been omitted, or for any objections that can be raised.

Drawing the Lion's Teeth.

In general, the main factory bill that was seriously criticized by real estate interests was a bill compelling the fireproofing of all stairways in buildings whether five or six stories in height or whether twelve or twenty. By the hardest kind of work and with active co-operation of the Real Estate Board of Brokers and President E. A. Tredwell this bill relating to stairways, exits and enclosures was amended so that its "teeth were drawn" and it presents today no menace to the low five-and-six story loft buildings. The amendments change the term "fireproof" to "fire resisting"; they also permit local authorities to pass on the question of what is fire resisting under certain conditions; and the amendments furthermore permit the Industrial Board to make rules and regulations and also to modify, amend or change any conditions affecting the five or six story building.

The provisions in the new laws regarding hoistways and elevator shafts are not drastic. The fireproofing feature has been entirely eliminated in low buildings and nothing is to be feared in this regard.



Continue Clever Work.

The work that the real estate interests have been doing heretofore in securing an amendment should be considered as only the beginning of their work. They should now actively take an interest in the personnel of the Industrial Board, which is to consist of four members, and see that Governor Sulzer appoints at least one or two men on this Board who are thoroughly familiar with real estate conditions and factory conditions. The Real Estate Board of Brokers has suggested to Governor Sulzer the names of McGuire, Parish, Clarkson and De Selding and any one or all of these men would do the board credit.

On the theory of home rule and also because we have a building department, a fire department and a health department here in New York to look after our loft buildings and the local conditions affecting them, so far as the safety of occupants is concerned, I do not believe in the creation of this Industrial Board, but it is essential that as long as we are going to have a Real Estate Board that the real estate interests co-operate with it in every possible manner, with the full assurance on the part of those interested in this legislation that owners will be treated fairly and squarely.

In my judgment the real estate interests owe much to the leaders in the Assembly and the Senate for being willing to listen to any fair amendment that was proposed, and what amendments were secured were secured with the assistance of Abram I. Elkus, counsel for the Factory Commission, and Henry Morgenthau, who took an active interest in the matter.

What real estate men should do from now on is to urge the appointment of one or more members on the Industrial Board from the list furnished by the Real Estate Board of Brokers, and if it is seen that they are actually taking the interest that should be taken in the matter there is no question but what they will receive representation. As a matter of fact, it is estimated that the Real Estate Board of Brokers represents in one capacity or another $5,000,000,000 of the $8,000,000,000 worth of New York City real estate.

NO MORE CELLAR BAKERIES.

Old Bakeries May Remain on Certain Conditions, but New Ones Prohibited.

Cellar bakeries of the sort properly so designated will not be permitted to be built in the future in New York City, but existing bakeries in cellars may remain, if they comply with certain health regulations. This is the purport of an act of the Legislature that was signed by the Governor last Saturday.

It is an amendment to the labor law and owes its origin to the Factory Investigating Committee of the Legislature, of which Senator Wagner was chairman. The bill was not among the twenty factory bills first introduced, and took real estate interests by surprise. Owners were much relieved to learn that the new amendments do not abolish existing bake shops, on which the owners of real estate used in part for business purposes depend for considerable income. In fact, the market value of such property is based on the presence of the facilities for carrying on a bakery or confectionery business.

Exceptions Made.

The prohibition does not extend, however, to bakeries and confectioneries hereafter built which have ceilings ten feet high above the floor and four and a half feet above the curb level of the street, when located in the front of a building. The Health Department is to have exclusive jurisdiction to enforce the provisions of the article, but the building plans for new bakeries must hereafter be first submitted to the Department of Labor.

Comments on the motives and influences back of the bill are heard on every hand. Some allege that the object is to drive the small bakeries out of the city and leave the field to the big fellows of "the trust." The following is the substance of the amendments:

Excerpts from the Law.

All buildings, rooms or places used or occupied for the purpose of making, preparing or baking bread, cakes, pastry, biscuit, etc., except kitchens in hotels, restaurants, boarding houses and private residences, are deemed bakeries. A "cellar" is considered to be a room which has more than one-half its height below the level of the curb.

Sanitary Certificates Required.

Hereafter no one may establish, maintain or operate a bakery without obtaining a sanitary certificate from the Department of Labor. Upon the receipt of an application for a certificate the Commissioner of Labor will cause an examination to be made of the premises to see if they conform to the regulations. The certificates must be renewed annually.

No bakery shall hereafter be located in a cellar, and a sanitary certificate will not be issued for any bakery so situated, unless such bakery shall be at least ten feet in height, located in the front part of the building and have its ceiling at least 4 feet 6 inches above the curb; or, if such building is located or intended to be located entirely in the rear part of the building, or to extend from the front to the rear, then the ceiling shall not be less than one foot above the curb level of the street in front of the building, and the bakery shall open upon a yard or courts extending at least six inches below the floor.

Plans for the construction of bakeries in basements must hereafter be submitted to the Commissioner of Labor. The new amendments do not prevent the local health authorities in any city of the first class from exercising any power or regulation now vested in them.

FOR THE INDUSTRIAL BOARD.

Board of Brokers Suggests Names of Four Real Estate Men.

The Real Estate Board of Brokers has recommended to Governor Sulzer for membership of the Industrial Board in the State Department of Labor the names of John L. Parish, David A. Clarkson, of Ogden & Clarkson; J. S. De Selding, of De Selding Brothers, and Lawrence M. D. McGuire. The Industrial Board is provided for in one of the bills introduced by Senator Wagner at the instance of the Joint Legislative Factory Investigating Commission, of which Senator Wagner was chairman, Robert E. Dowling of this city a member, and Abram I. Elkus of this city counsel.

The board will be composed of seven persons appointed by the Governor with the consent of the Senate. Once every two months the members will meet in the office of the Department of Labor in New York City, and will have power to make rules and fix standards in order that the provisions of the law relating to factories may be made effective. Public hearings will be held by the board on all proposed rules, regulations and standards. A violation of any regulation promulgated by the board is to be punished as a misdemeanor.

David A. Clarkson was born in Columbia County, N. Y., March 30, 1858, and was educated at Columbia College. Upon graduating with the degree of bachelor of science in 1881, he entered his father's real estate office in Pine street. The elder Clarkson was a descendant of Matthew Clarkson, the friend of Alexander Hamilton, and a prominent figure in the early history of the State; and his mother was a Livingston. Inasmuch as its senior member represented two old New York City families, the firm of T. S. Clarkson & Co. was naturally one of the leading real estate houses of its period. A contemporary firm of high standing was that of Ogden & Clark. In 1897 Mr. Clark retired from business, and so also did T. S. Clarkson, David A. Clarkson's father; and the new firm of Ogden & Clarkson was organized, consisting of Henry Ogden, David A. Clarkson and a brother of the latter. Mr. Ogden died about four years later.

As an illustration of the shifting of the principal seat of activity in the real estate market in recent years, it may be said that the firm of Ogden & Clarkson remained downtown until 1909, when it removed to Fifth avenue, and later to its present quarters at 17 West 30th street. Mr. Clarkson was president of the Real Estate Board of Brokers for three terms, in 1906 to 1908, inclusive, and since then been a member of the board's legislative committee.

Joel S. De Selding was born October 7, 1859, in Parkersburg, Va., whence his parents moved to New York in 1860. Graduated from Adelphi Academy of Brooklyn, he was sent to the University of Virginia.

He entered the real estate business in Brooklyn in 1884 under his own name. In December, 1890, Herman De Selding was taken in as partner, and since then the firm has been De Selding Bros. In 1887 Mr. De Selding was instrumental in the development of Flatbush. Soon after that he moved his business to New York City. From 1902 to 1906, inclusive, he was a governor of the Real Estate Board of Brokers; in 1903 and 1904 he was vice president, and in 1905 president.

He was the first agent of the Singer Building, and continued as such for fourteen years; has been active in the interests of the Playgrounds Association of Brooklyn since its inception; is the treasurer of the Social Service League of the Holy Trinity Church of Brooklyn, and is a member of the Hamilton Club and of the Nassau Country Club. He is a member of the ways and means and admission committees of the Real Estate Board of Brokers, and was for many years a member of the board's legislative and taxation committee.

Lawrence M. D. McGuire was born in New York City and was educated at De La Salle Institute, Manhattan College and Columbia College. He has been in the real estate business in this city for fifteen years. Mr. McGuire is a member of the board of governors of the Real Estate Board of Brokers, president of the Callahan Estate (Inc.), and of the Lawrence Co., and is a trustee of the Italian Savings Bank. His real estate office is at 135 Broadway.

John L. Parish was born in Chicago, Ill., Feb. 22, 1854. Educated for the profession of law, he was admitted to the bar in 1876, at the age of 22. Attracted by the prospects offered by the rapid development of the Far West, he opened an office at Parsons, La Bette County, Kansas, but presently returned to Chicago in consequence of an opportunity to form an advantageous partnership there. His connection with Col. John W. Bennett, under the firm name of Bennett & Parish, insured a large practice and a wide acquaintance. In 1880 he was elected to the State Legislature from the leading Republican district in Chicago.

The position he took in the Legislature on public questions attracted the attention of Melville E. Stone, then part owner of the Chicago Daily News, who induced him to abandon law and join the editorial staff of that paper. In 1883 Mr. Parish was appointed consul to Chemnitz, in Saxony. Returning to New York in 1885, he joined the staff of the Times in a capacity which enabled him to familiarize himself thoroughly with the sources of news relating to public improvements. His special knowledge in this direction led to a connection with The Record and Guide, for which Mr. Parish did notable work in compiling the first history of New York real estate, covering the period from 1868 to 1892. Later on he was real estate editor successively of the Evening Post and the Commercial Advertiser. About fifteen years ago, with several associates, he took over the real estate business left by the late William M. Ryan.

Hearing on Foley-Walker Bill.

A hearing on the Foley-Walker Workmen's Compensation Bill, passed by the Legislature at the request of the State Insurance Department, was held by the Governor on Wednesday of this week. The hearing was largely attended, special trains having brought delegations from New York City, Buffalo, Rochester, Syracuse and Utica. Among those who spoke in favor of the measure were Alton B. Parker and Otto M. Eidlitz. Mr. Eidlitz submitted a petition signed by 600 employers and presented a letter from Mayor Gaynor in which the Mayor said: "I have carefully studied the bill and I am wholly in favor of it. I wish it contained also a provision for pensions for old age."

The hearing, however, developed a very strong opposition, especially from the representatives of organized labor. Daniel Harris, president of the State Federation of Labor, argued against the provision in the bill which permits casualty companies to do business under the act. During the last few years, he said,

GENERAL VIEW HILLCREST, JAMAICA.

William P. Rae Company will conduct a large auction sale of lots here on Decoration Day. For particulars, see page 1053.

these companies have collected $45,000,000 and paid out only $15,000,000. When Mr. Harris was speaking Governor Sulzer interjected: "All the laboring men seem to be opposed to this bill." A number of manufacturers thereupon protested that the 2,500,000 unorganized laboring men in the State were not represented at the hearing. The labor spokesmen, after the hearing, expressed their confidence that the bill would be vetoed by the Governor.

Bills Signed by the Governor.

Among the bills of special interest to the real estate and building professions that have been signed by the Governor are the following, designated by their chapter numbers in the Laws of 1913:

Chapter 284—By Senator Blauvelt, amending section 17 of the Railroad Law, in relation to the acquisition of title to real property.

Chapter 308—By Assemblyman Willmott, amending article 12-a, sections 209, 210, 211, adding new sections 211, 213, 214, 215, renumbering sections 211 and 212 as 212 and 216 respectively of the General Business Law in relation to the operation of the cinematograph or any other apparatus for projecting moving pictures.

Chapter 315—By Assemblyman Weil, amending section 7 of chapter 336 of the Laws of 1903, entitled "An Act to provide for the erection of a court house in the County of New York and authorizing the acquisition of a site therefor," in relation to the compensation of commissioners of estimate and appraisal appointed in pursuance of said act.

Chapter 324—By Assemblyman Kerrigan, amending sections 895 and 897 and adding new sections 888a, 889a and 891a, Greater New York Charter, in relation to the duties and powers of the Department of Taxes and Assessments.

Chapter 326—By Assemblyman Donohue, amending section 1057 of the Greater New York Charter in relation to tax liens.

Chapter 327—By Assemblyman Caughlan, amending section 819 of the Greater New York Charter in relation to plans for water fronts.

Chapter 328—By Assemblyman McGrath, amending section 822, Greater New York Charter, relative to the acquisition of wharf property by the City of New York.

Chapter 329—By Assemblyman Caughlan, amending sections 439, 442 and 970, Greater New York Charter, in relation to playgrounds.

100,000 TAXEATERS.

Property Interests Support Nearly One-Fourth of the City's Total Population.

One hundred thousand men and women are on the city's payroll. On an average each of these will support three other persons, making an estimated total of four hundred thousand people, all of whom thus derive their sustenance directly or indirectly from the city government, which in turn collects by far the greater part of its revenues from real estate.

The owners of real estate not only pay these funds into the city treasury but they keep employed in normal times about one hundred thousand men in the building trades, who represent through their households five hundred thousand more of the city's population. Real estate owners also directly or indirectly furnish all the business transacted by ten thousand real estate men, who provide for, through their family connections or otherwise, thirty thousand more of the city's population.

Altogether fully one million people, or between one-fourth and one-fifth of the entire population of greater New York, owe their livelihood to real estate interests. More than that, it is by revenues almost wholly derived from real estate that the expense of our public utilities is defrayed—the cost of lighting the streets, of supplying water, of removing sewage, of supporting the impoverished, nursing the sick in city hospitals, and maintaining those countless other beneficences which are dependent on municipal appropriations.

UNJUST TAXATION.

How It Has Caused the Volume of Real Estate Transactions to Lessen.

A member of the Brooklyn Board of Brokers, Mr. Sig. Cedarstrom, is about to issue a pamphlet calling attention to the alleged overassessment of property which imposes an unjust burden on taxpayers. Advance proofs have been furnished to the Record and Guide. The first chapter is headed "Unjust Taxation," and is, in part, as follows:

"The enormous and continual increase of the taxes on real estate has reached a point where it demands the careful and serious consideration of everyone who pays taxes, and everyone who has the interest of our great city at heart.

"Since the general real estate depression in the latter part of 1906, which has practically continued up to the present time, the city budget, the total tax levy and the tax rate have annually shown a large and steady increase.

"The Department of Taxes and Assessments during the same period has annually increased the assessed valuation of ordinary real estate for purposes of taxation at an alarming rate. In the six years from 1906 to 1912, the increase was $1,953,166,541.

"The annual reports of the Department of Taxes and Assessments for the years 1907 to 1912, inclusive, fail to justify any of the annual increases in assessments on ordinary real estate, as a whole. The Tax Commissioners submit no facts that would justify the increases made for the years 1907, 1908, 1909, 1910, 1911 and 1912. Ample facts which would justify a reduction, however, appear in the annual report of the Department to the Mayor, and elsewhere.

"That the volume of business transacted in real estate has gradually decreased since 1906, is a matter of record.

"Assessed valuations should not be increased beyond sane limits, upon the erroneous assumption adopted by the Tax Department, that real estate, as a whole, increases annually at the rate of 4 or 5 per cent. Nor is the contention well founded that even an 8 per cent. increase would be reasonable and justifiable.

"The annual report of the Department of Taxes and Assessments, for 1909, page 22, contains the following statement:

"'Any consideration of the assessed value of ordinary real estate must take into account the fact that the assessment is based on the evidence of value given by sales, rentals, etc., during the preceding fifteen months. Assessments must follow the evidence of value, cannot precede it.'

"It is the purpose here to demonstrate the incorrectness of this statement, by the comparison of data and statements of the Tax Commissioners in the annual reports of 1907 to 1912, with such facts as are a matter of public record, readily accessible to the department and of which it has, or should have full detailed data.

"It is a well known fact that real estate values do not increase upon a declining market. Yet, in the face of the assertion that increased assessments 'must follow the evidence of value and cannot precede it,' statistics show a steadily declining market."

WILLIAM J. WELLS.

William J. Wells, of the real estate firm of James N. Wells' Sons, died at his home in New York City, on Sunday, May 11, at the age of sixty-one. Mr. Wells had been in ill health for some two or three years, but had been seriously ill only for five or six weeks. He was born in West 21st street within a hundred feet of the office where he spent his entire business life.

The office is, with one or two exceptions, the oldest in the city, and certainly the oldest remaining in one location. The business was established by Mr. Wells' grandfather, James N. Wells, in 1819, in Hudson street, and was moved in 1835 to the present location, which was then in Chelsea village, and has remained at No. 191 Ninth avenue since 1835.

The original James N. Wells assisted in laying out the Clement C. Moore and Richard Ray farms as suburban properties, and was succeeded by his son, James N. Wells, and his grandsons, James N. Wells and William J. Wells, doing business as James N. Wells' Sons. James N. Wells (third) died in 1908, since which date the business has been carried on under the same name by William J. Wells and James P. Eadie.

For the past seventy-eight years the office has had charge of the largest part of the estates above mentioned, besides doing a general real estate and insurance business.

Mr. Wm. J. Wells had been a member of the Real Estate Board of Brokers since 1900. He was a veteran of the Seventh Regiment, and as a member of one of the old New York families he was interested in some of the older organizations, being a member of the American Institute, the Saint Nicholas Society and a Trustee of the Northern Dispensary. He was active in church and Sunday School work, having been an officer in both the Central Presbyterian and Fourth Fresbyterian churches. He was also a member of the Dunwoodie Country Club and of the New York Athletic Club.

Mr. Wells had no family, and is survived by his wife only. The business will be continued by the surviving partner, James P. Eadie.

Resolutions of sympathy adopted by the governors of the Real Estate Board of Brokers state that the members of the board, through long association with Mr. Wells, had always found him a man of principle and integrity, conducting his business and social relations in accordance with a high standard of ethics; and they justly esteemed him for his fine character and devotion to duty.

BUILDING MANAGEMENT

Conducted by Raymond P. Roberts, Building Manager for the American Real Estate Company.

FIRE-ESCAPES AND EXITS.

What Is Required Under the New Law—Large Discretion with Industrial Board.

NO more important information for building managers and owners can be given by the Record and Guide at this time than a clear explanation of the new amendments to the Labor Law in relation to fire-escapes and exits in buildings that are used in any part for manufacturing purposes and the limitation of the number of occupants in factories.

The bill as originally introduced (Senate 721) was a very drastic one, particularly in respect to existing buildings; but as finally amended it leaves large discretionary authority over buildings not over six stories high with the industrial board or advisory committee to be appointed by the Governor. In fact, in the case of low buildings the amendments obtained through the efforts of the real estate organizations of this city practically supersede the other provisions of the bill.

Exception for Six-Story Buildings.

The original bill required that stairways in existing buildings should be enclosed in fireproof partitions. This requirement was modified by striking out the word "fireproof" and substituting "fire-resisting materials." More than that, whenever in the case of any existing factory building not over six stories in height the Industrial Board shall find that the requirements relating to stairway enclosures can be dispensed with, or modified without endangering the safety of persons employed in such buildings, then the board has power to adopt such rules and regulations as will in its opinion meet the conditions existing in the buildings.

The Industrial Board is also endowed with power to determine and specify what materials other than fireproof materials, are "fire-resisting" materials, when these are required by any provision of the statutes.

Otherwise the new amendments therefore concern more particularly buildings more than six stories high and those hereafter erected when of a height exceeding four stories. The equipment of fire-escapes and exits that will be required in the case of future buildings and the alterations that may be necessary in old buildings more than six stories high are here indicated. Six new sections are added to Chapter 31 of the Consolidated Laws of 1909.

Two Exits from Each Floor.

All factory buildings hereafter erected more than four stories in height shall be of fireproof construction. From every floor area there shall be not less than two means of exit remote from each other, one of which on every floor above the ground floor shall be an interior enclosed fireproof stairway, or an exterior enclosed fireproof stairway, and the other shall be a stairway or a horizontal exit. No point in any floor area shall be more than one hundred feet distant from the entrance to one such means of exit. One additional such exit must be provided for every five thousand square feet additional area. In every building over one hundred feet high there shall be at least one exterior enclosed fireproof stairway which shall be accessible from any point of the building.

Stairways in Future Factories.

All stairways must be constructed of incombustible material and shall have an unobstructed width of at least forty-four inches throughout their length, except that handrails may project not more than 3½ inches into such width. Between successive landings there shall be not more than twelve feet six inches in height. Treads shall not be less than ten inches wide exclusive of nosing, and the rise shall be not more than seven and three-quarter inches. No stairway with winders shall be allowed except as a connection from one floor to another.

Every stairway must be enclosed on all sides by fireproof partitions, the material of which shall be at least four inches thick. Stairways must extend to the roof and lead continuously to the street, or to a fireproof passageway independent of other means of exit.

All doors must open outwardly. At the street level the width of the hallways and exit doors cannot be less than the aggregate width of all stairways leading to them. Every door leading to or opening on a stairway shall have an unobstructed width of at least 44 inches.

All elevator and dumbwaiter shafts, vent and light shafts, pipe and duct shafts, hoistways and all other verticle openings leading from one floor to another must be enclosed throughout their height on all sides by enclosures of fireproof material. All openings in such enclosures must be provided with fireproof doors or windows having metal frame and wired glass.

Requirements for Existing Buildings.

No factory may be conducted in any structure heretofore erected unless such building shall conform to the following requirements:

Every building over two stories in height must have on each floor two means of exit or escape from fire, remote from each other, one of which on every floor above the ground floor shall lead to, or open on, an interior stairway, or to an exterior enclosed fireproof stairway. The other shall lead to such a stairway, or to a horizontal exit, or to an exterior screened stairway; or when, in the opinion of the Industrial Board, the safety of the occupants of the building would not be endangered thereby, to fire-escapes on the outside of the building.

No point on any floor of such factory shall be more than one hundred feet distant from the entrance to one such means of exit. Whenever egress may be had from the roof to an adjoining or nearby structure, every stairway serving as a required means of exit shall be extended to the roof. All such stairways must extend to the first story and lead to the street or to an unostructed passageway to a street or area affording safe exit to the street.

Stairway Enclosures.

All interior stairways serving as required means of exit in buildings more than four stories in height, and the landings, platforms and passageways connected therewith shall be enclosed on all sides by partitions of fire-resisting material extending continuously from a basement. The word "fireproof," preceding the word partitions was stricken out of the preceding section.

When a stairway extends to the top floor of the building such partitions shall extend to three feet above the roof.

All openings in such partitions must be provided with self-closing doors constructed of fire-resisting material, except where such openings are on the exterior wall of the buildings.

When Not Over Six Stories.

Whenever in the case of existing buildings not over six stories in height, the Industrial Board shall find that the requirements of this and the last preceding subdivision relating to stairway enclosures can be dispensed with or modified without endangering the safety of persons employed in such buildings, the Industrial Board shall have power to adopt such rules and regulations as may, in its opinion, meet the conditions existing in such buildings, which rules and regulations may make such requirements inapplicable, or modify the same in such manner as it may find to be adapted to securing the safety of persons employed therein.

Meaning of "Fireproof Materials."

The Industrial Board shall also determine, and in its rules shall specify what materials, not being fireproof materials within the meaning of the law, are fire-resisting materials. Fire-resisting materials, when required by the provisions of the chapter, shall conform to the requirements of such rules and regulation.

The Industrial Board shall have power to adopt rules and regulations permitting, under conditions therein described, as a substitute for the stairway enclosures herein required, the use of partitions heretofore constructed in such manner and of such fire-resisting material as have heretofore been approved by the local building authorities. In such case, however, every opening in the enclosing partitions shall be provided with firedoors.

Doors.—Where five or more persons are employed on any floor of a factory every door on such floor shall open outwardly or be double swinging doors. All exit doors in the first story, including the doors of the vestibule must open outwardly.

Fire-Escapes.—Outside fire-escapes must be constructed so as to sustain a live load of ninety pounds per square foot, with a factor of safety of four. Openings leading to fire-escapes must have an unobstructed height of at least six feet and must extend to the floor level, or within six inches of it.

Such openings will have metal frames and be provided with doors constructed of fireproof material and wired glass where glass is used. Balconies will be four feet wide and have a landing not less than twenty-four inches square at the head of every stairway. Stairways to connect the balconies will be not less than twenty-two inches wide, inclined not more than forty-five degrees and shall have treads not less than eight inches wide and capable of sustaining a live load of four hundred pounds per step with a factor of safety of four.

When not erected on the front of the building, safe and unobstructed egress shall be provided from the foot of the fire-escape by means of an open court or fireproof passage connected with the street.

(2) No door or window on any floor shall be obstructed by metal bars, grating or wire mesh. A clearly painted sign shall be placed over every exit.

(3) There must be at all times maintained continuous safe and unobstructed passageways on each floor at least three feet wide directly to every means of exit, including passenger elevators and outside fire-escapes. No door leading into or out of any factory shall be locked or fastened during working hours.

(4) The Industrial Board has the power to establish standards of construction, equipment and maintenance of factory buildings, and the means and adequacy of exits therefrom, in order to carry out the purposes of the statute.

The effect of the foregoing provisions is not to supersede the requirements of any general or special law or ordinance, but to have the new provisions observed as well. They supersede, however, all provisions inconsistent with their purpose.

On Filing Plans.

Before the construction or alteration of a building the plans and specifications must be filed with the Commissioner of Labor for his approval.

Limitation of Number of Occupants.

The number of persons who may occupy any factory above the ground floor will be limited to such a number as can safely escape from such building by the means of exit provided in the building.

(1) In buildings hereafter erected no more than fourteen persons shall be employed on any one floor for every twenty-two inches in width of stairway.

(2) In buildings heretofore erected no more than fourteen persons shall be employed on any one floor for every eighteen inches in width of stairway.

(3) For every additional sixteen inches over ten feet in height between two floors, one additional person may be employed on the upper of such floors for every eighteen inches of width of stairway.

(4) A deduction of ten per cent. will be made for winding stairs in counting the capacity of such stairway.

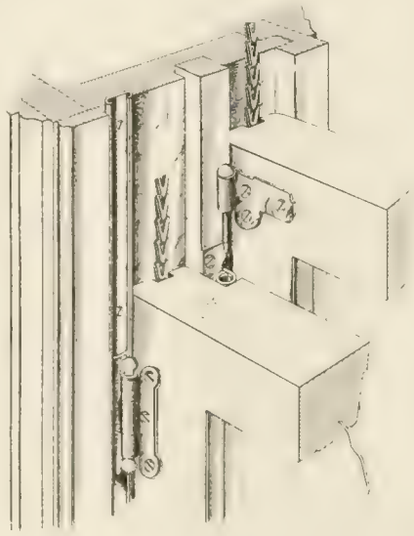
(5) In any building where the stairways and stairhalls are enclosed in fireproof partitions or where at the time the Act take effect, the stairways and halls are enclosed in partitions of brick, concrete, terra-cotta blocks or reinforced concrete, in either of such cases as many additional persons may be employed on a floor as can occupy the enclosed stairhall or halls on that floor, allowing five square feet to each person.

(6) Where a horizontal exit is available, as many people may be employed on such floor as can occupy the smaller of the two spaces on such floor on either side of the fire wall; or can occupy the floor of the adjoining building connected either by an opening in the wall or by an exterior bridge.

(7) In a fireproof building having firewalls dividing a floor, as many people can be employed on that floor as can occupy the smaller of the two spaces, making the usual allowance of five square feet for each person.

Allowance for Sprinklers.

(8) Where an automatic sprinkler system has been installed the number of operatives can be increased fifty per cent. over the number indicated in subdivision one.



NEW THINGS

A General Utility Window.

Patents are pending for further improvements to the Facile double-hung hinged window, which will make it conform in every detail to any use to which a window can be put. The improved window is of regular construction, but has some slight change upon one side, which, however, involves no extra expense for either the frame or the sash. It is shown in the accompanying illustration.

The device, which is already upon the market, is being demonstrated daily at the offices of the Facile Window Company (Inc.), Flatiron Building, 23d and Broadway, between the hours of 8:30 and 5:30, with full sized sashes taken from stock. In operation the window may be adjusted readily to conform to any condition of ventilation desired. The window panels may be swung inward from the side or outward from the bottom, in double or single sashes, or it can be raised or lowered just as an ordinary window is operated, so as to meet any atmospheric condition or conform to the wind without regard to the direction from which it is blowing, so as not to interfere in any way with loose papers or draperies in an office or apartment.

The Architects' Edition of the 1913 catalog is now ready for distribution and any architect who does not receive a copy is invited to notify the company and one will be sent gratis.

A Curtainless Shower Bath.

Andrew E. Kenney, of North Plainfield, N. J., has been granted a patent for a shower bath of novel design. The idea is a combination of a pair of nozzles located in substantially the same horizontal plane and at a point above the rim of the tub, a second pair of nozzles located above the first pair in substantially the same horizontal plane, each pair of nozzles disposed to direct their streams on converging and downwardly inclined lines whereby the streams from all the nozzles will fall within the confines of the tub. The device is to be used in tubs having hot and cold water faucets.

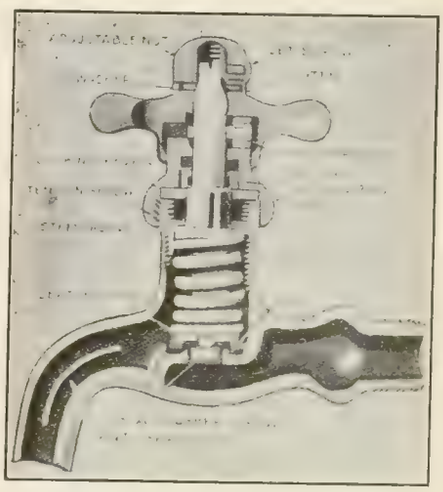
A Leak Detector.



James B. Clow & Sons Co., of 17 Battery place, are introducing on the market what they call an Aquaphone, which, as its name implies, is a device for listening to water as it escapes in leaks or leaky faucets in buildings. It is the same in appearance as a telephone receiver. To use it, the regular rod used to turn on or off the water at the street service is placed in position. The metal rod at the back of the aquaphone is placed in contact with it. If any water is running through the valve to which the rod is attached, it can be heard when the ear is placed to the receiver, as in an ordinary telephone conversation. This instrument is sensitive to the smallest leaks of water.

Bending Cast Iron.

Few mechanics know that cast iron can be bent or straightened, as the case may be. For example, take a piece of flat cast iron, heat it and place it on a level, solid surface and strike it lightly with a ballpeen hammer. If this simple experiment is tried, it will be found, to the surprise of the experimenter, that metal of this kind readily yields to the light blows of a hammer. Do not strike hard enough to break or crack the casting.

A Non-Splashing Bibb.

The H. Mueller Manufacturing Co., of 254 Canal street, has a bibb which commends itself highly to architects as well as owners in that it has a non-splashing feature. The accompanying illustration shows what the anatomy of the device is. It will be seen at once that the current coming through the vent is controlled so that the stream falls in such a way as not to throw the water outwardly from the tap no matter how high the pressure behind it may be. It has a special application in buildings where their high street pressure is found or where water drops from a storage tank located more than a normal distance from the ground.

"J. B. Bakelite" Approved.

The National Board of Fire Underwriters under date of March 10 formally approved of so-called "J. P. Bakelite," manufactured by the Johns-Pratt Co., of Hartford, Conn., of which the H. W. Johns-Manville Co., of this city, is the sole agent. This is an insulating material having high electric strength. It is not strictly non-combustible, and, although somewhat brittle, has moderate mechanical strength. Its absorption of moisture is very small and it is affected little, if at all, by oils or acids. It is suitable for use where a material molded in shapes or flat pieces is desired for use in electrical appliances, where it will not be exposed to high temperatures, and where a material having the properties indicated above is required for parts or bases of electrical appliances.

That the great real estate interests of New York are not without influence in the councils of state when they act together is proven by the radical modifications made in the factory bill that property owners were most concerned about. They have power if they will only use it.

It is a good sign that the construction of private houses in the suburbs keeps on expanding, undisturbed by developments in the market for city real estate. General economic conditions cannot be altogether hopeless when the middle class population has the savings at command to build houses on a notable scale.

The State League of Savings and Loan Associations will hold its twenty-sixth annual convention at Newburgh on June 5 and 6. Among the topics to be discussed are the modifications of the ordinary monthly payment mortgage that have been tried with notable success by four of the leading associations in the league.

The Monthly Bulletin of the California Development Board reports a boom in building construction on the Pacific Coast, in anticipation of the opening of the Panama Canal. Many new factories are being established, and the April building permits in San Francisco and Los Angeles rose from $4,500,000 in 1912 to $8,200,000 this year.

Governor Sulzer, on Thursday of this week, vetoed eleven bills relating to administrative matters in New York City. One of them was the two-platoon firemen's bill, which he said he should have signed if it had not been for the new home rule act. With the Governor taking this consistent attitude, the city is assured, for a time at least, of a very considerable measure of autonomy.

Location of Subway Stations.

The latest list of express stations on the new subways does not include any changes of importance. The decision has been definitely made to place an express station of the Seventh Avenue subway at 14th street. This will give the West Side subway one more express station than the East Side subway—the one situated at the Pennsylvania Station; but the running time will be less than it is at present, because the route will be shorter. A journey from Wall street to Times Square via the Seventh avenue subway will take some minutes less than it now does by the present subway, without reckoning the necessary change under existing conditions from an express to a local. The connections between the centre of business downtown and the centre of business uptown will be enormously improved. A passenger who wishes to reach Greeley Square or the Pennsylvania Station will have two routes between which to choose, and the journey should not take more than from five to seven minutes.

A passenger who wishes to reach Times Square will not be so well off. He will either be obliged to take the Interborough West Side line, or if he takes the other route according to present plans he will have to change from an express to a local at Broadway and 34th street. If the Public Service Commission persists in its decision not to place an express station on the Broadway route at 42d street the 34th street centre will have a substantially better connection with the Financial District than the 42d street centre, and in the long run that should constitute an important advantage in favor of 34th street in the competition between the two centres. At present Greeley Square has a marked advantage over Times Square as to the kind of business transacted in its vicinity.

The southern centre transacts a much larger volume and better quality of retail trade and its office buildings contain a better quality of business tenants. Times Square will have the advantage of a more direct connection with Queens by the Steinway tunnel, of a shuttle connection with an express station on the East Side subway, and of the same kind of a connection with the enormously important Grand Central Station. On the other hand, Greeley Square will have the advantage of the New Jersey tunnel, which is not likely to be extended to 42d street for a number of years, of express stations on both the West Side subway and of the Pennsylvania Station. At present the traffic on the Pennsylvania is very small compared to the traffic of the Grand Central, but it has greater possibilities of increase. As soon as that station is properly connected with the subway system of Manhattan, and as soon as the Long Island Railroad is electrified throughout the whole of its suburban territory, an enormous expansion will take place in the Pennsylvania traffic. Altogether it looks as if on the balance Greeley Square will be more convenient of access to a larger proportion of the population of the Metropolitan district than will Times Square.

South of Twenty-Third Street.

In a recent speech to the members of the Central Mercantile Association Mayor Gaynor was well advised in bidding them to stick to the business neighborhood in which they are interested, viz.: the district south of 23d street. Undoubtedly that district has passed through its worst period and the improvement which has already been begun will be continued at an accelerated rate. The neighborhood may lose a few more of those retail stores which make their appeal to a selected class of customers, but such losses have already been fully discounted. In respect to the wholesale trade and the more popular department stores, its position is certain to improve. The over-production of loft buildings has ceased and the result will be a gradual filling up of existing vacancies and in some cases a gradual restoration of rents to somewhere near their former level. This process has already begun, but it will set in still more strongly during the coming summer and fall. As for the more popular retail trade, it is holding its own, and it assuredly has a much improved prospect ahead of it.

The new subway system will be beneficial to many parts of the city but to none will it bring more substantial benefits than the district south of 23d street, between Broadway and Seventh avenue. That district was built up as a retail and wholesale centre under the transit conditions established by the elevated railroads, and it has suffered since the subway brought about a redistribution of traffic and of population. But as soon as the new system gets into operation it will regain all that it has lost and more. The Broadway subway, the Seventh avenue subway and the 14th street tunnel to Brooklyn will bestow upon it a closer connection with the city, as a whole, than the business sections of the East Side will ever possess. It will have every transit convenience possessed by Greeley and Long Acre Squares, except the two railway stations and the Steinway tunnel. There will be express stations at 14th street on both the Broadway and the Seventh avenue subways, which will be a great boon to the department stores on Sixth avenue. Those stores will be connected with hundreds of thousands of possible customers on Washington Heights, in The Bronx, in Queens and all over Brooklyn, who at present find them very inaccessible, and they will have the advantage of a specially intimate and quick connection with the district in Brooklyn served by the new 14th street tunnel. Under such conditions there is no reason why business should keep on shifting its centre farther and farther north. In the past, it has shifted in that direction because that part of the population, which was moving north was better connected with the centre of business than that part of the population which settled to the east and west of Manhattan. The most important transit routes ran north and south. Hereafter the longitudinal transit lines will be balanced by equally effective lateral subways and the central districts of Manhattan should not only keep their existing availability of business purposes but actually become more available.

Reforming the State Public Service.

The Legislature that has recently adjourned will be very much abused during the next few weeks because it refused to pass satisfactory legislation establishing state-wide direct primaries; but whatever we may think of its obduracy on this point, it has undoubtedly passed a great deal of excellent legislation, and it has passed on the whole an unusually small amount of bad legislation. The grant of home rule which it has made to the cities of the state may well constitute a profoundly beneficial measure, although it is impossible to predict at present just what its results will be. More specifically advantageous have been the various measures which have been taken to introduce some kind of efficiency and accountability into the financial machinery of the state.

For the first time in its history there has been introduced a proper method of auditing the accounts of the several departments, which will prevent waste and graft, even though it does nothing to improve the manner in which the money is appropriated. A long step in the direction of a responsible method of preparing a state budget has been taken by the establishment of a budget commission, consisting of the chief executive officers of the state, the presiding officers of the two houses of the Legislature and the chairman of their financial committees. This commission will prepare a scientific budget that will be submitted to the Legislature and which will be drawn up with an eye to the interests of the whole state. In the course of time this commission may well obtain functions almost as responsible as those of the Board of Estimate and Apportionment. Finally, one of the members of the commission will be the chairman of a permanent Department of Economy and Efficiency whose duty it will be to prepare the work of the budget commission by receiving statements of appropriations requested by the several departments, and investigating both the needs of the department and the efficiency of their work. All this will tend to consolidate the state administration and make it a far better agent of the public service than it ever has been in the past. The state owes a great deal both to Governor Sulzer for initiating this re-organization and to the Legislature for adopting it. The reforms are in line with the steps which Wisconsin and other progressive states have taken in the direction of an improved method of appropriating and spending the money raised by taxation.

THE WEEK IN REAL ESTATE.

The week's trading was extremely limited in volume and was almost wholly professional in character. The private sales that were reported hardly exceeded in number the transactions made public in the course of a single day's business in prosperous times. There was practically no cash demand for investment property, although a number of investment owners exchanged vacant lots or antiquated holdings for modern buildings, particularly elevator apartment houses. Even the professional element remained inactive. The deals in which operators figured as buyers were widly scattered, representing isolated and infrequent bargains. There was no center of activity, such as is seen when buyers act in response to some common conviction as to prospects in given sections or classes of property. Thus, no movement was observed within the sphere of influence of the Lexington Avenue subway or of the Broadway subway.

Under existing conditions, the quiet which prevails in the real estate market is, of course, a sign of strength. It means that holders of real estate are not in a frame of mind to reduce prices. The intrinsic soundness of the market is further evidence of the remarkably small number of foreclosure sales that are taking place. In other words, even where, in consequence of increased taxes and decreased rents, property is not bringing normal returns, owners regard current conditions as purely temporary, the result largely of overbuilding in recent years, when capital has been plentiful in the mortgage loan market because of the limited demand for it in general industry. It is felt that when the tariff and other political questions are settled and the Balkan situation has been cleared up, industry must revive on a sufficiently large scale to prevent the mortgage loan market from again becoming a dumping ground for idle capital. A period of inactivity in building is looked for, during which, it is believed, net rents will recover through the taking up of housing that is now vacant.

A feature of the market that is distinctly encouraging is a progressive expansion in the volume of construction of small private houses in the suburbs. This is reflected very strongly in the Dodge reports. It shows that the purchasing power of the moderately well-to-do element of the population is increasing and that there is a desire to invest surplus savings in real estate where such an investment tends towards economy in living expenses or promises a fair income. In short, there is reason to believe that investment sentiment continues to take a favorable view of real estate ownership and that, with the improvement in renting conditions that must be brought about by a brief let-up in building, there will be a general recovery in city, as well as in suburban, property.

CITY SHOULD KEEP FAITH.

Washington Heights Owners Protest Against the Proposed Freight Terminal.

Editor of the RECORD AND GUIDE:

On behalf of the committee of owners of property fronting on Riverside drive, between 135th and 155th streets, we wish to urge you to oppose as energetically as possible the proposed plan of the New York Central Railroad for establishing a freight terminal west of Riverside Drive, between those streets. The owners of property fronting on the Drive, and indeed owners of property in Washington Heights generally, will be seriously and injuriously affected if the plans are adopted and put into operation.

Less than five years ago Riverside Drive was extended from 135th street to 158th street and put under the jurisdiction of the Park Department. The cost of this improvement exceeded $3,085,000, half of which was paid by the city at large; the owners of property fronting on the Drive were assessed on an average of $20,000 for each block front. In reliance on the performance of the Park Drive thus established, and the continuance of the magnificent view over the Hudson enjoyed by this portion of Manhattan, real estate along the Drive has been improved with handsome elevator apartments, many of them twelve stories, fireproof and of the finest type of construction.

The investment along this section of the Drive is close to $10,000,000. Now the owners are threatened with the startling proposal to establish along the waterfront a large freight yard and dock system which will ruin the district for residential purposes, drive away tenants and destroy present values. The tracks now there are to be multiplied into 37 or more; the six tracks near the Drive are to be elevated; and the entire yard and its approaches are to remain uncovered—a noisy, unpleasant and permanent nuisance to the neighborhood. The city park established at so great a cost will be sacrificed. A mere inspection of the plans, which will be on public view at the Grand Central Depot, will show the heavy damages about to be inflicted.

The injustice of the matter is patent, and property owners generally throughout the city who can contemplate similar blows to present values in other portions of the city at other times should be up in arms against the proposal. The heavy assessment paid by property owners fronting on Riverside Drive and the heavy investment in residential buildings along the Drive, made on the implied promise that this part of the Drive would be preserved as a park, make this contemplated action, which will destroy the value of the district for residential purposes, grossly unfair.

Further, the location of the railroad yard at this point is contrary to all sane ideas of city planning. To plant a commercial development in the midst of a residential section, instead of putting it where it would feed and develop a new section, or increase the value of a district already devoted to commercial purposes, is not only inartistic, it is ruinous from a financial point of view, lowering assessed values to the detriment of the city, as well as of the owners, and by the threat of constant uncertainty jeopardizing real estate investments all over the city.

This is not the case of a commercial development gradually and in the natural course of events encroaching upon an old residential section where the increasing land values more than balance the decline and loss of value in the old buildings. This project suddenly and deliberately thrusts upon a newly developed section a commercial neighbor which will inevitably diminish the value of the land and tend to destroy the value of buildings just erected for residential purposes.

The city by its own act is about to sacrifice its own investment in the park and do incalculable damage as well to private investments in the same neighborhood. A development of this sort could be of real value to the city, and increase values of real estate, if placed at or near a commercial section where it would add to the land values by causing rapid improvement and development, or near a tenement section where it would increase values by aiding the renting to tenants.

The proposed plan locates the yard in that section where it will do infinite harm and no good. Whether the remedy is to refuse this freight yard to the New York Central altogether, or to insist that it be located elsewhere, or to order it covered over, the property owners in the district affected are justified in demanding as a matter of justice to them, of security to all real estate investors and investments, and of benefit to the city at large that the portion of the present plans to which these objections are raised be condemned and prevented from going into operation.

A Beautiful Boulevard Inaccessible.

Editor of the RECORD AND GUIDE:

While using The Record and Guide in preparation of a real estate expert testimony case in which I was employed, I noticed in the issue of March 12, 1910, an article headed "The Importance of Having a Suitable Approach to the Grand Boulevard and Concourse."

On April 9, 1910, you published an article by the undersigned, in which I outlined what I considered a better plan than the one mentioned in the article of March 12, 1910.

In your issue of April 16, 1910, you published the result of an interview on this important subject with Mr. Louis Risse, who was Chief Engineer of the Department of Street Improvements in The Bronx in 1892. Three years have passed and a suitable approach to this beautiful Concourse seems as far distant as ever.

It is indeed a shame that something is not done to complete a suitable approach, and I think it is up to all interested in real estate to see that it is started, and started without further delay. Anyone having occasion to use the Concourse at the present time knows the inconvenience experienced in getting on the roadway.

Here is one of the grandest roadways in the country, with no approach from the south.

Let us all get busy and try to get some action on this important matter.

$50,000 FOR VENTILATION.

Part of Anderson Bequest to Be Used for Scientific Research.

D. D. Kimball, the ventilating engineer, who co-operated with the Record and Guide in its ventilation campaign three years ago, received word this week that in all probability the recommendation that a ventilation commission be appointed by the Governor would be approved and commissioners would be named on Monday, and that $50,000 was available for use by such a commission, which will consist of nationally recognized ventilation experts, who will serve without pay and will conduct tests, first, to define just what ventilation is, and then to apply that information in discovering how best to provide adequate ventilation to all conditions of living.

The money that will be used is that made available for work of improving the condition of the poor by the terms of the gift of Mrs. Elizabeth Milbank Anderson. The commission will be permitted to work absolutely unhampered by conditions and will have full freedom in carrying on its work into the myriad branches into which the subject of ventilation may be divided.

Mr. Kimball said yesterday that this probably will be the first general attempt to make a thorough research of the problem of ventilation and its importance to building owners and others in any way interested in the subject of ventilation lies in the fact that the work of the commission will set at rest all doubt as to what really constitutes "proper and sufficient" ventilation, and thus avoid tremendous waste in trying to meet the requirements of the existing laws without obtaining standard results.

Litigation Ended.

The sale by Wilbur Larremore as referee named in two judgments of foreclosure on the steps of the Queens County Court House at Long Island City on May 15 of the property known as Malba at Whitestone, Long Island, marks the end of an extensive and interesting litigation. This was the case in which the Malba stockholders sought to prevent the foreclosure of two mortgages, on the ground of alleged misrepresentation, made at the time they purchased the property and for which one of the mortgages was part payment.

The development and sale of this property, with its beautiful waterfrontage on the north shore of Long Island, will continue as heretofore under the management of the Realty Trust, the parties formerly interested being secured by debenture bonds issued by a new corporation called the Malba Estates Corporation, which has been organized under the laws of the State of New York with a capital stock of $500,000, and which will hold the title to the property.

—They certainly have been rubbing it into real estate during the last few years, and owners are in a mood to politically murder anyone who suggests any more costly public improvements and costly changes in the laws while real estate has to pay for it. It is a suicidal thing for a city to kill the desire to own property.

Court House Estimates.

The Court House Board has requested Guy Lowell, the architect, to obtain from the George A. Fuller Company, Charles T. Wills (Inc.) and the Thompson-Starrett Co. rough estimates of the cost of the building based on his plans. The plans were submitted this week to the Municipal Art Commission for a preliminary survey and report. As some question has been raised about the possibility of good ventilation, Mr. Lowell has been requested to appoint the firm of Clark, McMullen & Riley as experts to study this question. Under the terms of the contract, Mr. Lowell will pay the fee of certain experts. Walter Cook is the consulting architect for the Court House Board. The forms of the contracts for excavating and boring on the site are being drawn up. Just as soon as the board is ready to start actual construction work the city will take title to the land. A hearing on the report of the commissioners in condemnation proceedings will be held on May 23.

BUILDING MATERIALS AND SUPPLIES

HOW THE PORTLAND CEMENT INDUSTRY IS DISCOUNTING THE EFFECT OF POSSIBLE TARIFF LEGISLATION.

The First of a Series of Articles on How the Market Will Meet the New Conditions.

SMALL quantity business in all lines of building material continues active as reported on the floor of the Building Material Exchange this week, but it is significant that prices, with the single exception of common brick, are being rigidly held. Manufacturers are already discounting tariff talk and are trying patiently to wait the time when the Administration measure finally becomes law.

The wholesale building materials market does not look for any general cut in prices even after the new law goes into effect, as far as the east is concerned. The recent passage of the "Full Crew" railroad bill in New York and New Jersey is expected to be followed by stiffer freight rates to this market and the current strikes in certain lines, particularly in the clay products department is sure to result, not only in a greater scarcity of labor, but in higher wages. These two factors alone will offset any possible effect a reduction in imposts might have.

TARIFF AND PORTLAND CEMENT.

An Intimate Survey of the Market by W. P. Corbett,

Secretary and General Manager Sales of the Alsens Portland Cement Co.

IT HAS been stated that builders are postponing operations in the East pending a possible readjustment of market prices for certain lines of building materials if the existing tariff laws are changed. The first of a series of articles to be published on this page setting forth the true status of the various building materials covering the Metropolitan district in relation to any possible change in prices resulting from prospective changes in impost charges is supplied by a man who, as representative of a company manufacturing and selling Portland cement on both sides of the Atlantic, is particularly well qualified to speak authoritatively on the past, present and future aspects of the Portland cement market.—Editor.

The Past.

You know that we are too conservative to attempt any definite forecast or prophesy in any such speculative industry as that of Portland cement manufacture.

"We know that the dealers had sufficient acumen to realize, last year, that the manufacturers were tired of doing business at a loss. As they saw mill after mill forced to curtail and others go absolutely bankrupt, they were wise enough to purchase supplies ahead and we understand some dealers in New York City stored stocks as high as 50,000 barrels. However much the accumulation of stock may be exaggerated, there is no doubt that a very large amount of cement was put in store by the leading dealers. Naturally, therefore, the market must take some little time to absorb that stock, and the dealers were very slow to buy at the new price, for the advance has been about 30 cents per bbl. over last year's figures, on the average, for standard brands.

"All reports that we get from our customers and all quotations we see from our chief competitors indicate that they are holding absolutely firm at the $1.58 price in boat lots, f. o. b New York City, including the package. We know that prices have been well maintained, for the reason that many thousands of barrels in orders have been tendered us at slightly below the market price, showing how keenly the dealers were alive to the situation and how ready they were to purchase if they could get even slight concessions. We have been forced to turn down a great deal of business of this kind because we could see no object in taking it at any lower price in view of the excellent conditions which seem to confront us. This will show you that we have a reasonable amount of optimism and are backing that optimism by preferring not to take on orders even from the very best districts except where we can net the prevailing market prices.

The Present.

"The consumption is unquestionably greater than last year. It is true, however, that the capacity, or rather the production, is greater than last year. Nevertheless, the stocks of cement, considering the consumption, are not high, and in our own case are lower than we would like to have them. Our sales have increased materially for every month this year, with one exception, as compared with the corresponding months for last year, and our prices are of course higher. We are working our mill 100 per cent. of capacity and are working Sundays as well as week days and cannot add to our accumulation of stock at all; nor do we expect to be able to do so before next winter. In fact, we are very sure of this, because we already have contracts upon our books which, with only the ordinary amount of business we would get, will keep us working every day in the year, at full capacity, until next winter. That is as far ahead as we would care to forecast our own position, much less that of the industry in general.

"There is one thing, however, that can safely be said, namely: that the leading manufacturers have seen the fallacy of attempting to sell cement below cost, even with the unfortunate desire of killing off some of their competitors. Such absolutely blind competition should be relegated to the past, and it is a great mistake for any company, in any line of business, to attempt to consider themselves national distributors and to seek a territory, regardless of freight rate or their location, when other mills may be much better situated to take the same business at a lower price and still make a moderate profit. The trouble in the cement industry has been that some mills have been determined to sell in sections where it was utterly impossible for them to compete successfully, and against such competition the opposition would, of course, retaliate and cement has been selling, as you are well aware, at prices below the cost of manufacture, where the highest standard of quality was maintained.

"Prices have not advanced this month, nor was there any expectation that they would. They have remained very firm for all standard brands. There are two or three, or possibly half a dozen cement companies which have been cutting the price here and there, but apparently they have had to do it merely to raise money or to distribute some cement that was not quite up to quality or for some other special reason, because in every such case we have found that they have attempted to keep the quotation strictly confidential and have appeared heartily ashamed of it, and in every such case where we have actually located sales (at a lower price than the general figures now prevailing among the first class and well established companies) we have found that the brand so offered, or the company offering it, was a little below par in some respects.

"We know of no company, whose product is thoroughly well established and where the company itself presents no risk from a financial viewpoint, as to their bag credits, etc., which is not getting plenty of business at prices not less than 90 per cent. bulk in the Lehigh Valley, while the best New York State companies are averaging approximately $1 per barrel bulk at the mill on all their sales. The majority of the mills charge 40 cents per barrel for sacks, so that the price, for instance, in the Lehigh Valley to-day is $1.30, including the cloth sacks, plus the freight rate. In the South and in certain other sections, prices have been about 5 cents lower, in some cases, where a different sort of competition is met and where certain mills still attempt to fight for business so far away.

The Future.

"While many lines of business are apparently rather dull, and while politics, including the tariff, etc., seem to be holding back certain lines, the cement business is not much affected thereby. The great curtailment, the heavy reduction in stocks and the bitter lesson taught those cement companies who preferred to try out the old scheme of 'the survival of the fittest,' in conjunction with the steadily increasing and considerably improved consumption means that only some personal antagonism or factional fight could reasonably bring down the price of cement for this year. Of course nothing is impossible in the cement industry and that is why we always speak guardedly, but every natural condition leads to the supposition and expectation that prices will not be lower for this year, for standard brands of first quality cement, and there is always the chance of a higher price being made necessary by the great demand. The cement manufacturers in general have been characterized as most expert and successful and showing an absolute genius for making high quality cement at a low figure, but being absolutely lacking in ability to sell their product at a price that would show them even the most moderate return for the capital, labor and experience invested.

"It is well recognized generally that the cement companies have been a laughing stock through the unbusinesslike methods in handling and distributing their production. This is shown absolutely by the fact that 90 per cent. of the cement companies this side of the Rocky Mountains, for instance, have failed to earn dividends for perhaps two years, and not 5 per cent. can show their securities selling at par. With the many millions of dollars invested and a business which has shown an increase of enormous proportions and a regular and constantly growing demand, there could hardly be a more severe commentary than the facts stated. As a matter of fact, even the present price of Portland cement is a low one, where a proper depreciation is figured on a proposition which means such an enormous wear and tear and only those companies with a good sized output and the very best equipment, working at reasonably full capacity, can pay a moderate dividend to their stockholders at the present figures. Naturally, therefore, we should expect, in view of the drastic lesson suffered by the leading mills, that they would protect their stockholders and organize selling departments which would compare favorably with their manufacturing ability.

Tariff Will Not Affect Market.

"Any reduction in the duty itself will not affect the market in this vicinity. It may have some little bearing at times on ports not adjacent to any cement factories, but the price of American cement at the present time is so much lower than an equal quality of German or English Portland, that an entire reduction of the duty would not have much bearing.

"The duty originally built up the American cement industry and the money which the German Alsen people put in their own mill, for instance, in this country, would be invested abroad with foreign labor, if there had not been a sufficient duty to not only induce them to come over, but make it absolutely necessary for them to preserve their position in this country. Other foreign capital is employed in the American cement industry to-day, besides that of this company, but now the mechanical ingenuity of the Americans, having had a chance to prove itself, and with sufficient encouragement to make large investments to try it out, has succeeded, to a great extent, in overcoming the lower labor cost abroad, so that we can afford to pay higher prices to labor in this country and still hold our market in most sections without any assistance of a duty. This might not be true, however, of Canada, and as Canada imposes a duty of approximately 50 cents per barrel against American Portland cements, it would be highly improper and unjust that we should have no duty against Canadian cements. There is a combination in Canada which controls a large part of the output sucessfully, which is making a good cement and which is growing very rapdily. At any time when they might meet with an overproduction or a let-up in business, they could ship large quantities of cement across the border and greatly injure some of the plants in this country. Apart from any probability in that line, it should be, in our judgment, a matter of reciprocity and we should not permit a neighbor, so close as Canada, to impose such a prohibitive or arbitrary duty against us without any protection for our manufacturers.

Quality a Safeguard.

"The Belgian cements could get into this country to-day and sell in New York City at as low or lower price than American cements, if there were no duty, but they are generally inferior in quality to the best American cements. The best German or best English cements would be the only ones that would be a fair competitor of the highest type of American Portland and, therefore, on all important contracts, there would be little to fear from them, as their prices would be higher. The price of the very best German Portland, such as Dyckerhoff or Alsen's, would be approximately 50 cents per barrel above the price of American Portland, even with the duty removed, at this time. There would be very good qualities of German cement which could compete successfully with the best American brands, at a little lower prices, but with the American cements so thoroughly established there is, as indicated, nothing to fear from high quality cements from abroad, and temporarily Canada is very busy and would not at present be likely to cause any difficulty. Thus, on the whole, for this year at least, the tariff situation will not have any effect upon the Portland cement industry and we do not think it will in the future."

THE WEEK'S REAL ESTATE NEWS

Brokerage Sales, Auctions, Foreclosure Suits, Building Loans, etc., Together With Brief Personal Items.

Apartment Houses Contributed a Great Deal to the Week's Business.

The news column this week shows activity in apartment house dealing, big apartment houses on Washington Heights in the West 80's and Cathedral Parkway being the most notable transactions. An entire block front on Washington Heights changed hands, and another big parcel figured in a large leasing transaction. Wm. R. Hearst enlarged his holdings in Columbus Circle. Tenement houses and dwellings on the East Side as far north as 92d street were in demand. Nothing conspicuous occurred in The Bronx and Brooklyn markets which would indicate any activity.

The total number of sales in Manhattan this week was 42.

The sales north of 59th street aggregated 30, compared with 15 last week and 34 a year ago.

From The Bronx, 18 sales at private contract were reported, against 14 last week and 20 a year ago.

The amount involved in the Manhattan and Bronx auction sales this week was $814,958, compared with $968,690 last week, making a total since January 1 of $22,349,391. The figure for the corresponding week last year was $1,265,110, making the total since January 1, 1912, $20,321,175.

JAMAICA HILLCREST.

Will Be the Scene of a Big Lot Auction on Decoration Day.

The auction market will be well tested in the several large offerings of lots within the next thirty days, and the sale at Jamaica Hillcrest on Decoration Day, May 30, by William P. Rae Company, auctioneers, should attract wide attention to this most attractive property in the Borough of Queens.

Jamaica Hillcrest is destined to be one of the home show places of Greater New York, being, as it is, at the residential centre of the new Jamaica, that is forming from the shifting of the railroad terminals with the completion of the great union transfer station and the new additional Jamaica station at Union Hall street. The frontage on Hillside avenue, Jamaica's best residential thoroughfare, is over 1,000 feet. It begins three blocks from the new railroad station at the Soldiers' Monument on the corner of Hillside and Bergen avenues. It is only two blocks from Fulton street, the main business artery.

A little over two years ago, the present Jamaica Hillcrest syndicate was formed. It took over the old "Hillcrest of Jamaica" tract and executed one of the most masterly strokes that had been seen in Queens development operations by purchasing the big Wyckoff holdings. This gave a Hillside avenue frontage to the old Hillcrest of Jamaica tract northward over the hill, and imparted the high residential values of Hillside avenue to the entire tract, and made it all accessible for immediate home building.

Members of the Company.

The Jamaica Hillcrest Company embraces Michael Coleman, the realty appraiser for the Equitable Life Insurance Company; John H. Judge, a widely known Manhattan attorney and trustee for many estates; Harrison K. Bird, the stock exchange member of the banking house of Harriman & Company; Adolph Hupfel, Jr., President of the Brewers' Association and large holder of Bronx realty; Charles B. Barclay, of the Barclay estate; John J. Kuhn, of the Brooklyn law firm of Dykman, Oeland & Kuhn; Louis B. Hasbrouck, attorney and trustee; Frederick J. Middlebrook, of the law firm of Bowers & Sands; F. M. Boyd, of the New England Lime Co.; Dr. Charles M. Bellows, of Brooklyn, ex-Sheriff John S. Shea, Frank Jenks, president of Norton Point Land Company; Calvin Tomkins, ex-Dock Commissioner, and Tunis E. Butler, contractor, of Dongan Hills.

The management of the development has been under the supervision of William P. Rae, the well-known appraiser and auctioneer, whose realty operations have covered many years in Brooklyn and Queens, and who won wide fame with his brilliant development of Sea Gate, at the westerly end of Coney Island, which has been gaining new prestige every year.

Fifty Houses Already Built.

Over fifty houses have been erected since the opening of the property in the summer of 1910. The natural hilly country covering this tract has undergone quite a transformation since the introduction of city streets, sewers, water, and gas. Over $250,000 was spent in land development alone, to combine the original attractiveness of the country and at the same time supply all the conveniences as found in the city.

The policy of the company was to offer at auction a limited number of lots in each section as opened up from time to time in the early development of the property, so as to gain the co-operation of every purchaser to its entire tract and stimulate at the same time, a home building movement, which, while accepting from the public the highest bid at auction for some of their holdings, the plan would be mutualy benficial for quick returns and growing profits to both buyer and seller.

The success of the company in disposing of some 800 lots at auction within the last two years and the results following of nearly sixty detached dwellings being erected, has been rather a phenomenal record.

Transit Facilities.

Jamaica, in the Borough of Queens, upon completion of the city's Dual Rapid Transit System, will have better transit connections with Manhattan than any other single center in all Greater New York. The transit as now provided by the Long Island Railroad is unequalled in point of comfort and far ahead of the existing subway lines to upper Manhattan or the Bronx; and the present running time from Union Hall street station, Jamaica, to Herald square, is 18 minutes; and the same to Flatbush avenue station in Brooklyn.

The city transit contracts provide an elevated extension from Cypress Hills station over Fulton street to Grand avenue, Jamaica. (Two short blocks from Hillside avenue at Jamaica Hillcrest.) And with the third tracking of the Broadway and Fulton street elevated lines in Brooklyn, Jamaica Hillcrest will be brought 15 to 25 minutes nearer Manhattan for a 5-cent fare. These elevated lines will be used in connection with the Brooklyn and Williamsburgh bridges, Centre street loop and Broadway subway. The running time from Jamaica Hillcrest to the Centre street loop in Manhattan will be 30 minutes, and to Brooklyn City Hall 22 minutes.

MORRIS PARK SALE.

New Trolley Line Through the Property—Talking About Bargains.

Visitors to Morris Park who go by the Morris Park avenue trolley will be able to ride to the farther limits of the property to-morrow (Sunday, May 18). For three weeks the Union Railway's construction gang has been at work extending the line from its former terminus at Bronxdale avenue through Morris Park to Williamsbridge road, the easterly boundary of the race track property. The new terminus at Williamsbridge road is about half a block from the Woodmansten Inn.

The action of the Union Railway Company officials in building this half-mile extension directly through the center of Morris Park is significant, for it reflects their confidence in the early development of the property following the auction sale which is to begin on May 31. With its detail information as to the volume of traffic produced by its present lines, tapping the built-up sections south and west of Morris Park, it is certain that the company would not have ordered the building of the new line at the present time had it not been apparent that it would produce a substantial revenue in the immediate future. With pavement, concrete sidewalks, and curbs, and trolley line, Morris Park avenue, through the old racetrack, is now a part of one of the main business arteries of that section of The Bronx.

With the completion of this new line there will be no less than six lines of transit comprising twenty tracks, either built on or about to be built in the immediate vicinity of Morris Park. The four-track Westchester & Boston Road and the New Haven's six-track Harlem River Branch have stations on the property. Four blocks from its westerly boundary will be the three-track extension of the subway up White Plains avenue. "This," Vice-President Hedley of the Interborough says, "will be one of the first lines of the dual subway system to be put into operation." Besides the Morris Park avenue trolley, there is also the Union Railway Company's other line on Walker avenue, a block south of Morris Park, and a short distance south of that will be the Bronx extension of the Lexington avenue subway on Westchester avenue.

Can They All Be Sold?

Interest in the Morris Park sale continues to be expressed very largely in the query, "Can they be sold?" Meaning, "Is it possible to find buyers in the present market for 3,019 lots to be sold separately at a single sale held on successive days?"

State Banking Department, realize as well as anybody else what is likely to be the result of putting on the market at one time any such quantity of property as this.

"It would be idle to expect that 3,019 lots could be sold," said Messrs. Day and Davies yesterday, "if the owners had any advance schedule of prices to be realized." The Banking Department has no idea as to what the proceeds of this sale are to be, any more than that anybody with a knowledge of Bronx values might sit down with a paper and pencil and figure out a guess as to what the property will bring. There is but a single object in connection with this offering, and that is to convert the property into cash, and if there are more lots than there are buyers, somebody is going to get the over-supply at low figures, whether the over-supply proves to be 300 lots or the whole 3,000.

"Aside from these facts which make probable a low range of prices there is the other important consideration that 70 per cent. of the purchase price may remain on mortgage for three years at 5 per cent. interest. Thus, even on the basis of the recent prices of nearby property, a purchase in Morris Park will be within the reach of anybody with a few hundred dollars in cash."

Morgenthau, Jr., G. Rosenfeld and F. M. Stein. At a subsequent meeting of the board of directors the following officers were re-elected: M. Morgenthau, Jr., president; Isidore H. NEW SCHOOL SITE.—The report of the Commissioners of Estimate and Appraisal in the matter of acquiring title to the property in the block bounded by Jackson av, East 158th st, Trinity av and East 160th st, Bronx, which was selected as a site for a school, has been filed in the office of the Board of Education. The report will be presented for confirmation in Special Term, Part III, of the Supreme Court, County Court House, Manhattan, on the morning of May 26.

HARLEM RIVER waterfront will be sold at absolute auction next Monday, by Joseph P. Day, under the direction of William L. Turner, special master, appointed by the United States District Court in the action of the Pennsylvania Steel Company against the New York City Railway Company and others, defendants. The sale affects about twelve lots, comprising the block front on the marginal street along the Harlem River, between 94th and 95th sts. The successful bidder will be required to deposit 10 per cent. of the purchase price, pending the acceptance of the bid by the court. The sale will take place at noon, at the north entrance of the court house.

INTERESTING among the recent sales closed on Staten Island is that of what is known as the old log cabin site, on Emerson Hill. The cabin was erected about three years ago by Cornelius G. Kloff, the seller in the present deal, and has been used as a philosophers' retreat, regular meetings taking place, at which various subjects were discussed and questions settled. L. B. Van Slyke bought the property, which contains about 2½ acres of ground, with a frontage of 150 ft. in Douglas rd and commands a view of the ocean and Clove Valley. The buyer contemplates the erection of a 2½-sty residence on site and is considering the moving of the cabin to another part of the property.

CURRENT BUILDING OPERATIONS

Geo. M. Bartlett Wins Competition.

The city of Mt. Vernon has selected the plans of George M. Bartlett of 103 Park avenue, Manhattan, submitted in competition for the Civic Centre (City Hall and Police Station buildings) to be erected in North 5th street, Stevens and Valentine avenues, at a cost of approximately $300,000. The next five prizes won in the competition were awarded to James Gamble Rogers, 11 East 24th street, N. Y. C., No. 1, consisting of $600; G. A. & H. Boehm, 7 West 42d street, N. Y. C., No. 2, $500; William Krais, of Mt. Vernon, No. 3, $400; Delano & Aldrich, 4 East 39th street, N. Y. C., No. 4, $300, and Brazer & Robb, 1133 Broadway, N. Y. C., No. 5, $200. Work on the Police Headquarters building will be started first, and bids will be received for the general construction at once. G. E. B. Williams is chairman of the building committee.

Cass Gilbert to Conduct Competition.

Cass Gilbert, 11 East 24th street, has been chosen by the County Commissioners to conduct the architectural competition for the new City Hall and Court House Annex to be erected at Pittsburgh, Pa. The building is to cost approximately $4,000,000, and the competition will be open to all members of the National Association of Architects. The program of the competition is now being prepared, but will hardly be ready for publication before July 1. The date for submitting plans and the final closing has not yet been considered.

Art Commission Approves Plans.

At the meeting of the Municipal Art Commission on Wednesday plans were finally approved for the new Brooklyn Municipal Building and the Joseph Pulitzer Fountain, the latter to be erected in the 59th street plaza. The Municipal Building is to cost $3,300,000 and will be from designs of McKenzie, Voorhees & Gmelin, 1123 Broadway. The Pulitzer Fountain plans are by Carrere & Hastings, 225 Fifth avenue. The cost of the fountain and the rearrangement of the plaza is estimated at $127,000.

To Start St. George Hotel Annex.

Montrose W. Morris, 82 Wall street, architect, has prepared plans for an eight-story addition to the St. George Hotel in the west side of Henry street, 55 feet south of Pineapple street, Brooklyn. William Tumbridge is the owner. There will be accommodations for one hundred more rooms, with an exterior of brick, marble and granite. The site is now being cleared, and the architect will soon take bids for the general construction.

Plans for a French Theatre.

The French Theatre Company (Inc.), of 500 Fifth avenue, of which A. Baldwin Sloane is in charge, contemplates the erection of a French theatre, probably three stories in height, somewhere in the central theatre district, site for which has not yet been selected. It is understood that tentative sketches have been submitted, but the selection of an architect has not been made.

A Warehouse City.

The plans for the new "warehouse city," which is to be established in connection with the plans agreed upon for the New York Central's West Side improvement, by President John Purroy Mitchel of the Board of Aldermen, as chairmen of the committee of the Board of Estimate, to which the matter was referred, and Ira A. Place, vice-president and counsel for the New York Central, indicate that it will be the greatest group of "stories" in the world. The warehouses, ten stories in height, including the sub-surface floors, which are to be transversed by numerous railroad tracks and switches, are to be ten in number, seven being located on the blocks extending from Eleventh to Twelfth avenue and from 30th to 37th street, and three of them on the blocks extending from Tenth to Eleventh avenue, and from 30th to 33d street. These blocks are each approximately 625 feet wide, and it requires but little figuring to show that ten floors of that size to each of ten buildings, less 425x100 feet for shaft space, the maximum allowance for such purposes in a storehouse, for each of eight floors to each building, leaves net floor space of 9,100,000 square feet, or about 210 acres.

EXPLANATION OF TERMS USED AND RULES FOLLOWED IN COMPILING RECORDS.

Q. C. is an abbreviation for Quit Claim deed, i. e., a deed wherein all the right, title and interest of the grantor is conveyed omitting all covenants and warranty.

C. a G. means a deed containing Covenant against Grantor only, in which he covenants that he hath not done any act whereby the estate conveyed may be impeached, charged or encumbered.

B. & S. is an abbreviation for Bargain and Sale deed, wherein, although the seller makes no expressed consideration, he really grants or conveys the property for a valuable consideration, and thus impliedly claims to be the owner of it.

The street and avenue numbers given in these lists are, in all cases, taken from the insurance maps when they are not mentioned in the deeds. The numbers, it will occasionally be found, do not correspond with the existing ones, owing to there having been no official designation made of them by the Department of Public Works.

The first date is the date the deed was drawn. The second date is the date of filing same. When both dates are the same, only one is given. When the date of drawing is other than in the current year the stated year is given. When both the dates are in the same year the year follows the second date.

The figures in each conveyance, thus, 2:482—10, denote that the property mentioned is in section 2, block 482, lot 10.

It should also be noted in section and block numbers that the instrument as filed is strictly followed.

A $20,000—$30,000 indicates the assessed value of the property, the first figures being for the lot only and the second figures representing both lot and building. Letter P before second figure indicates that the property is assessed as in course of construction. Valuations are from the assessment roll of 1912.

T. S. preceding the consideration in a conveyance means that the deed or conveyance has been recorded under the Torrens System.

Flats and apartment houses are classified as tenements.

Residences as dwellings.

All Christian names, streets, avenues, states and months are abbreviated when possible, also in some instances names of Banks, Trusts and Insurance Companies.

The number in ( ) preceding the serial number to the right of the date line, at head of this page, is the Index number for the Checking Index.

The Star following names of street or avenue in the Bronx Conveyances, Leases and Mortgages indicates that the property recorded is in the annexed district, for which there is no section or block number.

PROGRAM VS. PROTEST IN CITY ECONOMY

Only After the Public Knows What Specific Things it Wants to Have Done in the Next Four Years Will it Know How to Judge Candidates for Office.

——Article III, Part I——

By HENRY BRUERE, Director, Bureau of Municipal Research.

ON APRIL 8, 1913, a group of prominent citizens, who are also large taxpayers or the representatives of large taxpaying interests, issued a demand for economy in city government. Year after year, particularly in seasons when thoughts of election arise, taxpayers have issued similar statements.

Taxpayers' Interest in Government.

To one who stops to think about it, it is a remarkable thing that governments are able to take by power of taxation the large sums that they do take from private property owners. Think of it! In 1913, New York City will collect out of the surplus earnings of taxpayers $151,607,084.85. The economist will say, and with justification, that many of these taxpayers are only giving back to the city that which the city has bestowed upon them through its growth. The fact remains that they do give it back, and each year in increasing sums.

Taxpayers' Interest in Efficiency.

Time after time the suggestion has been made that if taxpayers would contribute a small sum, a fraction of one per cent. of their annual tax bills for continuous observation of city business, many times their contributions would be saved to them in reduced tax bills. This may be true, but it is also true that taxpayers do not look upon the problem of city expenditures with a single mind. What is an imposition to one taxpayer is a benefit to another. City expenditures are a complexity of balancing detriments and benefits. Taxpayer A, who prefers bottled water to the water which the city supplies, because sometimes Croton water is discolored and looks injurious, is in favor of spending $8,000,000 on a filtration plant. Taxpayer B, to whom the cost of bottled water is of no consequence, and who is assured that discoloration does not mean danger in the city's supply, looks with hostility on an $8,000,000 filtration proposal. Taxpayer A, whose children attend private schools, accepts as a burden of citizenship or a duty of patriotism increasing taxes for schools. Taxpayer B, whose children attend public school will vote blinndfolded for any increase in tax bills, if the increase is to be used for public education.

Do All Taxpayers Want Economy?

The problem of economy in municipal expenditures is a problem of ferreting out those expenditures which benefit no one and which work to the injury of all taxpayers. Even when such expenditures are found, it is quite a different thing to arouse sufficient interest in taxpayers to lead them to take the necessary steps to compel economy. The fact of being a taxpayer does not make a man unwilling to tolerate and sometimes to participate in municipal grafting. Taxpayers own disorderly houses and connive at police corruption; taxpayers own saloons and connive at violation of the excise law; taxpayers cause needless expense to the city by failing to take simple precautions against fire. These conflicts between greed and law cost taxpayers money for police salaries, courts and jails. In no class of expenditure has the city been more wantonly exploited than in expenditures for the purchase of land, but all real estate bought in New York City for city purposes is bought from taxpayers. I have yet to hear of a single case, although, doubtless, it may have occurred, where a taxpayer offered to sell his land to the city at assessed valuation.

Where Taxpayers are Blamable.

Taxpayers object to over-assessment, but taxpayers have not made right assessment easy through the registration of the true consideration in sales. Taxpayers own the tenement houses of the city, and taxpayers know or might easily know the provisions of the tenement house law and the sanitary code with which they are required to comply; but it costs the city hundreds of thousands of dollars to make taxpayers comply with these simple precautions against disease and immorality.

Taxpayers as a class, therefore, are neither for nor against efficient government, except at the moment when the tax bill must be paid and efficient government promises a lower bill next time.

As a first step in obtaining real economy in city government I commend to taxpayers in New York City consideration of those things which taxpayers themselves can do to effect economy.

Welfare vs. Retrenchment.

My conviction is that it will continue futile for taxpayers, as taxpayers, to protest against the increasing cost of government, until the public is convinced that better conditions of living can be established as a result of city government activity, if the work of city government is made efficient, and waste is eliminated.

The humblest citizen paying his taxes in the diluted form of rent or increased cost of food, but realizing that extravagance and corruption in city government means less education for his children and less health and protection for his family, has a stronger motive and wider potential influence for economy than can be exercised by the Astor estate with all its millions of taxable property.

Two Things to Be Done.

Taxpayers, if they want lower taxes and more service must do two things:

1. They must organize upon a positive program of activity instead of a negative program of retrenchment.

2. They must continue day after day to interpret waste and inefficiency in terms of deprivation of beneficial service.

The Bureau of Municipal Research, whatever may have been its accomplishments, is unquestionably the only agency ever established in any American city that has worked consecutively for eight years with the single purpose of obtaining efficiency in city government. Many taxpayers contribute to the support of the Bureau of Municipal Research. But the Bureau never would have been established, nor would it ever have been able to conduct its work on its present scope had it not been able to obtain support from men and women who want government to be efficient, not to lower tax bills, but to save lives, improve the comfort and convenience, and advance the welfare of all the people of the city of New York, and not merely those who directly pay taxes.

A Motive Is Necessary.

What is true in New York is true the country over. So long as cities relied upon the expected but rarely realized effective protest of taxpayers to keep down the cost of government or to make government efficient, government continued wasteful and inefficient. But any city, such as Des Moines, that comes to realize that efficient city government means advantageous commercial advertisement, and that wasteful city government means forfeiture of ability to obtain improvements and satisfaction of pressing demands for city betterment, immediately acquires a motive that is enduring for city efficiency. The whole commission government movement sprang out of Galveston's sudden realization, as a result of its flood, that every citizen of Galveston had a vital interest in the efficiency of its city government. The city government at that juncture was the only agency competent to relieve the needs of all citizens, and in a position to undertake the work of the town's reconstruction. This dramatic episode has helped more than 250 cities now under the commission plan to realize the relation of efficient government to general community welfare.

The present administration of the city government went into office pledged to economy and efficiency, but it probably never would have gone into office had it not been pledged to municipal ownership of rapid transit lines. The next mayor will probably go into office pledged to economy and efficiency, but from present appearances his election will be aided more by his advocacy of police reform than by his pledges to economize. This will be true, despite the fact that the most important steps necessary to bring about efficiency in the police are the same as those necessary to bring about efficient and economical management of any other branch of the city government.

A Definite Program Needed.

The next administration of the city will not be as efficient as taxpayers may reasonably expect it to be unless taxpayers formulate now a definite program which will compel candidates for office at least to realize that indignation against the police and promises of law enforcement are not sufficient to prevent unnecessary increases in the budget, extravagance in contracts and in payrolls and supplies.

This is the time for taxpayers to anticipate the steps that Mayor X, Comptroller Y and Commissioners A, B and C will have to take to increase the efficiency of city management, and thus to reduce or check taxation. The way to efficiency and economy is clear. President Miller has saved, on the basis of the 1908 appropriation for his borough, three-quarters of a million dollars in four years. When asked how he did it, he said, "By wanting to and then doing it."

There is no mystery in efficient government. It is merely a matter of desire, intelligence and method. The method has been worked out. It is partly applied. Taxpayers should compel candidates to talk in specific terms compatible with information now available regarding what they propose to do to effect economy and establish efficiency. To talk intelligently they must know what has been done and what needs to be done. Oratory will not effect economy, nor will mere honesty of intention. Taxpayers will continue to protest next year and the year after next, unless they now list those improvements achieved during the past four years that should be retained, and those improvements which good administration may easily effect in the four years to come.

Are These Gains Worth Holding?

More important to the future welfare of the people of New York City and the efficiency of its government than police exposures, is the completion by the present administration of the accounting and auditing reorganization throughout the city government. This reorganization enables every department head and potentially every taxpayer, to look squarely in the face the exact facts regarding city business. That is all that efficient city accounting means. Police scandals will not exist when officials and citizens are compelled to look squarely in the face facts regarding police administration. When the same standards of administrative efficiency that are represented by the new accounting system are established in the police department, now protected by law from public inspection, police scandals will be made as difficult as police efficiency will be made easy.

Unexpended balances, aggregating $9,000,000, were brought to light and sent back into the general fund for reduction of taxation in 1911. This was made possible because for the first time in the history of New York the accounts in the Comptroller's office were made to harmonize with the accounts in the Water Department, Street Cleaning Department, and the other departments of the city government. For years Comptrollers had kept accounts open because they had no way of knowing what liabilities not yet come to the Comptroller's attention had been incurred by the spending departments.

In 1909, when the city's accounting reorganization began, it required twenty days to put a claim through in the Finance Department, and the discretion of the auditor or the chief bookkeeper, instead of the date of filing, determined when the claim should be paid. Today it requires three days, and claims are paid in the order in which they are presented.

Before accounting reorganization, no department head could tell what property he was responsible for and what supplies he had in store, so every subordinate was licensed, if temptation overcame him, to abstract city property, and a continuing inducement was offered to wasteful use. Under accounting reorganization all property is accounted for and no supplies may be taken from stores unless proof is offered that they are needed for definite city purposes.

Before accounting reorganization payrolls were based upon the say-so of foremen or department heads who had no information or proof of service performed. Under accounting reorganization payrolls are based on time sheets certified by the persons asking to be paid, and are a permanent record of work done, as well as money spent.

Clearly, the next administration should protect the gains made in accounting reorganization and pledge itself to carry on this work of inestimable value to efficient city government.

For the five years immediately prior to 1908, before the budget was segregated, the average annual budget increase was 9.57 per cent. For the five years since 1908, the first year of budget segregation, the average annual budget increase was 6.85 per cent. Had the rate of increase in the budget for the four years of McClellan's administration continued during the Gaynor administration, the budget now would be $12,000,000 larger than it is. Segregation has compelled budget-makers and appropriation seekers, first, to face squarely the facts regarding appropriations, and, second to talk about the same thing in the same terms. Before segregation, appropriations covering, as they do, a multitude of activities, rarely meant the same thing to those who asked for money and to those who granted it, and were utterly unintelligible to taxpayers.

Clearly, budget segregation should be continued by the next administration if economy is to be achieved as well as promised.

Standardization of Supplies.

Standardization of supplies, though a formidable title, means merely selecting the most serviceable supply, and often the least expensive, for every particular need, and then requiring the delivery of that supply under enforceable specifications. By standardizing coal and boiler grates, Borough President McAneny has cut his coal bill from $90,000 to $45,000. Standardization means not only economy in price, but also economy in serviceability for the city is assured the delivery of suitable goods of uniform quality.

Standardization of salaries, now begun, will only be fairly under way at the commencement of the next administration. If fearlessly enforced, salary standardization will save the city many millions. Will taxpayers help prevent the discontinuance of this long-deferred and pre-eminently necessary work?

Unquestionably, the initial steps have been taken towards economy. If economy is wanted, plans now under way should be supported and carried to conclusion. If the next administration begins where the present administration leaves off, it can in four years effectively check existing waste, if taxpayers will organize and stay organized to hold up the hands of men who have the courage to reduce payrolls and compel a full return for the expenditure of city money.

Why Not in Every Department?

Economies effected by Presidents McAneny and Miller, increases in revenues achieved by Commissioner Thompson, were brought about by the adoption of business methods that are applicable to every branch of city business. The next article will describe results obtained in these and other departments, and the steps taken to obtain them. If every department in the city government were subjected to the scrubbing, cleansing, tuning-up process administered in the past three years to the Water Register's Bureau and the offices of the Borough Presidents of Manhattan and The Bronx, ten million dollars could be saved the city annually.

MUNICIPAL RETRENCHMENT.

The Jerome Park Reservoir a Good Place to Begin—Project Held Up.

Alderman Henry H. Curran introduced in the Board of Aldermen an ordinance rescinding the approval by that board of a corporate stock issue of $8,690,000 for completing the easterly basin of the Jerome Park Reservoir and for the construction and installation of a filtration plant at Jerome Park. Alderman Curran gave out the following statement:

"The Jerome Park filtration project was approved by the previous Board of Aldermen and a corporate stock issue authorized on June 20, 1911. At that time the board had before it reports indicating that filtration of Croton water was necessary and would be efficient in reducing the danger of disease. These reports, and the resolution of the Board of Estimate and Apportionment which had been sent over to the Board of Aldermen for concurrence, related to a type of filter contemplated at that time which differed in some respects from the plans and specifications upon which the Water Department has recently advertised for bids.

"I have become convinced that Croton water does not need filtration, the typhoid death rate in Manhattan and The Bronx, which is generally considered a good index of the quality of the water, is only about two-third's of the typhoid death rate in Brooklyn, and is less than the death rate from typhoid fever in nearly every large city in the United States. Furthermore, it seems to me to have been conclusively shown by the facts presented to the Board of Estimate and Apportionment that such objectionable features as exist in Croton water can be removed by much less expensive methods. The water supply ought to be better protected from contamination at its source and Central Park Reservoir ought to be cleaned out, as was recommended as far back as 1903.

"We must retrench in city expenditures and this is a very good place to begin. By eliminating at least for the time being this unnecessary expenditure for the filtration of Croton water we will cut three-fourths of a point off the city tax rate. The Presidents of the Boroughs of Manhattan and The Bronx, which are the only two boroughs that receive Croton water, agree that the city ought not to make this expenditure for the filtration plant. If it is deemed advisable to install such a filtration plant eventually, it can be done a few years hence after the Catskill supply is made available."

—London proper has stopped growing; its taxable value is falling. During the past decade there was a loss in population of over 500,000, and during the past year a recession in assessed valuation of $1,500,000. This downward movement is explained on the assumption that municipal improvements of the benevolently expensive kind have made the taxpayer's burden so heavy that he has adopted the policy of moving out of the area of extravagance. When will this come true of New York also?

THE AUTOMATIC SPRINKLER CONTROVERSY

Fire Commissioner's Discretionary Power Unimpaired — The Wagner Bill, Arbitrarily Ordering Sprinkler Installations, Defeated — A Review of the Kaye Case.

MANY points of interest to property owners were developed in the recent criminal prosecution of Charles Kaye for refusing to comply with a fire-prevention order, requiring him to equip his large, modern loft building at 30-34 West 26th street with automatic sprinklers. Although Mr. Kaye was convicted and fined, the outcome of his case was a distinct and important victory for local real estate interests generally, because the court upheld the contention of Assistant Corporation Counsel MacNulty for the prosecution, that the amendment of the labor law arbitrarily requiring the installation of sprinkler systems in all loft buildings over eight stories in height did not supersede the Fire Commissioner's discretionary power as to sprinkler installations

The Hazard of Occupancy.

As argued by the city's fire-law expert, whether or not a particular building should be equipped with automatic sprinklers depends not so much upon either its height or construction, but upon the degree of inflammability of its contents—the hazard of its occupancy.

Under the labor law provision no distinction could be made between a building used for metal goods manufacturing and one occupied by shirtwaist factories —each must be equipped with sprinklers if over eight stories in height and otherwise within the statutory classification. On the other hand, the law Mr. Kaye was convicted of violating confers upon the Fire Commissioner merely the power to require the installation of sprinklers in buildings filled with inflammable material and housing a large number of people.

Furthermore, the courts have the right to interfere to prevent an abuse of this discretionary power by the Fire Commissioner; whereas they would be unable to enjoin the literal enforcement of the arbitrary sprinkler provisions of the labor law.

A Labor Law Defect.

Vigorous effort was made at the last session of the Legislature to overthrow the genuine home rule principle successfully contended for by Mr. MacNulty in his prosecution of the Kaye case. But the bill to that end, which was introduced by Senator Wagner, failed to pass, and, therefore, the Fire Commissioner's discretionary power concerning sprinkler equipments continues unimpaired.

This is some consolation, in view of the numerous confiscatory laws enacted this year, at the instigation of the Wagner State Factory Investigating Committee, which place factory owners and their tenants at the mercy of officers of the State Labor Department, whose greed for power over property and business interests and sympathy for bumptious labor agitators and half-baked sociologists has been very plain of late.

Fire Drills Perilous.

The defense of Mr. Kaye was based, in the main, upon the testimony of a number of experts, all of whom contended that the occupants of the building would be absolutely safe from fire perils if they were properly trained in get-away tactics. Commenting on this testimony, Mr. MacNulty stated in his argument for the conviction of the defendant:

"Who can believe the declaration of these experts that twelve distinct swarms of excitable foreigners—a floating population such as they have in factory buildings—could be so trained by one drill a month as to compose themselves to march calmly and orderly out of a blazing loft and down a winding staircase to the street!

"Imagine what would happen on the occasion of a fire, when the line coming down from the twelfth loft would meet that coming down from the eleventh floor, on a landing which could accommodate no more than four or five persons at the same time! All the calculations of these theoretical drill-masters would be knocked into a cocked hat if a jam should happen on the stairway. This they have conceded in their testimony. Such a jam has always happened when two lines abreast have attempted to crowd down a 36-inch stairway, of the type of those in the Kaye Building. This was frankly admitted by H. F. J. Porter, the expert of the Wagner Committee, who testified in behalf of Mr. Kaye."

The Practicability of Sprinklers.

As the expert witnesses for the defendant conceded that sprinklers would protect property, especially against night fires, the efforts of his counsel, Carlisle Norwood, were directed to showing that they did not save lives, and that they were more effective in non-fireproof than in fireproof buildings. Chief Croker said that sprinklers were good for extinguishing fires, but no good for the protection of life. He cited a test in which a sprinkler did not operate until four or five minutes after the fire had started, and meanwhile people sixty or seventy feet away were driven off the floor by the heat.

Challenged to name one loft building fire that got away from sprinklers in the last five years, Chief Croker recalled only one—in a sub-cellar filled with straw hats. But he was not sure whether the cellar was equipped with sprinklers or ordinary perforated pipes.

Fire Chief Kenlon testified that, in case of a fire breaking out in a loft building, the people would run and the sprinkler would prevent the fire from running after them; and Acting Deputy Chief Worth, who was first in command at the Asch fire, testified that sprinklers give people a chance to get out of buildings with 100 per cent. more safety than if sprinklers were not there. Not one of the veteran firefighters who testified in behalf of the People could recall a case where a fire in a sprinklered building got beyond the floor on which it started.

Sprinklers as an Investment.

One of the experts who appeared in behalf of Mr. Kaye testified that eighty-five to ninety sprinklers would be needed in a loft 75x90 feet and, on this basis, a complete standard, double-supply equipment for the entire building (twelve stories and basement) would cost approximately $12,500. The Assistant Corporation Counsel considered this estimate excessive, in view of the fact that the area of the lofts is only 6,750 square feet, and by the expert's own testimony each sprinkler-head would protect an area of over 100 square feet. On this basis sixty to seventy heads would cover the entire area of such a loft.

Chief Croker's Opinion.

In his book on "Fire Prevention," Mr. Croker goes into the cost of sprinkler installation in a chapter which was put in evidence in the Kaye case. He states that the cost of such an equipment in a building containing about 35,000 square feet of floor area would be approximately $1,750, all told. The total floor area of the twelve lofts of the Kaye Building is 75x90 feet by 13 equals 87,750 square feet, which is approximately two and one-half times 35,000 square feet, the total floor area of the building referred to by Mr. Croker. On that basis, a commensurate sprinkler equipment for the Kaye Building would cost $1,750x2½=$4,375, or substantially less than one-half his fellow expert's estimate. Mr. Croker took as his basis a standard sprinkler system, such as will gain insurance rebates. He stated these rebates would not return such dividends in all cases, adding:

"But in any case the automatic sprinklers will yield a reasonable return through the reduction in insurance rates, besides giving protection against loss by fire."

"And he might have added," suggested the Assistant Corporation Counsel, "that the installation of sprinklers would save the defendant the expense of putting in fireproof windows on the front of his buildings, taking the kinks out of its stairways and employing inexperienced 'fire experts' to teach an assortment of 'corkscrew evolutions' to the shifting population of its lofts, the combined cost of all of which would be considerable, without prospect of dividends thereon from any source."

The Kernel of the Matter.

In summing up for the prosecution, Mr. MacNulty said:

"There is not a scintilla of evidence in this case that lives have ever been lost, or that the flames have ever extended from loft to loft, on the occasion of a fire in any building equipped with a standard sprinkler system. This is true even of the old type of non-fireproof buildings downtown, with their wooden stairways winding around unprotected elevator shafts. Plainly, if automatic sprinklers prevent fires from gaining dangerous headway in acknowledged fire traps, they should be even more efficient in the protection of life and property in so-called fireproof buildings."

—Some economists affirm that the real cause of the decline of Rome was overtaxation. The population was taxed out of the city.

—Had not real estate interests taken a firm stand against the State Labor Department and its socialistic allies, in defense of property rights, the drastic Wagner bills would all have got through the Legislature in their original form.

FUTURE BUILDINGS TO RIVAL THE TAJ MAHAL

In Soft and Delicate Tracery and Color Effects, They Will Tower 1000 Feet High, Have Nickel Steel Frames and Take But Half the Material Now Thought Necessary.

By DAVID H. RAY, C. E., Sc. D.*

THE tall buildings of New York are as characteristic an expression of our democracy and its activities as the pyramids are of ancient Egyptian civilization. When the economic prestige of Egypt fell, pyramid building stopped short. Skyscraper building is in the hands of the same destiny. Just as the palaces of Venice record the triumph of her merchant princes, so business success is registered on the skyline of New York.

Thirty years is an insignificant period in history, and yet the end of the last century was so crowded with scientific progress that the earlier skyscrapers are now antiquated, worn-out machines, ready for the scrap pile. Our locomotives, our machinery, our steamships, are "scrapped" after twenty or thirty years, and yet it strikes some as amazing that our buildings should be discarded after three decades, as they inevitably must be under present conditions.

Will Be a Community Building.

About one-half of the buildings on Manhattan Island have lived their allotted three decades and now stand practically out of date, almost abandoned and awaiting the wrecking gang. And what is to replace them?

Scientifically constructed community buildings covering large plots of at least half a block.

The future building must cover a minimum area of 50,000 square feet or, better, 100,000 square feet, and it must be high, unless realty valuations are to be heavily marked down and a loss accepted by landowners, which is hardly conceivable.

Granted that the future building is to cover a full square, is to be high, is to be a community building, and is to embody the latest resources of science, then the outlines of a skyscraper of fifty years hence are fairly well defined.

About fifty per cent. of the ground floor will be given over to entrance corridors which will be continuations of the streets through the building lined with stores. The building will be entered at the top as well as at the bottom. With tall buildings compelled by these circumstances to use plots of one full square, the complaint of stealing one's neighbor's light disappears, so far as adjacent owners are concerned, and the limitation for aviation heights then comes up for consideration.

One Thousand Feet High.

While under a republican form of government, where everyone is equal before the law, it is hardly possible to make property unequal to the extent of classifying it in an aristocracy of zones, still the proposition to set a limiting height of 700 feet for buildings in the interest of aviation with an exception in favor of towers of, say, twenty per cent., is an equitable one. We may consider, therefore, that our building will have aviation platforms at the height of 700 feet and will extend up to a total height of 1,000 feet.

Nickel steel has a strength of about 110,000 pounds per square inch with an elastic limit of double that of the structural steel now in common use. Chrome nickel steel when tempered has an elastic limit of about 135,000 pounds per square inch, nearly four times that of the structural steel in common use. Chromium vanadium steel runs even higher, reaching with oil tempering about 150,000 pounds per square inch. These are not experimental steels, but steels actually in use for bridges, shafts, locomotive forgings, tires, tubes and piston rods.

With steel machinery four and five times as strong as that commonly specified in buildings, it is apparent that there is no difficulty so far as steel is concerned in the design of a building 1,000 feet high or higher. Indeed, the column sections might be made even less than those in a typical tall building, such as the Singer Building, and yet the building be made twice as high if in time architects can utilize the latest researches of metallurgy.

It is entirely conceivable that a crucible steel will be available for structural purposes as processes are improved and commercialized in the next fifty years. This should result in an economy in first cost of perhaps twenty-five or thirty per cent., as much less steel will be required and the foundations can be made correspondingly cheaper.

Lighter Masonry.

With improved steel of a strength three times that now in use there must also come a realization of the utter ridiculousness of heavy, bulky masonry as a structural material for tall buildings. Masonry as a building material is a survival from the days of fortified cities surrounded by high stone walls, a tradition of the days of stone castles with moats and drawbridges. But these departed forever with the advent of high power artillery field pieces. The New York building merely needs a screen against the elements—against the weather and against fire.

The masonry of our tall buildings is not as good a weather screen in some cases as a tin roof a tenth of an inch thick, and yet architects fail to realize that the walls of modern buildings need be essentially nothing but weather screens—sheathings. This element, added to the previous economy, should result in a saving of fifty per cent. in cost, other elements being assumed to remain constant. The present building laws require twelve-inch brick walls for the upper five stories and an increase of four inches more of brick work for each four stories from that down to the foundation, and call for tremendous expenditures for masonry walls and for foundations that serve no rational purpose.

Fifty years should see a change in these conditions and permit the cutting of the dead weight out of our buildings. This will reduce the amount of steel required in a building about twenty-five per cent., and with improved steel now coming to the front the weight of steel required in a building fifty years hence should not be more than half of that used to-day. Dead weight is not essential to the stability of these buildings; scientifically efficient design will develop lightness and strength, as in all improved mechanism, and result in an economy of fifty per cent. in construction and a great increase in efficiency, as well as a saving of space.

Will Save Half the Material.

A sheathing of six or eight inches of vitrified clay or concrete, or of four inches of a new and superior fire cement of a vitreous character, will be all that is needed in the way of exterior walls. Most of the buildings of the future will be built with about one-half the amount of material now utilized, volume for volume. This saving will come through the use of better and more scientific materials, a cutting down of the dead, useless weight, and a consequent saving in the cost of heavy foundations.

Foundation problems should thus become simpler. Indeed, the foundation problem of Manhattan Island, which is underlaid by hard, igneous rock, resolves itself merely into digging down to bedrock. This is not a hard scientific problem; it is a matter of dollars and cents, and persistence.

The absurd situation is now tolerated where the foundations cost about as much as the superstructure. This absurdly unscientific, unnecessary and wasteful operation indicates that the present is a time of transition.

The heating, lighting and ventilating of our buildings is in a rudimentary state. With the saving of fifty per cent. on construction by the use of lighter and better materials and a cutting down of heavy, bulky dead-weight masonry, it should be possible to develop the mechanical equipment of future buildings so as to maintain in them ideal climatic and hygienic conditions, now to be realized nowhere on earth.

The typical skyscraper of 1963 will offer an epitome of the scientific invention and discovery of the age under one roof. It will be a structure gathering in one locality the fruits of the centuries, offering its tenants all that wisdom has evolved. The height will be incidental to the location.

Fireproof Furniture.

The general problem of construction and fireproofing is now solved, but fireproof metal furniture and fittings will be mandatory. Indeed, with the increasing scarcity of fine wood and the improvement of metal-working machinery, the difference in cost, when all elements are given due weight, will probably be in favor of the metal fittings in any case. No radical change is to be expected or will be necessary in the development of elevators. The present method of electric elevator operation is susceptible of extension to meet any demand.

In general efficiency and service, however, keen competition will no doubt develop applications of scientific invention and discover improvements. The future building will have an entrance for aerial service, as well as for street and subway service. It will be maintained at a constant Florida temperature throughout the year. The opportunities for recreation will have full consideration. It will be a city in itself, and a most up-to-date city. The upper stories will exhibit the marvels of the hour.

*Formerly Chief Engineer, Bureau of Buildings, Manhattan Borough.

Among the better methods of the future should be the perfection of a vitreous surfacing of moderate tensile strength for external protection. It is conceivable that such a surfacing could be moulded in place by a heat concentrating device, if cheap energy were to become available.

Soft Color Effects.

The external ornamentation under such conditions would be susceptible of a great variety of treatment with soft color effects. Masonry should follow the log cabin and stockade into oblivion. It is the crudest, most unscientific manner of building ever devised, the relic of the day of walled camps. Heavy, unwieldy, bulky and inefficient, science merely tolerates it as a "masonry screen" in modern building, and as a concession to tradition, until a rational scientific weather screen for steel framing is developed, from vitreous material.

The Woolworth Building, the latest skyscraper, indicates plainly the trend that way. The steel frame is dressed with a coating of vitreous terra cotta blocks, moulded in Gothic forms. But this is but the transitional stage. The numerous joints between the blocks are points of vulnerability. The logical thing is a continuous coating, fireproof, waterproof, weatherproof.

Such a final consummation, though scientifically indicated, has no historical tradition in architecture except the analogy of a stucco finish so common in Spain and the Orient and must, therefore, be a slow and gradual development.

It is susceptible, however, of superior artistic treatment, both as to form and color, and should make the 1950 building the rival of the Taj Mahal in soft and delicate tracery and color effect. An aggregation under one roof of all that science can do for human efficiency and convenience, protected by a covering superior in strength, form and artistic appreciation—this outlines the vision of the building of fifty years hence.

TAKING THE KINKS OUT OF PARK AVENUE

Benefits and Damages to Real Estate to Result From the Change of Grade at 34th Street Under the Plan of the Fourth Avenue Association.

THE plan of the Fourth Avenue Association which the Board of Estimate adopted this week in preference to the plan of the Thirty-fourth Street Association of property owners for putting an end to the awkward traffic conditions existing at the intersection of Park avenue and 34th street, where Fourth avenue ends, had the approval of the Borough President and his engineers and also of the chief engineer of the Board of Estimate.

Park avenue, from 59th street south to 32d, has been of little use to vehicular traffic where it was not impassable. The removal of the Park avenue "break," the roofing over of the Grand Central yard, and the carrying of Park avenue around the station and over the track to 59th street, will make a fine useful thoroughfare, it will offer immediate relief for the rapidly increasing congestion of Fifth avenue, and will serve as a noble approach to the station from either direction. The one break in its physical continuity continues to be that at the 34th street crossing.

As part of the problem the engineers were called upon to solve, it appears that sufficient leeway must be left in any regrading of 34th street for the laying of a standard subway tube between the roof line of the present north and south tube of the Interborough Company and the regraded street surface.

Details of the Change.

From official sources the Record and Guide learns that the plan approved by the Board, although prepared by the borough engineers, was based almost wholly upon a scheme advocated by the Fourth Avenue Association, and originally devised and elaborated by Mr. Lloyd Collis, its consulting engineer. The Fourth Avenue Association is a body of property owners, chiefly recruited from those located and doing business on Park or Fourth avenue, south of 34th street. Their plan contemplates the lowering of the surface of 34th street 6.22 feet at its intersection with Park avenue, with consequent reductions of grade on 34th street east of Park avenue for a distance of 238 feet from 4.54 per cent. to 1.86 per cent.; and on the block to the west, between Madison and Park avenues, from 2.13 to 0.79 per cent.

The grades on Park avenue are also to be readjusted. In the block of Park avenue, between 34th and 35th streets, the grade is increased from 1.6 to 5 per cent., while south of the interesection as far as 33d street there is a reduction in grade from 4.11 to 1.38 per cent. South of 33d street, no change is made in the grade on the westerly side; but that on the easterly side is raised to correspond to the present westerly grade to a point 215 feet south of the centre line of 33d street. The surface of Park avenue, from 32d to 34th street, will be covered over and carried as a smooth roadway of 75 feet width up to the new and lowered grade of 34th street, and the street car tracks, carried upward to the same grade, will cross 34th street and dip into the tunnel northward slightly south of 35th street. Although this will involve an additional grade crossing, the area of the intersection at the point of crossing will be greater than that of any other rectangular intersection south of 110th street, thus eliminating the possibility of congestion at this point. Moreover, the new portal of the tunnel south of 35th street will be placed at a point where the width of the street from building line to building line is 140 feet against a total of 120 feet at the point of the present opening. There will, therefore, be no disturbance of the present roadway widths, which amply care for the north and southbound traffic above 34th street.

Benefits and Damages.

The re-arrangement proposed will also make it possible to carry 33d street across Fourth avenue, where it is now interrupted, thus securing a considerable betterment of crosstown traffic conditions, the incidental relief of 34th street, and the very material improvement of surrounding property.

Heavy damages will doubtless be claimed by property owners on both Park avenue and 34th street; but the value of the improvement as secured, it is believed, will much more than outweigh these adverse considerations.

It is also to be borne in mind that the increase in the value of city property—that is, the Seventy-first Regiment Armory plot—due to the change of grade, will be substantial, and may even equal the cost of the damage to private plots.

Chief of those who will claim damages are, naturally, the corner lot owners, namely, the Vanderbilt Hotel at the southwest corner, the Church of the Messiah at the northwest, and a private residence at the northeast. The Armory property, which alone is at present in a disadvantageous position is at the southeast.

The Estimated Cost.

Some statements made as to the cost of the improvement proposed on behalf of the city have been greatly exaggerated. The Real Estate Bureau of the Finance Department reinforced by the engineers and private appraisers, has reported that the net damage to private property affected by the change of grade would be about $175,000. The city's engineers estimated the cost of the physical reconstruction at $149,000 and the cost of the readjustment of the railroad station and tracks at $51,000—a total outlay at $375,000. This will be paid net through the issue of city bonds through the assessment of not less than half the cost upon the property benefited, and the rest upon the Borough of Manhattan.

The Mayor will hold a public hearing June 10.

New Theatre Code.

As there are fully a thousand places in the city where motion pictures are displayed and a great many buildings are annually erected for the new amusement, the ordinance passed by the Board of Aldermen this week setting forth the conditions which must be complied with in order to obtain licenses, will be a local law of no little importance if it receives the Mayor's approval, which is uncertain at this writing.

The original Folks bill had Mr. Gaynor's approval. The Dowling amendment, by striking out the clause permitting balconies will require picture theatres to take more ground space than the Folks bill contemplated. All such buildings hereafter built must have two means of egress, unobstructed passageways, fire-escapes, booths constructed in a certain manner, toilets and fire apparatus. There must be thirty-two inches of space between the rows of chairs.

In the main the new law applies to motion picture houses to be built in the future, or altered. Provision as to heating, lighting and sanitary requirements, however, apply to all houses. In the discretion of the inspectors requirements as to exits may be enforced against theatres that now exist whenever application is made for a renewal of the license.

The seating capacity is limited to 600 and supervision is to be made of all theatres by inspectors specially assigned from the Mayor's Bureau of Licenses. There are provisions for the filing of plans and the granting of licenses; stringent provisions for exits, fire-proofing of walls and ceilings and exit doors that open outward to clear passageways to streets.

—Decoration Day will be notable for big auctions, with some indications that there will be many bargain opportunities for homeseekers.

WEST END CONSTRUCTION.

A List of the Work Now in Hand—Bloomingdale Ref. Church to Pass.

West End avenue has a number of apartment houses of the first class in the finishing stage at the present date, and others not so far advanced. Fullerton Weaver Co. is completing one at the northwest corner of 71st street, No. 240. This house has walls of a deep yellow, which is a color that has been noticeably favored of late. Earl & Calhoun, as agents, are completing a fine house of the type mentioned in 72d street, south side, near the corner of West End avenue, which has been named the "Wellwyn." Both of these houses will be ready by fall.

A Million-Dollar House.

At the northwest corner of 85th street a twelve-story apartment house will be erected from plans of Schwartz & Gross filed last November. The owner is a corporation styled the West End Avenue and 85th Street Company, of 220 Fifth avenue. The ground dimensions of 132x139 feet, are exceptionally large, and the cost of the construction alone is estimated at $1,100,000. The Aeon Realty Company of 17 Madison avenue commenced the erection of a twelve-story house, 78x80 feet, to cost $350,000, at Nos. 562 to 568 West End avenue. The plans were filed last December.

At the southeast corner of 98th street, T. J. McLaughlin's Sons are putting up a house with ground dimensions of about 100x82 feet, to cost $50,000, from plans of George and Edward Blum. At the southeast corner of 101st street, Julius Tishman & Sons are erecting from plans of George and Edward Blum a house with ground dimensions of 100x106 feet, to cost $700,000 for construction. At the southwest corner of 104th street the Michael E. Paterno Realty Company, of 601 West 115th street, is completing a house with ground dimensions of about 101x90 feet, from plans of Gaetan Ajello. Estimated cost of construction, $500,000.

At Bloomingdale Square.

Harry Schiff is building on the three-sided plot at the northeast corner of 105th street, extending to Broadway, where the frame residence of the late Isador Straus stood. The estimated cost is $750,000 for the building alone. The flag is up on the frame of the structure, which was planned by Schwartz & Gross and B. N. Marcus. Mr. Schiff has bought the site of the Bloomingdale Reformed Church on Bloomingdale Square and will erect an apartment house there when the church has been removed.

THE THIRTY-DAY BILLS.

The Governor having postponed further action for a time on the thirty-day bills, in order to take the stump in favor of his direct primary measure, which is to come before the extra session, there was no legislation news from Albany during the earlier part of the week. Meanwhile, Mayor Gaynor vetoed the bills creating a Department of Public Welfare to deal with vice in this city. The bill was introduced into the Legislature by Senator Wagner at the instance of the Citizens' Committee, of which Allan Robinson is chairman.

This action by the Mayor leaves in the hands of the Governor for approval or disapproval only bills of secondary interest. All the important measures embodying the constructive social and municipal reform policies of the Legislature have now been disposed of by the Executive. The larger proportion has been placed upon the statute books. As to some of those that have been rejected, the special session will be asked o adopt modifications that will meet the convictions of the Governor. This will be the case notably with the Workmen's Compensation bill, vetoed last week.

The Bills Signed by the Governor.

Among the bills of particular interest to the building and real estate professions that have been signed by the Governor are the following, designated by their chapter numbers in Laws of 1913:

Chap. 577—By Assemblyman Carver, to amend chapter seven hundred and thirty-seven of the laws of nineteen hundred and eleven, entitled "An Act to unthorize the board of assessors of the City of New York to estimate and allow the damages sustained by owners of real property fronting upon streets approaching the Manhattan Bridge over the East River, in said city," in relation to the time within which to file claims.

Chap. 510—By Assemblyman Deitz, amending section 20, chapter 4, Laws of 1891, entitled "An Act to provide for rapid transit railways in cities of over one million inhabitants," relative to easements acquired or reserved for the construction of rapid transit ralroads.

Chap. 524—By Senator Carswell, amending section 24a, chapter 4, of the Laws of 1891, entitled "An Act to provide for rapid transit railways in cities of over 1,000,000 inhabitants," with reference to relocation of a railroad or portion thereof.

Chap. 540—By Assemblyman Caughlin, to amend chapter four of the laws of eighteen hundred and ninety-one, entitled "An Act to provide for rapid transit railways in cities of over one million inhabitants," with reference to damages for change of grade of streets, with reference to real estate acquired under said act and with reference to contracts made in emergencies or for limited amounts.

Chap. 557—By Senator Blauvelt, amending section 224, Village Law, in relation to supervision and extension of water works system.

Chap. 486—By Senator Blauvelt, amending section 2387, Code of Civil Procedure, in relation to foreclosure of mortgages.

Chapter 330—By Assemblyman Sutphin, ratifying and confirming an agreement under date of July 21, 1911, between the City of New York and the Long Island Railroad Company providing for the elimination of grade crossings and for a payment by the city towards the expense thereof and to enable the City of New York to carry out all of the provisions and conditions thereof.

Chapter 331—By Senator Duhamel, amending the Greater New York Charter by adding a new section 243a in relation to the transfer of jurisdiction and control of streets.

Chapter 332—By Senator Carswell, amending section 5, chapter 639, Laws of 1906, entitled "An Act to provide for a commission to investigate and consider means for protecting the waters of New York Bay and vicinity against pollution and authorizing the City of New York to pay the expenses thereof," in relation to the term of said commission.

BIG APARTMENT HOUSES SUPERSEDING PRIVATE DWELLINGS ON WEST END AVENUE.

At the southwest corner West End Avenue and 101st Street Julius Tishman & Sons are completing a 12-story apartment that will cost $700,000, from plans of George & Edward Blum.

At the southwest corner West End Avenue and 104th Street Michael Paterno has demolished five private dwellings to make way for this big house which will shelter ten times as many families.

NEW TENEMENT LAWS.

Two Ways of Egress from All Houses—Signed by the Governor.

A DELEGATION of apartment house architects and builders who journeyed to Albany last Saturday to see the Governor in relation to the bill amending the Tenement House Law were informed upon their arrival that the bill had been signed the night before. Had there been an opportunity, the party would have requested a modification of the provisions requiring two means of egress in fireproof tenements. The bill went into effect immediately upon receiving the Governor's signature, but some concession may be made to those who filed plans just behind the gate, and the Corporation Counsel's opinion has been asked in respect to this point.

While the new law provides for a number of changes in the practice of the department (see Record and Guide of April 19), the principal interest centers in the requirement for two means of egress. Every tenement house hereafter erected, both fireproof and non-fireproof, must have two independent ways of egress, the law says, and they must extend from ground floor to roof, must be remote from each other and separated by walls.

One of these ways of egress must be a flight of stairs constructed and arranged as provided in sections 18 to 22 inclusive of the chapter in which the general tenement law is contained; and the other way of egress must be directly accessible at each story to each apartment without having to pass through the first way of egress. This second way of egress may be any one of the following, as the owner may elect:

1. A system of outside fire-escapes constructed and arranged as provided in Section 16 of the tenement house law.
2. An additional flight of stairs either, inside or outside, constructed and arranged as provided in sections 18 to 22.
3. A fire tower constructed and arranged as provided in section 22a.

Deputy Commissioner Abbott and Chief Inspector Robertson are formulating a series of regulations for the erection of fire towers. It was said at the department that the simplest way of complying with the law would be by the erection of exterior fire escapes, and this plan would no doubt be followed in most cases, where it would not deface the fronts of buildings, and otherwise the erection of towers would mostly be resorted to.

Concession for Reinforced Concrete.

Other amendments provide that in non-fireproof houses, reinforced concrete floor construction in accordance with the rules and regulations of the Superintendent of Buildings may be used in lieu of iron and steel beams for the first floor.

The floors, stairs and walls in stair halls may be constructed of reinforced concrete as an alternative for other approved material.

In measuring a court, a parapet wall extending not more than three feet above the top of the roof beams shall not be included in the height of a building in the case of tenements not exceeding six stories in height.

The requirement for wire-glass windows in stair halls is relaxed so as not to apply to such windows when opening on the street in the case of tenement houses not exceeding six stories in height.

In certain cases where a house situated on a corner has a yard and court giving direct access to the street, the requirement for a fire passage through the basement from front to rear is modified.

The rooms of janitors' apartments in the cellars of buildings hereafter erected shall not open on any court less than five feet six inches in width.

Permission for the use of flexible wire fire-escapes is withdrawn.

Percentage of Lot to Be Occupied.

Restriction on the percentage of lot which may be legally occupied is altered in the case of corner lots, and also in the case of interior lots exceeding 105 feet in depth. The present limits are 90 per cent, for any other lot. Hereafter in the case of (a) an interior lot between 90 and 105 feet in depth, not more than 70 per cent.; in the case of (b) an interior lot which exceeds 105 feet in depth, not more than 65 per cent.

Notice to Architects and Owners.

In connection with the new amendments to the Tenement House Law, the attention of Architects and Owners is called to the fact that the Tenement House Department will consider bona-fide plans filed prior to Saturday, noon, May 17, 1913, as governed by the law previously in force. But all plans to be so considered must be properly authorized, and must bear distinct evidence that they are adapted to the plot described in the application and shown in the survey of the premises.

COURT HOUSE PLANS.

Indications Are That They Will Be Approved with Only Minor Modifications.

The plans for the new Civil Courts building are still before the Municipal Art Commission for its approval. A special committee appointed to scrutinize the plans merely reported progress at a meeting of the commission this week. This committee is composed of Frank L. Babbott, John A. Mitchell and Karl Bitter. Members of the Court House Board were present at the meeting, as was also Borough President McAneny.

The principal point in the discussion related to the order in which the plans should be approved by the various authorities. It is the contention of the Art Commission that the justices of the Supreme Court and the Court House Board should both pass upon the plans before they are acted upon by the Art Commission. If modifications are to be made by either of these two boards, the Art Commission holds that they should be made before the Art Commission stamps its approval on the plans as a whole.

It is understood that the ventilation arrangements have been favorably reported upon by a committee of consulting engineers, Messrs. Clark, McMullin & Riley, and that estimates of cost have been obtained from builders and laid before the Court House Board by the architect, Mr. Lowell. The builders who made estimates at the request of the architect were the George A. Fuller Company, Charles T. Wills (Inc.) and the Thompson-Starrett Company. The indications are that the plans will be approved by the Art Commission after they have been passed upon by the Supreme Court justices, and that the changes, if any, will be of comparatively minor importance.

—Lofts with large floor areas are renting better at present than lofts with small areas, or those having less than ten thousand square feet of space per floor. Few of the latter among those built in the past two years are fully occupied. In other words, many tenants have come to prefer one large floor to two of half the size.

BUILDING MANAGEMENT

Conducted by Raymond P. Roberts, Building Manager for the American Real Estate Company.

CATERING TO LAUNDRIES.

Some of the Problems to Be Studied in Erecting Buildings Especially for Them.

By ROBERT B. MOYER,

Secretary of E. W. Bliss Buildings, Inc.

THE question has been brought up at various times whether it would be a feasible and profitable enterprise to put up special buildings for steam laundries. Such laundries are now housed in various buildings in different parts of the city, but I do not know of any building designed particularly to meet their requirements and used exclusively by them, except in a few instances of single tenancy. Only laundries of very considerable size can profitably erect their own buildings and produce their own live steam and power. All the smaller and medium-sized plants, therefore, take space in manufacturing buildings. They are necessarily confined to buildings that are able to furnish them with an abundant and reliable supply of high-pressure steam.

Steam laundries are scattered over the city pretty generally, but a central location is very desirable to the laundry proprietor, as it means a considerable economy in the outside service of gathering up and delivering work. By "central" is here meant central in relation to the distribution of the laundry's customers. A laundry will cover a wide range of territory, but always sets some limit of distance from its plant. Some have customers all the way from the Battery to 125th street, and in such cases it is obviously most advantageous to be located about midway—say between 23d and 59th streets; preferably in the lower part of this belt, for the reason that traffic conditions are much more favorable north of 23d street than below it.

Essential Requirements.

It is also essential that a laundry should be located in a good labor centre, with good transportation facilities for its workers between the plant and their homes.

The wise owner or builder, in considering the proposition of erecting a building for steam laundries, would of course consult first of all a building manager who has had experience with them. The manager with such experience would immediately call attention to certain special requirements of such plants, which are all-important and upon adequately meeting which the success of the enterprise would depend. These special requirements are:

1. An abundant and reliable supply of water.
2. An abundant and reliable supply of live steam.
3. An abundant and reliable supply of motive power.

The matter of water supply is comparatively simple, although the advice of some one with experience with laundries is important in determining the number of city taps required, the capacity of pumps, etc. So far as I know, there is no section of the city where any other than Croton water can be relied upon. Wells in the greater part of Manhattan are expensive on account of the depth to which they must be drilled through rock, and they are unreliable, as they are likely to run out after a comparatively short time. Moreover, the water would require filtering and softening, and the installation and maintenance of the plant for this purpose would be costly, with no certainty of a continuous supply.

The city supply must therefore be relied upon, and it would be an important point to tap more than one main if possible, so that water could be drawn from one in case the other should for any reason be shut off. Failure of the water supply would shut down the laundries, and shutdowns are the events most dreaded by the laundry people. Branch meters are of course necessary, and it is wise to watch these closely, lest the landlord find that he is paying for much of the water used by the laundries. The city will see that he receives bills for all that flows through his taps, and he must collect from his laundry tenants the share of each. It is customary for the landlord to pay the city and collect from the laundries monthly at the city rate for the water they use. This is not only for the reason that it is usually necessary to pump the water up to a tank and distribute it by gravity, but also to protect the landlord, in case of the failure of a laundry, from having to meet a large unpaid water bill.

The Steam Problem.

The live-steam problem is one of the most serious in connection with the accommodation of laundries. Their requirements in this direction are very considerable. Some of them have drying rooms which require dry steam at no less than seventy or eighty pounds pressure on the laundry floor, and they also use live steam for various other purposes. Many laundries run cold water into their tubs or washwheels and bring it up to a temperature near the boiling point by means of open half-inch jets of live steam in each tub. This is a very expensive method—expensive to the laundry proprietor if he is charged as much as he ought to be for these jets, and expensive to the landlord if he is not so charged. Even if the steam is metered, it is difficult to arrive at a proper charge for such a use of steam. The jets are not all in use at once, yet many of them may be opened at once, and this pulls down the pressure on the boilers most surprisingly. It is necessary, therefore, to keep up a supply of steam at full pressure so that these fluctuating drafts can be taken care of without running the pressure down to any considerable extent.

The maximum use should properly be taken as the basis for the charges. This is, in fact, such an extravagant method that the average laundry can hardly stand the charges that are necessary in such cases to protect the landlord from loss. Sometimes heating tanks, in which the water is heated by steam coils—possibly by "returns"—are installed in the individual laundry plant, so that the water goes into the washwheeels at or near the required temperature. If, however, a number of laundries are to be taken as tenants, or if a building is to be erected especially for the accommodation of laundries, the building itself would do well to provide a hot-water system. This practically eliminates the use of steam jets in the washwheels, and in the end is the most economical method for both landlord and tenant. The water can be heated to a sufficient temperature with the exhaust steam from high-pressure boilers, so that there need be no extra fuel cost on account of the hot-water system. The instantaneous type of heater, with a small storage capacity, is undoubtedly the best for this purpose. A plant of such size as would be required to furnish electric power and also live steam for a number of laundries would afford sufficient exhaust steam to heat all of the water required and at the same time enough to heat the building in winter.

If a building were planned for the exclusive use of laundries an electric plant should be installed to furnish the tenants with motive power for their machinery. Whatever doubt might exist as to the profit of running individual plants and selling electric power to tenants in ordinary cases would disappear in this case, as high-pressure boilers of considerable capacity would have to be installed in order to furnish the required live steam, and the electric current could be generated with practically no additional labor cost in the plant, and with comparatively little fuel cost.

Getting Ventilation.

One of the great difficulties in the laundry plant is to get proper ventilation. If there is insufficient circulation of air the heat becomes intolerable and the workrooms at times become dense with steam, especially in humid weather. In cold weather a too rapid introduction of cold air causes condensation and will sometimes increase the steam clouds and result in such water condensation upon the ceiling that work will be stained and spotted with drippings. The ideal laundry building would perhaps be of one story, with a very high arched or dome shaped roof, provided with fresh air intakes at a low level and with vents for the steam and hot air at the top of the arch. But this of course would not be practicable except in the case of a building built for a single plant. In erecting a building to house a number of laundries the question of ventilation should receive special and very careful attention and the services of an expert ventilating engineer should be utilized.

I should think that the best size for such building would be one giving ten or twelve thousand square feet on each floor, and so arranged that the floors could be divided in half, with water supply, steam supply and drainage worked out for the proper accommodation of two laundries on a floor. These plants vary in size and space requirements and this arrangement would enable the accommodation of either a moderate-sized plant or a quite large one. Of course there are some which require much more than ten thousand square feet.

The best floor construction undoubtedly would be concrete with granolithic surface. Such floors, however, are not waterproof and it would be necessary to construct special floors for the wash-kitchens. Much trouble is caused where these wash-kitchen floors are not properly put in. Once the machinery is installed on them it is very expensive to renew the floors or repair them, both on account of the work involved in moving machinery and on account of the interruption of business. It pays, therefore, to have the wash-kitchen floors absolutely right from the start. When laundries go into ordinary buildings they have to install their own wash-kitchen floors, or pay for the installation.

Floor Construction.

Poor waterproofing, underlying a concrete floor of ash concrete improperly mixed and topped with a shell of hard concrete, has caused serious trouble in many instances. The best five-ply tar and paper waterproofing, properly flashed, with a solid concrete floor laid thereon, of sufficient thickness to allow the necessary gutters and stand the strain to be put upon it, is the cheapest in the end. There should be a safety course of sand and cement an inch or two thick laid on the waterproofing before the coarser concrete is put in. In such of our own buildings as accommodate laundries it is required either that the laundry tenant shall contract to pay for such a floor, installed by our own contractors, or else shall engage to install the floor in strict accordance with our specifications and under our direct supervision. The question should be considered, in connection with the erection of buildings especially for laundries, whether this work should not be done on each floor as tenants were secured, as the size of the wash-kitchen floors needed would vary in different cases.

Delivery Facilities.

Elevator service is another matter that would require special study and consideration in erecting a building for laundries. The demands made by a laundry on the elevator service of a building, if it be above the ground floor, are very great, and delays caused by inability to secure the elevator are likely to be costly to the laundry. It is not alone because of waiting wagons and drivers, but still more for the reason that a large part of the work must be delivered on the hour —especially flat work. It is a fact that many restaurants and hotels do not carry enough linen in stock to tide them over a meal hour if their laundry supply does not come in at the usual time. Steamships, also railway dining cars, must have deliveries without fail or uncertainty.

Laundries that handle shirts, collars, etc., are also under high-pressure as to deliveries, especially on certain days of the week. The requirements of laundries in the matter of elevator service would be an important factor in limiting the height of a building constructed solely for their use, as the space occupied by elevators, and the cost of them, would be a consideration of no small moment. From my experience I should say that one slow-speed freight elevator could hardly serve more than two fair sized flat laundry plants in a manner satisfactory to the laundries. I have not studied this point closely enough to determine it with exactitude, but it is certain that several freight elevators should be provided in a six or eight story laundry building designed to accommodate one or two laundries on a floor, and these should be operated in such a manner that certain ones would serve only certain tenants.

Reliability of Service.

The great essential to make a building popular with laundries is reliability of service. Nothing is more dreaded by them than a shutdown ,as their work is continuous and their deliveries must be made, as before mentioned, with regularity and practically on the hour. They not only suffer heavy expense in case of a shutdown, having to get their work done by such other laundries as can and will accommodate them, and being obliged at the same time to pay wages to many of their hands, but also are very likely to lose valued customers. Reliability of service is their strongest card in soliciting business. Buildings which occasionally shut down their plants for one or two days or a week for repairs are hopeless propositions for laundries. A building devoted exclusively to laundries should have always in reserve at least one boiler and one generator and extra pumps, etc., so that no ordinary accident or need for repairs could cause a shut-down.

In view of some special costs in the construction of the building, number of elevators, duplications in the plant, etc., it would be necessary to have a location where the cost of the ground was moderate, in order that the cost of the whole proposition might not be too great to enable the offering of reasonable rentals. The best location would seem to be in the most easterly or most westerly sections of the midtown district. I think there is little question that a building well adapted to the use of laundries and affording such facilities as they require could be filled in a reasonable time and kept full, providing reasonable rents could be offered.

The average laundry is not able to pay high rents. The laundry business does not fluctuate as much as some others. There is always an enormous amount of it in a city like New York, and laundries that are reasonably well managed are fairly to be relied upon for permanency and for regularity in the payment of their obligations, even though they have not a large working capital. Moreover, the conditions under which the laundry machine companies sell their machinery makes for the continuance of the business even in case of a failure. The machinery is all sold on the installment plan under contract, and in case of a failure, if the plant be a well equipped one, the machine company is very likely to find another party to take it over and continue the business.

USEFUL APPLIANCES

Novelties, New Applications of Familiar Devices and the Trend of Invention, Designed to Aid the Architect, Builder and Building Manager, Described Without Regard to Advertising Consideration.

The Self-Oiling Mop.

A novelty which will commend itself to building managers and especially to apartment house custodians is a new self-oiling polishing mop, which is being manufactured by the Eureka Sales Company, of 116 South Michigan Boulevard, Chicago, Ill. It overcomes the objections frequently found against the old-style polishing mops as it is practically a fountain polisher. Its chief advantage is that it distributes the oil evenly, whereas under the old method of distributing from a bucket the oil cannot be spread so evenly. Each mop has a brass chamber at the top into which a special polish, manufactured by the Eureka Company, is poured. The mop is round and every strand comes in contact with the floor, thus protecting furniture and baseboards from becoming marred.

Heat-Proof Insulation.

The Independent Lamp & Wire Co., of 1733 Broadway, has received notification from the National Board of Underwriters that tests have shown that its coverings over wire submitted for the board's approval were not injured by the heat to which they are liable to be subjected on magnet coils. The board furthermore approved of this insulating material on February 18.

THE CINCINNATI MEETING.

Leading Features That Will Interest Building Managers and Owners.

Secretary C. A. Patterson of the National Building Managers' Association writes from Chicago that "the orchestra is now playing the overture for the sixth convention of the National Association of Building Owners and Managers, June 10 to 13, inclusive. The best program, the biggest crowd, and the finest exposition are assured and it is sincerely hoped that every man or woman interested in buildings, will avail themselves of the cordial invitation we are now extending to you to meet with us on June 10 to 13 in the South Wing of the Music Hall, Cincinnati. Please remember it is not necessary for you to be a member of our National Association to be eligible to attend this convention."

"The Sinton Hotel is the Convention headquarters and we would advise all delegates to make reservations at once. The rates are $2.00 and up and reservations can be made direct with the hotel."

A clay model of the plan of the New York Central's west side development may be seen by property owners in the Board of Estimate room.

The big blast on the Panama Canal, which let in the waters of the Pacific, was heard 'round the world, as well as in Japan. The steam shovel and the rock-driller in the hands of American engineers and builders are great peacemakers.

The Board of Estimate's Committee on Standardization of Salaries and Grades is expected to have its report ready for use in connection with the making of the 1914 budget. The report will show the amount of work done by each city employer, the value of his work and his salary.

Sinking Fund Commission voted this week to comply with the request of R. A. C. Smith, Dock Commissioner, that condemnation proceedings be instituted for acquisition of property between West 44th and West 48th streets, on the North River, for construction of the long piers planned for that section.

A correspondent wants to know who will put money into real estate mortgages when the city of New York sells bonds at an average price which will yield interest at 4.49 per cent. Well, if mortgage money hadn't been so plentiful in the last few years, there would be fewer complaints now of overbuilding.

The Merchants' Association has offered two prizes for the best designs for an emblem and motto to be attached to merchandise distributed from this city. For the best design the Association will pay $150, and for the second best, $50. All designs must be forwarded to S. C. Mead, secretary of the Merchants' Association, at 233 Broadway, not later than July 1.

The Sixth Avenue Elevated Road a Disfigurement.

According to reports from Chicago, arrangements are being perfected between the city and the local traction company, whereby the elevated loop in the central part of Chicago will be torn down and a subway loop substituted for it. The destruction of the noisy, disfiguring and inefficient elevated district of Chicago will be an enormous boon to that city, and the citizens of New York may well envy Chicago its ability to get rid of such an incubus. The elevated roads of New York do not, with one exception, disfigure and hurt the business of its central streets and avenues; but that exception is very important. The Sixth avenue elevated road, particularly that part of it between 23d and 58th streets, costs the city of New York far more than it is worth. It seriously injures the availability for traffic and business of a centrally situated avenue.

Of course, its removal could not be considered, in case the Sixth avenue structure were the necessary part of a through route which served other districts of the city. But such is not the case. After the new subways are in operation the Sixth avenue elevated road could be abandoned entirely without doing any essential harm to the transit service of the city. The new Broadway and Seventh avenue subways would take its place—except for a comparatively small part of the total traffic.

The question is, however, who will pay for the loss? Assuming that some arrangement could be made with the company, the city would manifestly be obliged to do so, and the city could not afford to wipe off such a heavy expense. What it could afford to do, however, would be to pay for the abandonment of that portion of the Sixth avenue elevated between 23d and 58th streets. It would be entirely practicable to connect the Ninth with the Sixth avenue structure at 24th, instead of 53d street, and scrap the elevated structure north of 24th street. As a consequence of so doing the part of Sixth avenue most needed for traffic and business purposes would be relieved from this oppressive burden. Greeley Square in particular would be enormously benefited. The whole avenue north of 24th street would soon be improved with modern buildings. Many years will not elapse before improvements of this kind will be imperatively demanded by public opinion. An initial step towards getting rid of burdensome elevated structures will soon be taken when the road across 42d street will be demolished, and some day this excellent example will be followed in other cases.

Traffic Congestion on Fifth Avenue.

The delays, which inevitably result from attempting to travel up and down Fifth avenue in a vehicle during the busy parts of a day are again causing a great deal of complaint. In the days when these delays occurred only at important crosstown streets, such as 34th and 42d street, the resulting inconvenience was tolerable; but the growth of business on the side streets between 32d and 50th streets and the consequent increase of lateral traffic has resulted in the stoppage of the stream of vehicles moving up and down town at many more intersecting streets. Moreover, the lateral traffic on the broader street has increased as a natural result of the very measures which have been taken to relieve the congestion. When it was decided, under the present administration, to widen the roadways of Fifth avenue and of the more important intersecting streets, the decision was undoubtedly the best immediate step that could be taken to accelerate the movement of vehicular traffic. As a consequence a large increase in the number of vehicles has been provided for, and everything would be satisfactory, were it not necessary for thick streams of traffic to cross each other at grade. Manifestly, the larger the intersecting streams became the more they interfered with each other; and it is only a question of time when the resulting congestion will become intolerable.

Anybody who considers the matter closely will admit that such a result is only a question of time. In the days of horse vehicles, New York did not have any serious traffic problems, because the use of these vehicles was forbidden, except to people who could afford private carriages. Hired cabs were a negligible element in the street traffic, except at night, when there was very little congestion anywhere outside of the theater district. But the motor vehicle has changed all this. Many well-to-do people who did not formerly keep private carriages now keep automobiles, because the latter are so much more useful. Many people who formerly rode in a cab very rarely, are now constant patronizers of taxi-cabs. Moreover, during the past ten years there has been an enormous increase in the transient and permanent population of the district within which a taxi-cab fare is not excessively expensive. Large hotels have multiplied. The avenues and the side streets in the central residential district are being crowded with apartment houses. Park avenue, for instance, between 50th and 70th street, must have five times the population that it had ten years ago. The comparatively new type of nine-story fireproof building is being erected in considerable numbers in all eligible sixty-foot streets.

Farther downtown office and loft buildings are being erected as far east as Fourth avenue, and as far west as Eighth avenue, thus necessitating an increase of trips, which includes a certain amount of traveling in lateral directions. Yet considerable as have been the growth in all these respects, the movement is comparatively young. The use of motor vehicles is still very much on the increase. The taxi-cab business is growing, and will grow more rapidly as soon as some of the existing evils are eradicated. In the future business will be forced more and more to locate on the side streets and at increasingly considerable distances from Fifth avenue. The causes which make a certain class of New Yorkers wish to live in a centrally situated apartment house are becoming more powerful. It is, consequently, only a question of time when the streams of traffic, moving north and south on Fifth avenue, Madison, Park, Broadway and Seventh avenues will be interrupted by lateral streams of traffic on almost all the side streets from 34th to 59th streets. The delays will become literally intolerable and will interfere seriously with the business and the prosperity of the middle districts of Manhattan.

It is difficult to see what can be done in order to meet this difficulty. Subways or viaducts, similar to the arrangement which will carry Park avenue traffic across 42d street are suggested, and doubtless attempts will have to be made very soon to build such subways or viaducts. But the difficulties will be enormous, just because there will be so many intersecting streams of traffic to be provided for. It will not be enough to take care of those intersections which are peculiarly congested at the present time, such as Fifth avenue at 34th and 42d streets. It will be just as necessary to take care of the intersections of the same streets with Broadway or of the intersections of Fifth avenue with 45th and other crosstown streets of increasing traffic importance. Much might have been effected at one time by the construction of a well situated diagonal avenue, such as that recently suggested between Park avenue and 40th street and Seventh avenue and 34th street, but at the present the city has not the credit to finance this class of improvement out of bonds, and it has not the legal power to finance it by the method of excess condemnation.

Such being the general condition, it looks as if in the end some means would have to be taken to discourage the increase of vehicular passenger traffic. Why would it not be sound municipal policy to impose a comparatively heavy license fee upon the ownership and operation of every passenger vehicle which uses the streets of Manhattan? How high it would be possible to grade this fee could only be determined after careful inquiry, but it should be high enough to discourage their use without being anywhere near prohibitory. In this way the city could obtain a substantial income, which could be used to pay for that structural improvement, necessitated by this very vehicular traffic. It must be remembered that the people who ride in these vehicles form a comparatively small class, and that the convenience of this small class will in the end impose a very heavy burden on the whole community, so far as possible this class should be made to pay for its own conveniences. The shopkeepers and restaurant keepers of the central district would, of course, object to the imposition of any such tax on the ground of interference with business; but the interference would be slight, provided the tax were properly adjusted. The people who were discouraged from riding in private vehicles as the result of the tax would not for that reason either desert New York or abandon their errands. Probably it would be unfair to lay this tax until after the new subway system is in operation, and adequate means of public transit have been provided, but when the new subways are completed, it would not do comparatively affluent people any harm to encourage them to use it by making the luxury of private vehicles increasingly costly.

THE WEEK IN REAL ESTATE.

People whose memory of the real estate business goes back about fifteen years will find many interesting parallels between the market situation as it was then and as it is to-day. At that time rents were at a low ebb and taxes were high. Then, as now, there were complaints about the extravagance of the city government. The Strong administration had spent what was for that period unexampled sums on public works. Assessed valuation of real property had been rapidly advanced, and the disposition was quite general to attribute the existing stagnation of the market to legislative interference and onerous taxes rather than to general industrial condition and to local overbuilding.

In these latter respects the situation was analagous to what it is today. Mercantile premises in the wholesale district west of Broadway from Canal to 14th street had lost tenants heavily because of a great reconstruction movement which had developed in the adjacent stretch of Broadway; and there had been a building boom in the East Side tenement section. During the years of industrial depression after the panic of 1893 capital had gone freely into the building loan market, and construction enterprises had outrun the growth of demand for housing, both mercantile and residential.

Sentiment with regard to real estate was, if anything, more pessimistic then than it is now, because foreclosures of new buildings were of about daily occurrence and there was no definite outlook for rapid transit construction. Yet in a couple of years sentiment underwent a complete transformation, real estate entered a new period of activity and the matter of high taxes was presently forgotten.

Now, the part which legislative enactments and an expanding city budget have played in bringing about the real estate situation of today should not be minimized. But sound business judgment demands a realization of the fact that the main source of the current market stagnation is overbuilding, coupled with reduced activity in general industry.

As a matter of fact, there probably never was a time within half a dozen years after a major panic when real estate prospects were as good as they are now. The overbuilding is not serious; indeed, it is a normal and wholesome phenomenon, all things considered, and the reduction of rents which it has caused will be one of the principal factors in the rapid industrial expansion of the city that must take place as soon as prosperity becomes once more general throughout the country.

How long will the oversupply of housing last when the 26,000 manufacturing establishments begin to take on additional employees and to work at full capacity? Presently, also, the biggest army of workmen ever gathered together on great public works by any city will be concentrated here from all parts of the world. And the new operatives and mechanics and laborers will not only create an exceptional demand for housing, but their salaries and wages will be distributed throughout the business community by way of retail trade.

The Owner's Bugaboo.

Editor of the RECORD AND GUIDE:

The trials of the property owner were voiced in expressive language by Mr. Lawrence Benet in a recent issue. His experiences and tribulations with the various city departments have convinced him that the ownership of property in this city is by no means a sinecure, but rather an exhausting drain on patience, pocketbook and time.

While it is true that the various city departments are issuing an exhaustless stream of violations directed against property holders, Mr. Benet and hundreds of other owners similarly situated seem to forget that they have within their reach the means of relieving themselves of the burden of time-and-patience consuming detail with which they are harassed. The age of concentration has arrived in property management as well as in business and responsible organizations have arisen, equipped to do the work of a hundred owners.

Through co-operation at a nominal charge, these property-holders avail themselves of the high salaried building managers which these organizations are able to support. Instead of Mr. Benet and a hundred other owners taking a half-day off and attempting through the entangling maze of red tape to reach the proper department heads in regard to their violations, is it not more sensible to engage one person competent, efficient and knowing the ropes to speak for them?

The various departments are not in a conspiracy to confiscate the owner's property. It is their duty to affix a violation for a "broken pane of glass in the hall," as well as for a more serious violation. Instead of Mr. Benet and those situated like him spending precious hours away from their business, and travelling to their buildings for trivial matters, is it not wiser and more economical to have a building manager remedy these violations in his daily rounds of inspection?

No owner identified with our organization or with any of the better grade agencies would have had cause for a complaint of that nature. Our system of daily inspection by capable, experienced building managers would have avoided in time many of the petty violations forming against the building. These men are thoroughly conversant with all the provisions of the various codes and their eyes are trained to detect any infraction of the rules.

Not a few of these violations can be remedied with the turn of a wrench or a screw-driver. Leaking faucets, an all too common but entirely unnecessary drain on the owner's pocketbook, is impossible under such condition. The building manager must have a practical working knowledge of all the building trades. If a "time and material" job is necessary, the building manager rings up the owner and receives his consent before he lets out the work. The owner in that way is always in touch with what is going on in his building without having to waste his precious time and energy travelling to and fro seeking out contractors to do the job, or supervising the work.

The handling of the tenants is always a delicate problem with the owner. Many of the orders issued against the owner are really infractions of the terms of the lease between the owner and tenant. The owner fears to antagonize the tenants and very often will shoulder the expense of having the violation removed. The agent's position is more impersonal, and he can compel the tenant to live up to the terms of his covenant in every particular.

Not infrequently the owner receives a violation which is unwarranted. Perhaps Mr. Benet was right about his flues. But did he have the knowledge of conditions and the provision of the code relating thereto, to bring home his contention to the department? We have been instrumental in saving thousands of dollars for our property-holders because our building manager is familiar with the various codes, and is in a position to take issue and point out where the Department is in error. Our experience has been that the Departments will sooner heed the contention of a reputable and powerful organization, backed with the knowledge of its experts, than that of a single owner.

Mr. Benet and owners situated like him should realize their failure in management is due to their own inefficiency, that the business of management under present conditions has become a profession, that the modern high-grade agencies have reduced management to a scientific basis, eliminating waste and achieving economies all along the line. The time is soon at hand when an owner will as lief think of managing his building himself as treating himself when ill without the aid of a physician. SPEAR & CO.

Park Avenue Association.

At the last meeting of the "Park Avenue Improvement Association" the following officers were elected for the ensuing year: President, William Bondy; first vice president, Jas. E. Ware; second vice president, H. H. D. Klinker; consulting architects, Jas. E. Ware & Sons; secretary-treasurer, Chas. H. Schnelle, 1390 Lexington avenue.

Executive Committee—Chas. L. Bernheimer, Gordon Knox Bell, C. Alfred Capen, Hon. Ralph Folks, Stanley M. Isaacs, Lewis K. Neff, M. D.; Robert Thorne, Chas. Wanninger, Everett P. Wheeler.

The secretary was authorized to issue a prospectus to be mailed to all interested in Park avenue. Already has the work of the association been productive of good results in the planting of new shrubbery in the park spaces, and promises of more improvements have been made by those interested.

An Architect as President.

For the first time since the organization, in 1896, of the National Fire Protection Association its president is not identified with the fire insurance business. This innovation signifies the intent to broaden the influence of the association. The new president, Robert D. Kohn, is an architect of prominence in his profession and president of the New York Chapter of the American Institute of Architects.

The architect can be a powerful agent for good in the movement for fire prevention, but at present he is an undeveloped force, says the Insurance Press.

"The hope is that architects will take an interest in the work of the N. F. P. A. like that of those who established it, and meet with them in the conventions and discuss the rules and requirements in a helpful way. The association needs the help of architects, and the architects need the help of the association."

Architects' Society Elects.

The New York Society of Architects, at its annual meeting held May 20 in the United Engineering Building, elected new officers, directors and committees as follows: President, C. Schumann; Vice-President, J. R. Gordon; Secretary, W. T. Towner; Treasurer, L. Berger; Directors, J. R. Gordon, J. N. Knubel, J. C. Schaeffler, E. Roth, H. Holder, Jr.

Committees, composed as follows, were elected for one year, the first name in each committee being that of the chairman: Membership—R. Berger, Wuehrlin, H. Holder, Jr. General Welfare—Gordon, Haller, Volckening. Year Book—Schubert, Towner, Lowinson. Legislation—A. E. Fisher. Tenement House Laws—Sass, Goldberg, Nordheim. Professional Practice—Erda, Towner, Hahn. Publicity—Towner, Muller, Horenburger. Factory Laws—J. C. Schaeffler. Fire Laws—Roth and Teichman. Registration—Sass, Lowinson and Regelman. Competitions—Gordon, Towner and Erda. City Departments—O. Lowinson. Building Code—C. Schaeffer, Jr. Civic Improvements—Towner, Gordon and Dreisler.

The Directors' meetings for the year will be held on the first Thursday evening of each month and the general meetings on the third Tuesday.

DECISION OF MAGISTRATE FRESCHI IN GREATER NEW YORK BRICK COMPANY INVESTIGATION IN FULL.*

Effect upon Building Material Interests—
Stockholders Not Liable to Prosecution.

THE decision in the investigtion made by the District Attorney into the affairs of the Greater New York Co. at at the instance of F. M. Weeks, et al, wherein Magistrate Freschi found sufficient cause for holding the defendant company for trial, came as a decided shock to the building material interests of the district. Many had come to beleve that the case would be allowed to go by default through the automatic operation of the statue of limitation which soon would have been operative in this case. The formal arraignment of the Gnybco officers and directors on Wednesday night, therefore, revived interest in the matter, but as far as the market was concerned it had no effect despite the fact that the sales last week were only forty-sven cargoes against a normal sixy. Lumber ruled firm on short buying, Portland cement was stiff at the $1.58 level, hardwoods continued to show greater stiffness on prices; paints were steady and fireproofing firm.

BRICKMAKERS' NEXT MOVE.

Gnybco Directors in Attorney's Custody —Case to Trial June 11.

AT a time when the general building material market was all but convinced that the investigation of the Greater New York Brick Company by the District Attorney's office on complaint of Francis M. Weeks and others would be allowed automatically to expire through the application of the statute of limitations, the decision rendered by Magistrate John J. Freschi in which he found that sufficient evidence had been adduced by Assistant District Attorney Millard H. Ellison, to warrant going to trial wth the officers and directors of the defendant company, came as a severe shock to the general building material market this week. General opinion seemed previously to have been that while the Assistant District Attorney had brought out considerable damaging testimony, most of the alleged violations were thought to have been of a highly technical character and that the decision of the Magistrate finally would be that there was not sufficient cause for action or that the statute of limitations would operate to terminate it.

As matters now stand the officers and directors of the Greater New York Brick Co. are under parole in the custody of their counsel, Frank M. Paterson. John DeWitt Warner, counsel for the complainants, Francis M. Weeks and others, are preparing to push the case either into the Grand Jury room direct or to prosecution before a trial jury. What course will be taken has been left to the decision of Mr. Patterson, but the case will be moved for trial on June 11 which is the date to which the court paroled the defendants in the care of their counsel when they must be again arraigned for further examination.

The list of men facing trial in criminal procedure for alleged violation of the Donnelly Anti-Trust law reads like a part of a roster of the largest, oldest and most honored brick manufacturers, of the North River district. It starts off with former State Senator John B. Rose and is followed by Robert Main and George W. Washburn of Saugerties, N. J.; Alva S. Staples, Harry R. Brigham, Frederick P. Luther, David Terry and George Hutton, Kingston; Everett Fowler, Denton Fowler, Jr., John F. Shankey, John E. Lynch, and William Malley, Haverstraw; William N. Cary, Mechanicsville; William A. Nicholson and Aaron E. Aldridge, Fishkill Landing; George S. Allison and Lucien H. Washburn, Stony Point; Percival Goldkin and William W. Rider, Catskill; Matthew Hayden, New Windsor; Hiram Merritt, Newburg, and Clarence L. Beakley, Verplank.

Conrad F. Suderley, of Coeymans, N. Y., the twenty-fourth defendant was too ill to be present and the twenty-fifth defendant, Alonzo Rose died since the case was begun in March, 1912.

The Decision.

The decision upon which Wednesday night's arraignment was made was handed down by Magistrate Freschi in the West Side Court. Owing to his recent illness the case has been delayed longer than otherwise would have been necessary. The action heretofore taken was merely in the form of an investigation to permit the court to determine from evidence at hand whether there was any ground for considering a formal complaint on apparent violations of the Donnelly act and the penal code and the court's findings are as follows:

"I have the record—very voluminous testimony, of which Mr. Warner has been so good as to make an abstract. On the law, as Mr. Warner has pointed it out to me, the Greater New York Brick Company, incorporated as a selling agency or a commission agency for the manufacture of the common North River brick by the individuals who maintain and operate the plants in the Hudson River Valley, is an unlawful combination in restraint of trade. This matter came before me on an information charging the Greater New York Brick Company, its officers, directors and stockholders, with being a monopoly in restraint of trade, and more particularly charging a violation of the so-called Donnelly Act, being that part of the General Business Law known as and by Sections Numbers 340 and 341.

The Law.

"Section 340 of the General Business Law of this State provides that 'every contract, agreement, arrangement or combination whereby a monopoly in the manufacture, production or sale in this State of any article or commodity of common use is or may be created, established or maintained, or whereby competition in this State in the supply of price of any such article or commodity is or may be restrained or prevented, or whereby, for the purpose of creating, establishing or maintaining a monopoly within the State of manufacture, production or sale of any such article or commodity, the free pursuit in this State of any lawful business, trade or occupation is or may be restrained or prevented, is hereby declared to be against public policy, illegal and void.'

"Section 341 provides the penalty for the violation of Section 340 of this law. The complainant charges that the word 'arrangement' in the anti-monopoly act, supra, making every contract, agreement, arrangement or combination whereby a monopoly may be created or whereby competition may be restrained, unlawful, has had a broader meaning than either the words 'contract, agreement or combination,' and it may include each and all of these things and more, and means the disposition of measures for the accomplishment of a purpose, and a structure or combination of things in a particular way for any purpose. I have come to the conclusion that there is probable cause to believe that there is a monopoly in restraint of trade in this case such as is forbidden by the statute just quoted. I am of the opinion that the monopoly or restraint of trade which has been forbidden includes not only that which is absolute, but every grade of tendency thereto by which any trade or industry or public or private interest is materially affected.

"I am satisfied that the evidence before me, as summed up, tends to show that the association in question was formed for the purpose of controlling the manufacture of brick, the production of brick and the price of brick, in the interest of its members, and inasmuch as it seems to be, and these is probable cause to believe it to be, a combination to fix, control and regulate prices of brick, that it is such a combination or monopoly as violates the Anti-Trust laws, and I therefore have come to the conclusion to issue a summons against the Greater New York Brick Company, and a warrant against its officers and directors. Now, there is no formal complaint, except depositions by the various witnesses that were examined before me, and I take it that that will serve the purpose of an information. Is that agreeable to both sides?"

Mr. Patterson: "I have not decided on that. We are not ready to make such a stipulation."

Mr. Ellison: "That is the regular procedure. Judge Scudder issued warrants right on the facts—on the testimony that was taken at the preliminary hearing."

The Court: "We must admit, however, that in the record and in those depositions there is a great deal of hearsay evidence that would be inadmissible ordinarily, but I want to assure counsel for the defendants in this case that I have absolutely not been influenced one way or the other by that hearsay evidence. I have simply considered what I thought was competent in the case. These authorities that Mr. Warner submits are very strong and directly in point—People vs. The Milk Exchange, 145 N. Y., and the Bluestone case."

Mr. Paterson: "I cannot see what harm there will be in giving up a copy of their brief. Will you let me have it?"

Mr. Ellison: "I think so. There is no objection, so far as I am concerned."

The Court: "Do you remember the citation in the Bluestone case?"

Mr. Ellison "Yes."

The Court: "Then there is The People vs. American Ice Company, in 120 N. Y., and the Standard Oil case. I intended to write a memorandum in this case, but I found that my time was limited and I was afraid that I might take up more time than I should; it was so near the time that the Statute of Limitations would operate here as a bar to prosecution that I felt that I ought to decide this case at once. I have been sick nearly eight weeks, Mr. Warner, and that is one of the reasons why I have delayed so long."

Mr. Ellison: "Do I understand that your Honor holds the Greater New York Brick Company and the officers and directors of the Greater New York Brick Company for trial?"

The Court: "The officers are the same men that compose the directors?"

Mr. Ellison: "Yes, the officers are on the board of directors. As I recall it, there are about twenty-eight directors."

Mr. Warner: "That is right."

The Court: "There was a request that the stockholders be held, but I shall not hold the stockholders."

Mr. Ellison: "No, I do not press that; I do not think that they ought to be held. I do not think there could be guilty knowledge brought to them."

Mr. Warner: "We appreciate there is a distinction."

Mr. Ellison: "We do not know whether Mr. Patterson will produce these men in Court. If not, I will have to apply for a warrant. I do not want to do that, but I do not think it will be necessary."

The Court: "Oh, no."

Mr. Ellison: "If Mr. Patterson will produce them on some fixed day then we can fix bail and go right to trial. I think your Honor has power only to hold them for the Grand Jury?"

The Court: "Yes."

Mr. Ellison: "Then Mr. Patterson can move to have it transferred down there."

The Court: "You charge, Mr. Warner, a violation of Section 340 of the General Business Law, which provides that contracts for monopoly are illegal and void, and Section 341 provides the penalty."

Mr. Ellison: "A year's imprisonment and five thousand dollars fine."

The Court: "If a natural person is convicted under this law, he may be punished by a fine not exceeding five thousand dollars, or by imprisonment for not longer than one year, or by both; and if a corporation, by a fine not exceeding twenty thousand dollars. Now, the statute—Section 341 of the Business Law speaks of an indictment based on a violation of any of the provisions of this section, and it states that it must be founded within two years? So I take it from that, that I must hold for the Grand Jury, just as I would hold in a case of criminal libel. I cannot see any objection to that. The defendant would rather have it go to the Grand Jury in the first instance, and I think I have a right to hold.

"So, if you will present your papers, Mr. District Attorney, I will issue a summons as provided under the Code of Criminal Procedure against this corporation—alleged monopoly, and then we shall prepare formal papers and warrants against the officers and directors of the corporation. What day do you want? Tuesday will be my last day here. Now, Mr. Warner, I think Mr. Patterson will agree to this; I will issue the summons against the corporation and the warrants against the officers and directors, and Mr. Patterson will surrender his parties here. I will parole the officers and directors in his custody, so that he may have reasonable time on an adjournment that I shall grant him to advise with his clients whether he wants an examination in this Court, and to advise further what, if any, steps he should take. If he finds that on the adjourned day, after I will have paroled his clients with him, that he wants to waive further examination here, that is his privilege, and I will then transfer the case to the Grand Jury forthwith."

Mr. Ellison: "Now, for the purposes of the record, Judge, suppose I get the names of the officers and directors on the record against whom you issue warrants."

The Court: "Well, the warrants will be issued formally, in order that the criminal proceedings will be formally instituted, and I do not think it is necessary to serve them. They will be surrendered; the counsel states that."

Mr. Ellison: "We will not lose anything to get in on the record. We can get it right from this testimony."

Mr. Warner: "The only thing, your Honor, is the fact that your Honor referred to that the Statute of Limitations will very shortly commence to run, and I see no suggestion for a

THE WEEK'S REAL ESTATE NEWS

Brokerage Sales, Auctions, Foreclosure Suits, Building Loans, etc., Together With Brief Personal Items.

There Was Little Business of Note Transacted This Week.

Nothing notable occurred this week to relieve the dull tendencies of the real estate market. The Fort Washington section was conspicuous by virtue of a few big deals. The Lawyers' Mortgage Co. disposed of a number of properties, recently acquired at foreclosure. The trading was the lightest in weeks.

The total number of sales in Manhattan this week was 26.

The sales north of 59th street aggregated 19, compared with 30 last week and 31 a year ago.

From The Bronx, 16 sales at private contract were reported, against 18 last week and 13 a year ago.

The amount involved in the Manhattan and Bronx auction sales this week was $1,483,580, compared with $814,958 last week, making a total since January 1 of $23,832,971. The figure for the corresponding week last year was $1,222,430, making the total since January 1, 1912, $21,543,605.

THE SCHUYLER ARMS CORPORATION has been incorporated to take over the "Schuyler Arms," the 5-sty apartment house at 305 West 98th st, reported sold last week by the Robert Hoe estate through Frederick Fox & Co.

THE TITLE GUARANTEE & TRUST CO. loaned on first mortgage $50,000 to Stanley A. Cohen on the 4-sty loft building at 130 William st, on a plot 24.8x161.1x irregular. The mortgae is for three years at five per cent.

A SPECIAL MEETING of the United Real Estate Owners associations will be held on Monday evening, May 26, in Parlor A, Grand Union Hotel, for the purpose of taking action on the income tax as it affects real estate interests and other matters.

WILLIAM F. STANHOPE, for the Lawyers Mortgage Co., has sold, since May 9, in conjunction with various brokers, 14 properties which had been acquired at foreclosure sales by the Lawyers Mortgage Co. The parcels are located in Manhattan, the Bronx and Brooklyn.

MAURICE WERTHEIM was the sole broker in the exchange of 16 East 64th st, the 6-sty American basement house owned by the Charles Buek Construction Co., for the "Ramondo," the 7-sty fireproof elevator apartment house at the southwest corner of Park av and 74th st.

CITIZENS of the East Side have arranged a dinner for Allan Robinson, president of the Allied Real Estate Interests, in the Waldorf-Astoria, May 29, to show their appreciation of his activity in the recent controversy with Russia, which resulted in the abrogation of the Treaty of 1832. Joseph P. Day has charge of the arrangements.

THE ESTATE of the Baroness von Zimmerman, located on Sherbrooke Road, in Scarsdale, Westchester County, is to be sold at Supreme Court foreclosure sale by Bryan L. Kennelly on May 31. The property consists of a large dwelling and numerous outhouses, and five acres of ground.

THE MUCH AUCTIONED dwelling 18 East 82d st was sold in foreclosure proceedings again this week in the Vesey st salesroom, by Bryan L. Kennelly. It was struck down to Wesley Thorn, who is understood to represent Fannie Hoadley, the defendant to the action. This is the sixth time the house has been sold at auction under the same action and acquired by the defendant.

AN AGREEMENT has been reached between the Public Service Commission and the Astor Estate, by which the city will pay $600,000 for the acquisition of a perpetual easement under the southerly half of the Astor House for the subway now under construction. The work of tearing down the old hotel will probably be begun about July 1.

BALDWIN HARBOR REALTY CO., which is developing more than 600 acres at Baldwin, L. I., gave to the local Fire Department a large plot last week as the site for a fire house on the southeast corner of Verity lane and Church street. Many bungalows and dwellings have been erected on the property by owners and home seekers as all-year-round residences. The fire house is to be finished this summer.

RECENT purchases of whole blocks of property on the lower West side by the New York Central Railroad are the first steps toward the establishment of the greatest warehouse district in the world. The city, through John Purroy Mitchel, as representative of the Board of Estimate, has agreed to the improvement, which will be undertaken as soon as some minor details can be arranged.

FORECLOSURE proceedings have been started against another property with which Henry Corn's name has been associated, the northeast corner of 5th av and 31st st, a 20-sty building on a plot 50.9x150. The action is brought by the Guaranty Trust Company against the Fifth Avenue Investing & Improvement Company and others. There are mortgages aggregating $1,450,000 on the property. It will be sold on June 10.

CHARLES F. NOYES CO., the brokers in the transaction, announced that the purchaser of 169-175 Hudson st is John A. Roebling Sons' Co. The building, which is 7-sty and basement structure, covering a lot 92x100, will be extensively altered for the purchaser's own business, which is now located on Liberty st. The property was held at about $200,000 and the building is one of the strongest in the neighborhood carrying 250 pounds to the sq. ft.

BILL OF COSTS.—The bill of costs in the proceedings of the city to acquire the title and possession of the wharfage rights to the pier at the foot of 43d st, North River, will be presented for confirmation to one of the Justices of the Supreme Court on May 26 at 10.30 a. m., at the County court house, Manhattan. The property has been taken for the improvement of the waterfront, pursuant to the plans of the Dock Commissioner.

ON WEDNESDAY next, at 11 A. M., the 15-sty building at the southwest corner of Broadway and Walker st will be offered in foreclosure as the result of a suit brought by the Equitable Life Assurance Society against the Improved Property Holding Company, Henry Corn, president. The building is L shaped, fronting 50.10 ft. in Broadway, 127.8 ft. in Walker st, with a west line measuring 100 ft. The sale will take place at the county court house.

THE PLOT of 12 lots, comprising the block front on the west side of Marginal st, facing the East River, bet 94th and 95th sts, was sold at auction on Thursday at the county courthouse. Eugene W. Mente was the successful bidder at $21,000. The sale was held under the direction of William L. Turner, special master in the action of the Pennsylvania Steel Co. against the New York City Railway Co. and others. The sale has to be confirmed by the courts.

W. BURLING COCKS, senior member of the real estate firm of Cocks & Willetts, 49 Wall st, N. Y. C., died Wednesday, May 21, at the Polyclinic Hospital. His death was caused by Southern fever, contracted during a recent trip to Palm Beach, Florida. He was well known socially in this city as well as on Long Island. Mr. Cocks was a keen sportsman, secretary of the Piping Rock Horse Show Association, and member of the Piping Rock, The Riding, The Turf and Field, the Nassau County, Meadow Brook Hunt and Union Clubs.

AN INTERESTING transfer has been recorded by which it is disclosed that the City of New York paid Trinity Corporation the sum of $129,405 for easement rights and perpetual right of way under St. Paul's cemetery for the tunnels now being constructed for the new Broadway subway. The easement rights cover the space needed for two tunnels, each 20½ ft. in diameter, beginning near the northeast corner of Church and Fulton sts and running below the church yard in a northeasterly direction to a point on the south side of Vesey st, 147.5 ft. east of Church st.

THROUGH A SERIES of transactions, all closed Thursday, the New York Orthopaedic Dispensary & Hospital, now occupying the property No. 126 East 59th st, has acquired ten parcels of land in 58th and 59th sts, between 1st av and Ave A, as follows: Nos. 421-435 East 58th st and 420-426 East 59th st. The frontage on 59th st is 88 ft., and on 58th st is 145 ft. These purchases were all made through Douglas Robinson, Charles S. Brown Company, who also acted for the owners in securing the cancellation of leases on various parcels. It is understood that the plans of the Trustees for the building to be erected on this plot are not yet complete.

STREET ENCROACHMENTS.

Borough President Cyrus C. Miller Asks and Answers Questions.

The following questions and answers will be useful to property owners interested in the removal of encroachments on Third, Tremont and Washington avenues:

Q.—Will owners be notified personally of any violations affecting encroachments on their property? A.—Yes.

Q.—Will existing cellar entrances on area line be permitted, if covered? A.—Existing entrances to cellars beyond building lines will be permitted, if covered, by iron doors or gratings level with the sidewalk not exceeding three feet by four feet in area, and if existing steps or stairs outside the building line leading to cellar are removed and straight iron engineer's ladders substituted to afford access to cellar.

Q.—Will ornamental plaster columns, water tables, sills or lintels be permitted, which if removed would destroy the architectural effect of buildings? A.—The following projections beyond building line are permitted for ornamental projections less than ten feet above curb level: Four inches for pilasters or ornamental columns of doorways. Six inches for bases of such pilasters or columns. Two inches for water tables, sills, lintels and ornamental courses. These projections do not include any steps above or below curb level. The projections permitted beyond building lines on Third, Tremont and Washington avenues in front of existing buildings, would be of the same dimensions, character and materials as now permitted by the regulations applying to the fronts of new buildings on all streets in this Borough.

Q.—Will show-window drop awnings be permitted? A.—No projections of show windows beyond building line are permitted. All permanent awnings or marquees of iron and glass must be not less than ten feet above sidewalk.

Q.—Will retaining walls built by the city at the area lines be removed and placed at street line, at the expense of property owners? A.—The opinion of the Corporation Counsel will be requested.

Q.—Will all kinds of signs or building projections above ten feet from sidewalk be permitted? A.—All signs over ten feet above sidewalk complying with provisions of ordinances, will be permitted. Porticos of doorways, cornices of store fronts and roof cornices, band courses, sills, lintels, and other ornamental projections will be permitted over ten feet above sidewalk.

Q.—Will projections of vault roofs and cellar or area entrances be ordered lowered to conform to ordinances in relation of pitch of same from building line to curb two feet, ten inches? A.—The usual rule will be that vault roofs and cellar or area entrances must be lowered to conform to present sidewalk.

Q.—Will cellar basement entrance doors in area lines be allowed to keep open and obstruct the sidewalk—we refer particularly to uses made of rented basement and cellars by icemen and others; the courts hold that they can be open if protected during use; this means in use a considerable part of the day in most cases? A.—As all steps to cellars or basements are prohibited and must be removed, the doors to cellars or basements will be closed except when actually in use for access to cellar or basement by storekeepers, on ground floor by means of engineers' ladders. These doors being of iron flush with sidewalk will cause no obstruction to traffic.

CYRUS C. MILLER,
President of the Borough of The Bronx.

Sectional Drawing of Hotel Astor.

A very interesting exhibit at the Hotel Astor is a large drawing showing the hotel as it might look if sliced in half, much as the sectional views of steamships are made. Every department and phase of work in the big hotel is clearly shown and described, from the carpenters' denlike workship, two floors below the street level, up through the grill, lobby, dining-rooms, ball rooms, guest rooms, and topping them all the roof garden.

A Builder's Miscalculation.

It is an elementary rule that the most important factor in any business venture is experience. Often shrewd business men, successful in their own business, are prone to forget that in a different field they are novices. This is peculiarly true in real estate, where fortunes may be lost on a single mistake of judgment.

Here is an instance, as related by Spear & Co., of 713 Broadway, that happens not infrequently. A builder, who has been successful in erecting and disposing of some uptown apartment houses, made up his mind to erect a loft building in a favorable spot in the uptown loft zone section.

In October or November, when his building was half completed, brokers besieged him with favorable offers. The renting men advised the builder that these offers compared advantageously with the prevailing values in the neighborhood; that inasmuch as his building would not be completed before February, the inducement of a few months' free rent was lacking. He was told that when the renting season drew to a close he could not hope to command the same rentals, as most of the desirable tenants leased space months in advance.

He paid little attention to these men who were in a position to understand conditions. As the days advanced he found fewer applicants for space. One month before the close of the renting season he awoke to the fact that his building was almost entirely unfilled. Frantic appeals to brokers elicited few responses. He began to cut his rentals and offers that were spurned two months before were eagerly accepted. The close of the renting season found his building half filled at greatly reduced figures from what he was led to expect at the beginning. His mistake of judgment had cost him from twenty-five to thirty thousand dollars.

Reduced Railroad Fare.

By agreement with the Public Service Commission for the First District, the Long Island Railroad during the week established a five-cent fare on express trains between Flatbush avenue and East New York stations. In order to get the benefit of the five-cent rate passengers must buy $1 worth of tickets which entitles them to twenty rides. Conductors have been instructed to accept these tickets on express trains, upon which the fare heretofore has been ten cents. There is not much difference in the service on the express trains and the local trains for this distance, but the fact that the fare was five cents on the locals and ten cents on the expresses caused an unequal distribution of the traffic and the undue crowding of local trains. In arranging for the five-cent rate on the express trains the commission hopes that conditions on the local trains will be relieved.

Improved Crosstown Service.

The Public Service Commission for the First District, upon the recommendation of Commissioner John E. Eustis, has dismissed the proceeding against the New York Railways Company involving the service on the 86th street crosstown line in Manhattan. The proceeding was begun on complaints from Alderman Gilmore and others against the short-lining of cars at Second avenue, and in many cases the collection of an extra fare from passengers who desired to travel east of Second avenue. During the hearings the company improved the service so that 60 per cent. of the cars were run through to the ferry and only 40 per cent. were short-lined at Second avenue.

The commissioner also directed the company to place an inspector at Second avenue to see that all passengers in short-lined cars desiring to go farther were transferred to through cars without the payment of an additional fare. The commission's inspection made after these improvements were put into effect showed that the service east of Second avenue was adequate, and the hearing was closed with the understanding that the present service will be continued and that the short-lining of cars will not be changed without the approval of the commission.

B. R. T. Cars on the Queensboro Bridge.

Chief Engineer Alexander Johnson of the Bridge Department thinks there is no occasion for Long Island City manufacturers to worry over the projected narrowing of the roadway on the Queensboro Bridge to provide room for the B. R. T. subway cars.

In an interview he said he was confident that the roadway, after the protective railings are put up to guard the railroad tracks, will be wide enough to accommodate all the vehicular traffic that will cross the bridge in the future.

Roof Garden for Hotel Marseilles.

The Hotel Marseilles, "the uptown hotel" at Broadway and 103d street, has had such a successful season that Manager Charles A. Weir is going to open a roof garden on the top of the hotel, overlooking Riverside Drive and the Hudson River on one side and upper Broadway on the other. The garden will be decorated in the usual manner, with latticework and foliage, but several new ideas will be incorporated in the lighting effects and the service.

Condemnation Report.

Alfred J. Eno, Charles A. Hendrickson and Wallace J. Hardgrove, the appraisers appointed on March 5th by the Commissioners of the Sinking Fund, to appraise the value of the lands owned by the city, and lands owned by Havemeyer & Elder, lying between Vernon avenue and the United States pier and bulkhead line, and Nott avenue and 13th street, Borough of Queens, which it is proposed to exchange, have completed their report. The land owned by Havemeyer & Elder is valued at $16,452.80, while that of the city, $8,226.40.

BARGAIN OPPORTUNITIES.

Now Is the Time to Pick Up Properties for a Little Money.—The Morris Park Auction.

This is bargain time in New York real estate. Never before were there such opportunities offered to pick up, for a little money, properties which, according to the views of the most experienced real estate men, would net their buyers small fortunes in the course of a very few years. All city real estate except possibly gilt-edged property bordering on the financial district about Wall street or lying near the great Fifth avenue retail shopping section, seems to be passing through a period of temporary depression which is causing prices to be quoted lower than actual values in many cases and is making opportunity for quick investors which is not likely to be equaled again in this generation.

Nobody who can afford to hold property is offering it at this time for bargain prices are the best that can be expected. For this reason those who know actual conditions are more than surprised at the audacity of the Banking Department of New York State in ordering the sale of the 3,019 lots in the Morris Park Race Track, the largest lot offering ever held in this or any other city, equaling as it does in volume, the sales of three ordinary years. There are those who freely predict that the sale will result in the greatest slashing of values ever recorded. There are others who say that the sale should not be held at this time.

The proceeds from it are to be used in settling the claims of depositors in two defunct banking institutions, and it is said that considerable more money could be obtained for the property a year or two hence, when, it is expected, the construction of new subways will have revived the land boom that accompanied the building of the present subway.

The Banking Department, however, has been so hard pressed for settlement by depositors who want whatever they are to have of their original deposits, that the sale must be held now though the lots bring only a small part of their value.

It is just such occasions that have resulted in the making of many of the real estate fortunes of New York. As in the stock market, the wise man in real estate buys when prices are lowest. There are hundreds of men in all parts of the country to-day who live in ease as the result of having seen an opportunity to buy cheaply in New York City and of having been able to grasp the opportunity. One such man, the writer recalls, is Brian G. Hughes of New York.

Twenty years ago when Jere Johnson, Jr., was traveling about the outskirts of New York selling lots at auction from an open carriage drawn by a pair of white horses and accompanied by a brass band, he happened one day to strike into South Brooklyn, then a wilderness without streets or any of the improvements the city makes. Johnson had an order to sell about 300 lots on what are now Fifth avenue, 64th, 65th and 66th streets. He had a small audience, to whom he announced that the owner of the property, being financially embarrassed, had decided to sell the lots for what they would bring, just as the Banking Department will offer the lots in Morris Park. Brian G. Hughes was one of those who believed in the future growth of the City of New York. He was sure that increasing population was straining to get into that open territory, just as it is straining now to get into Morris Park, but he never dreamed that the small investment he made that day would bring such return as it has.

Hughes paid $90 each for a plot of about ten lots on Fifth avenue from 64th to 65th streets. As soon as he had taken title to them, he erected a sign on them saying "Not for Sale, B. G. Hughes." Such opportunities as that offered to Hughes are not uncommon in New York real estate, but when they are offered, they must be acted upon quickly. In all businesses where a dollar's worth is offered for fifty cents comparatively few buyers are to be had, for almost everyone "smells a rat." It is on such occasions that skilful men put away opportunties to make fortunes while the few who are really wise and are willing to back up their convictions after investigation, make great profits.

Never before in the history of New York City have circumstances combined in such manner to favor small investors as they have in connection with lots in Morris Park. At the very poorest selling that anyone remembers 3,019 lots are to be sold. This means that, should each buyer take two lots, 1,500 buyers would be necessary to clean up the property at a time when there are no buyers for the best real estate New York has to offer. In former years, the purchases of 500 lot buyers—purchases made at intervals throughout a whole year—exhausted the funds available for investment. What, then, the question is being asked, will happen when the normal volume of money seeks investment at Morris Park? The only answer is that buyers will have a field day and that they may expect quicker and larger profits from their purchases than such investors ever have made.

New York's Greatness.

Chicago is next to New York in magnitude and importance as a business center, but just how close it is to the greatest city on this side of the Atlantic Ocean, or rather, how much greater New York is in comparison, may be surmised from the fact that in the four years ending in 1910 the money expended here on new buildings was more than the assessed value of the entire Western city. In these four years more than $380,000,000 was put into new construction in Manhattan Borough alone. The assessed value of the Windy City in 1910 was $344,000,000, or $40,000,000 less than the cost of a four-years' building campaign in Manhattan. The difference, it was estimated at the time, was equal to the realty value of a town the size of Lawrence, Mass., or Portland, the chief city of Maine. Last year's building operations in Manhattan, The Bronx, Brooklyn and Queens totaled more than $205,000,000.—New York Sun.

Modern Improvements

Isn't it true that ofttimes some small modern improvement goes a long way towards selling and renting your houses?

Take for example the plan that has recently been adopted by some builders of placing in newly built apartment houses electric washing machines and outlets in the kitchen for electric ironing and cooking.

Does any one doubt, all other things being equal, that these apartments are the ones that will be sold or rented first?

Families of today are educated to demand the comforts and conveniences of electric service, and they are quick to see the advantage of living in an apartment that will minimize the drudgery of housekeeping.

We have other ideas along these same lines. Drop us a line and we will talk them over with you.

View of New York in 1656—showing the city starting to grow Northerly along Pearl Street

Something You Don't Know:

Why New York has always grown Northerly from the very beginning—

Why the real money made in New York Real Estate has been along the line of this Northerly growth—

Why property on Fifth Avenue and vicinity has become the most valuable for Business and Residence—

Why this Northerly growth has been, is, and will be Persistent, Insistent and Consistent

Because—

Growth always follows the line of traffic. Transit Facilities follow traffic.

The choicest sections along transit lines become the most valuable for residential and business purposes.

New York grew Northerly first, as this was the line of traffic to Boston and the New England Colonies—(Boston Post Road).

Railroads followed and the City grew Northerly. Fifth Avenue and vicinity near Central Park being the choicest location, became the most valuable for Residence and later for Business purposes.

How does this apply to MORRIS PARK RACE TRACK?

Choice Property and Transit Facilities make Values. You have at Morris Park:

Four great Railroad Lines on or in the immediate vicinity—

Five Electric Trolley Lines through and adjoining—

Two Subway Lines (5c. fares) extending and being built—

Two new Railroad Lines projected.

Morris Park is the choicest and most beautiful property directly on the line of the Greatest Traffic.

It is high ground on a Parkway and in the immediate vicinity of Parks containing over 4,000 acres—or about five times the size of Central Park.

The Second or Third Avenue Elevated Railroad to 129th Street, thence by New York, Westchester and Boston Railroad or Morris Park Trolley car to the property.

All crosstown Bronx cars connect with all Elevated and Subway lines either at 129th, 135th or 145th Streets and transfer to Morris Park cars.

CURRENT BUILDING OPERATIONS

Biggest Base Ball Stadium.

Frank J. Farrell, president of the Greater New York Baseball Club, 320 Fifth avenue, will soon have a real ball park of his own. Plans are well under way for the building of one of the largest and most completely equipped baseball stadiums in either of the big leagues.

The park will occupy the entire plot bounded by Broadway, 225th and 226th streets, and the New York Central tracks. The plans for the layout of the field and the necessary stands and buildings are being prepared by M. A. Rue, consulting engineer, 200 Fifth avenue. The buildings will be of the most approved construction, and will provide a maximum amount of comfort for lovers of the national sport. They will be built of reinforced concrete and steel and are arranged to seat 26,000 people. The field stands will accommodate 5,000 more.

A separate entrance building will be erected. This building, of three stories, 65x120, will contain the offices, manager's department, ticket sellers' booths and turnstiles.

The grandstands and bleachers will almost entirely surround the field.

The players' quarters have had particular thought, every convenience and comfort for the men who make the national game what it is, being provided for. The dressing rooms for both visiting and home teams will be located under the grandstand and will be completely fitted up as club rooms, dressing and locker rooms. Numerous showers and two separate plungers will be provided.

The engineer has planned to take estimates very soon for the foundations of the entrance building and stands, and active work of construction should start soon after.

To Figure for Broadway Loft.

George Keister, 12 West 31st street, will take estimates on the general contract about June 10 for the twelve-story loft and theatre building to be erected at the northeast corner of Broadway and 37th street, running through to 114 West 38th street. The Hobart estate, of 2 Rector street, owns the land. The lessee of land and owner of building is the Times Square Improvement Company, of which Harry Fischel is president. David and Joseph Ravitch, of Astoria, are also interested. F. A. Burdett & Co., 16 East 33d street, will be the engineers. The estimated cost is $300,000. Excavating is now under way.

Club House and Garage for Brooklyn.

The Long Island Automobile Club, 920 Union street, Brooklyn, Charles Herman, president; John F. James, Jr., 193 Montague street, chairman of the Building Committee, will erect a club house and garage on the Eastern Parkway through to Lincoln place on a plot 75x256 ft. The building will probably be of reinforced concrete construction, three stories. The site was only recently purchased and it is expected that an architect will be selected by competition.

Apartment Hotel for Flushing.

A New York syndicate is preparing for the erection of an apartment hotel at the northeast corner of Jamaica avenue and Monroe street, Flushing, Long Island. The plot selected measures 100x100 ft. Details have not been decided upon, but it is understood that an architect has been retained.

BRICKMAKERS' NEXT MOVE.

more expeditious proceeding than that which your honor has suggested, and only call the attention of counsel for the defendants to the fact that, with every disposition to accommodate them and be courteous, we may be called at any time to insist upon rather prompt procedure."

History of the Prosecution.

In June, 1911, the Greater New York Brick Company was organized with John B. Rose, president; A. E. Aldrich, vice-president; Frank DeNoyelles, secretary, and Robert Main, treasurer. It began with a capitalization of $100,000 and had as stockholders about 70 per cent. of the total output of the North River brick making district, ranging from Yonkers to Mechanicsville. It established offices at 103 Park avenue where the Rose Brick Company had previously moved from offices formerly maintained in the old wholesale brick market in West Fifty-second street. Soon after it began to do business on July 1, 1911, about 80 contracting mason builders in this city, laid before the then Attorney General of the state, Thomas N. Carmody, at Albany, a complaint charging that the Greater New York Brick Company was a combination in restraint of trade, and asking him to proceed against the company under the Donnelly anti-monopoly law.

The Attorney General, after holding several hearings, stated that the petitioners would not present any evidence to sustain their claim that the brick company was operating under a combination agreement and he dismissed the case. The complainants felt that a change of venue was desirable to the success of their case and so the matter was withdrawn and on January 27, 1912, a complaint was made by Francis M. Weeks, president of the D. C. Weeks Company, of this city, building contractors, who submitted a written statement to Assistant District Attorney William A. DeFord alleging that a combination in restraint of trade in the brick market was operating in this city and insisted upon criminal action being entertained by the District Attorney's office.

The District Attorney refused to entertain the first statement and on February 12 of that year Mr. Weeks filed a supplemental statement which was delivered to Mr. De Ford by John DeWitt Warner, of the firm of Warner, Wells & Korb, in which the following complaint was made:

"First, That the manufacturers of brick named in the complaint constitute nearly all the manufacturers of brick used in building and that the brick are manufactured at various places along the Hudson River.

"Second, That the manufacturers named in the complaint have and have had for some time past control of at least 90 per cent. of the supply of Hudson River brick available.

"Third, That the manufacturers named in the complaint have caused to be organized in this city a corporation named the Greater New York Brick Company, and conspired to sell brick in this city at a uniform price.

"Fourth, That the above-named company was organized on June 19 last and that on the 15th of November it advanced the price of brick 25 cents per thousand above the price of the month before."

The Greater New York Brick Company, previously, in a statement from its counsel, Mr. Patterson, defined the object of the Greater New York Brick Company to be as follows:

"The movement, which has been underway for some time and has resulted in the formation of the company known as the 'Greater New York Brick Company,' need not disturb or cause the apprehension of any of the building interests, whether they be dealers in building materials or consumers of the same.

"The Greater New York Brick Company is a corporation formed for the purpose of economical handling and disposal of the product of the various Hudson River brick manufacturers. Under practices heretofore obtaining, there has been no stability in the market for North River brick and the manufacturers have under the conditions which have ordinarily prevailed, realized that the business was being conducted in a most extravagant and expensive, not to say, disastrous manner.

"The object of the new company will be to standardize the methods of marketing their product. It will be possible under the management of a well organized company to practice many economies, beneficial, not only to the manufacturer, but to the dealer and consumer as well.

"It is the aim of this company to methodize the conduct of the business and give more stability and uniformity to prices."

Hearings have been held frequently before Magistrate Freschi and more than fifty witnesses have been examined in ex parte proceedings by Assistant District Attorney Ellison, who succeeded Mr. DeFord in this matter. During the last eight weeks Magistrate Freschi has been ill and for that reason the decision in the former proceedings was delayed.

During the conduct of the investigation the market has been seriously manipulated in favor of so called "Foreign brick," brick that comes from New Jersey and Connecticut with the result that prices for this kind of building material have been higher than they have been at any time in recent history of the market and at the same time Hudson River common brick has maintained a price level that has caused some complaint among consumers on the ground that the quotations were not based upon conditions of demand, but rather by some arbitrary dictum.

The Greater New York Brick Company, on the other hand, has maintained that the prices it quotes are based upon the higher cost of manufacture incidental to the higher wage scale ruling upon the yards, the scarcity of labor which makes overtime a larger item among their workmen than ever before, the higher cost of fuel, the necessity of purchasing tempering material which formerly was to be found on the overlay of the banks and because construction conditions in this market were such today that buying in season was largely from a hand to mouth order and therefore the demurrage and delay to barges here in the market was such as to compel the maintenance of a larger fleet. It holds that the prices it quotes are justified by new conditions as shown by the fact that the manufacturers came out whole last year for the first time in more than a decade.

EXPLANATION OF TERMS USED AND RULES FOLLOWED IN COMPILING RECORDS.

Q. C. is an abbreviation for Quit Claim deed, i. e., a deed wherein all the right, title and interest of the grantor is conveyed omitting all covenants and warranty.

C. a G. means a deed containing Covenant against Grantor only, in which he covenants that he hath not done any act whereby the estate conveyed may be impeached, charged or encumbered.

B. & S. is an abbreviation for Bargain and Sale deed, wherein, although the seller makes no expressed consideration, he really grants or conveys the property for a valuable consideration, and thus impliedly claims to be the owner of it.

The street and avenue numbers given in these lists are, in all cases, taken from the insurance maps when they are not mentioned in the deeds. The numbers, it will occasionally be found, do not correspond with the existing ones, owing to there having been no official designation made of them by the Department of Public Works.

The first date is the date the deed was drawn. The second date is the date of filing same. When both dates are the same, only one is given. When the date of drawing is other than in the current year the stated year is given. When both the dates are in the same year the year follows the second date.

The figures in each conveyance, thus, 2:1482—10, denote that the property mentioned is in section 2, block 482, lot 10.

It should also be noted in section and block numbers that the instrument as filed is strictly followed.

A $20,000—$30,000 indicates the assessed value of the property, the first figures being for the lot only and the second figures representing both lot and building. Letter P before second figure indicates that the property is assessed as in course of construction. Valuations are from the assessment roll of 1912.

T. S. preceding the consideration in a conveyance means that the deed or conveyance has been recorded under the Torrens System.

Flats and apartment houses are classified as tenements.

Residences as dwellings.

All Christian names, streets, avenues, states and months are abbreviated when possible, also in some instances names of Banks, Trusts and Insurance Companies.

The number in ( ) preceding the serial number to the right of the date line, at head of this page, is the Index number for the Checking Index.

The Star following names of street or avenue in the Bronx Conveyances, Leases and Mortgages indicates that the property recorded is in the annexed district, for which there is no section or block number.

REAL ESTATE RECORD AND BUILDERS GUIDE.

WEST SIDE TERMINAL PLANS TO BE REVISED

The New York Central's Rights and Title Not Made Clear—Property Owners Will Present Alternative Plans For Manhattanville Section.

THE real estate interests opposed to the adoption of the plans for West Side terminals and trackage reformation as now proposed by the Terminal Committee of the Board of Estimate, will have until June 24 to further study those plans and prepare modifications and alternatives less harmful to property values. In the meantime the chairman of the Terminal Committee, Hon. John Purroy Mitchel, will have retired from the committee, by reason of having accepted appointment to the Collectorship of the Port of New York, and Comptroller Prendergast and Borough President McAneny, the two "sparrow hawks," will be taking a more active part in the deliberations of the committee than they have heretofore been able to do because of the draft on their time and attention required by the subway negotiations recently ended.

PLAN FOR THE MANHATTAN VILLE TERMINAL OF THE NEW YORK CENTRAL RAILROAD.

Mr. Mitchel is credited with the principal part of the conduct of the long and intricate negotiations with the railroad company and with the preparation of what is everywhere regarded as a masterly report, setting forth, as it does, the particulars of the treaty or agreement the committee was able to effect with the New York Central Railroad company. Mr. Mitchel succeeded in making the railroad engineers modify their plans for improvements along the West Side in many important particulars. He fought a good fight for the city and made as good a bargain as he believed could possibly be made under the circumstances.

Further Concessions Probable.

But various powerful property interests hold the opinion that he might have done better in several primal particulars had he not approached the negotiations under the belief that the railroad company and not the city was the master of the situation north of 58th street. These property interests, notwithstanding an opinion adverse to their claims from the Corporation Counsel's office, have an idea that the rights, franchises or licenses under which the railroad company operates along the West Side are not perfectly valid, or, for that matter, satisfactory to the railroad corporation itself, and that the officers and directors can be made to yield a good deal more than they have been by President Mitchel.

Even Mr. Mitchel himself admitted at the hearing held at the City Hall on Tuesday afternoon that the necessity for laying out enormous freightyards along Riverside Drive at Manhattanville was regrettable, and the property owners said that if allowed time their consulting engineers could study the problem presented at Manhattanville and prepare a plan that would be less destructive of values in the neighborhood. As a legal club to induce the railroad company to make further concessions, the counsel of the various property associations will demand the production of proof of rights and ownership and carry their case to court if necessary. "If they have a valid right to the use of the lands they operate on, let them produce the evidence of it," said Charles L. Craig, counsel of the West End Association, after the meeting.

President McAneny, and Comptroller Prendergast, just before the hearing ended, separately assured the big gathering of representatives of property interests that before any plans were adopted the rights of all concerned would be most carefully investigated.

Counselor Burr's Opinion on the Ownership Question.

The principal business at the hearing, after it was agreed that further time should be allowed for a consideration of the report of the Terminal Committee, was the presentation of an opinion by Assistant Corporation Counsel Burr in answer to the question as to the nature and extent of the rights of the railroad company to the lands it uses.

Assistant Corporation Counsel Burr stated that the city of New York owned the title to the streets in the yard of the railroad company between 60th and 70th streets; that it owned the title to Twelfth avenue north of 72d street embraced in the right of way of the company, and that in these streets and avenues the company had not obtained title by adverse possession, having solely an easement to maintain its tracks there for railroad purposes, during its corporate existence.

The City's Interest.

As to the lands under water between 58th street and Spuyten Duyvil Creek embraced in the railroad company's right of way, the city, through the ancient charters and grants of land under water made to the people of the State of New York, became vested with the title to such lands; and the locating of the railroad company's lines upon lands then under water southerly from Spuyten Duyvil Creek, winding along the shore, was, so far as such location is concerned, authorized by Chapter 216 of the State laws of 1846, and the consent of the city granted May 6, 1847, and was no more than an occupation under a license for railroad purposes.

Under this license the railroad company located its route, built its railroad and operated at the present time; and such location, maintenance and operation did not, Mr. Burr stated, initiate a possession thereof in the railroad company adverse to the city.

Legally in Occupation.

By the decision of the court in the recent action between the city and the railroad company the railroad company is legally in occupation of its right of way and is entitled to the use and occupancy thereof during its corporate existence,

Where not granted by the city to the upland owners the record title under its ancient charters and letters patent from the State is vested in the City of New York, subject to the use thereof by the railroad company during its corporate existence; and where granted by the city to the upland owners the title is vested either in such upland owners or their successors in interest, subject to the use by the railroad company during its corporate existence for railroad purposes, or in the railroad company by reason of the deeds from the upland owners.

Mr. Burr cited from the decision in the case to compel the railroad company to remove its tracks from the streets, as reported in 202 New York Reports, Court of Appeals, page 224 and 225, during the year 1910. Judge Cullen had then said regarding the franchise of the New York Central and Hudson River Railroad Company:

"The power reserved to the Legislature to alter, amend, or repeal a charter, authorizes it to make any alteration or amendment of a charter granted subject to it that will not defeat or substantially impair the object of the grant or any rights vested under it, and which the Legislature may deem necessary to secure either the object or any public right.

"Under this doctrine the Supreme Court of the United States upheld the validity of an act of the Legislature of the State of Connecticut compelling a railroad company to abolish at its own expense, all grade crossings, as a valid exercise of the police power. So, in the case before us, I think that the Legislature may so regulate the plaintiff's railroad in the city of New York as to remove the constant menace and danger to life occasioned by its continuance."

"In view of this decision of the Court of Appeals," Mr. Burr further stated, in his address at the hearing, "the Legislature passed an act (Chapter 777, Laws of 1911), authorizing the city and the railroad company to enter into an agreement having for its primary object the elimination of all grade-crossings along the line of this railroad and from Spuyten Duyvil to St. John's Park."

Briefs and Reports.

Mr Burr's opinion was not permitted to go unchallenged, and was questioned as to its conclusions notably by Charles L. Craig for the West End Association, Julius Henry Cohen for the Citizens' Union J. Bleeker Miller, for the League to End Death avenue. Mr. Cohen raised the point that the original grant to the New York Central had been for only two tracks, and Mr. Burr replied that he thought it was for two or three tracks.

Bert Hanson presented the report of the Reform Club on the improvement. The report suggested that the whole matter should be referred back to the committee and new plans drawn up, as the present ones gave the New York Central a virtual freight monopoly. The Municipal Art Society presented a brief on the artistic points of the plan. Another brief in opposition was submitted by ex-Dock Commissioner Calvin Tomkins, and Morgan J. O'Brien, for the Pennsylvania Railroad, and a representative of the New York Railroad Companies appeared in opposition to the plan.

The Corporation Counsel agreed to furnish a written opinion before the next meeting, which will be held on June 24th, when the question of title will be thoroughly discussed. As Mr. Mitchel will leave office before that day, the prospects of the adoption of the plan as now proposed seem very doubtful.

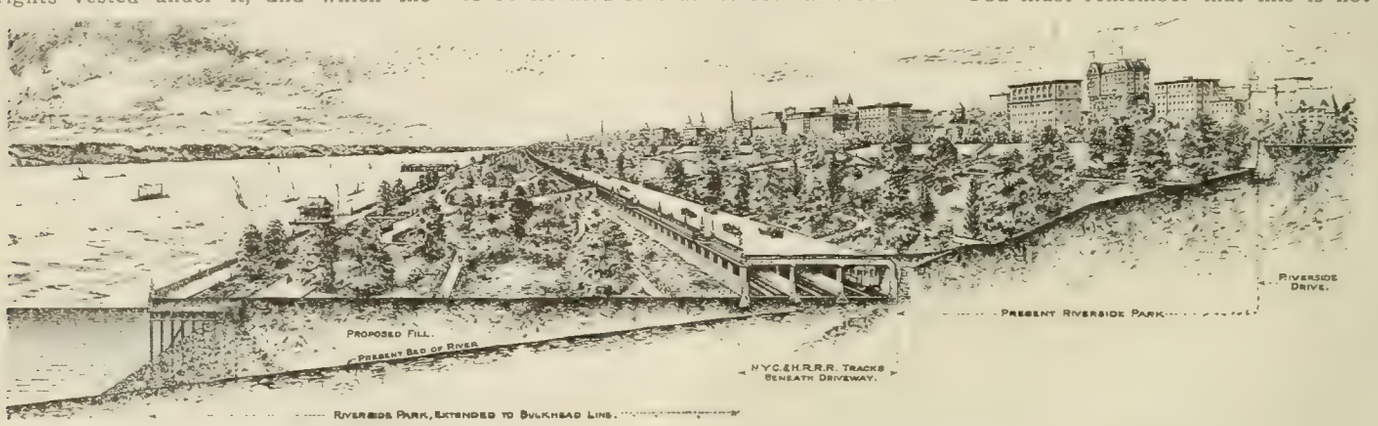
The Manhattanville Terminal.

The most pronounced objection to the plans of the railroad company are that the plans call for an open and uncovered yard, the approaching tracks fanning out from 153d street into 37 tracks at 145th street, the yard itself extending from that point to 135th street. The two main tracks now there, are, apparently, to be multiplied into six; and then are to be elevated so that for several blocks they will be on a level with the retaining wall of the Drive—the trains, instead of being out of sight, as at present, to be entirely exposed to view. Supplementing the yard, an elaborate dock system is planned—altogether a huge commercial development, comparable only to the yards of the Central between 60th and 72d streets, which have forever crippled what might otherwise have been an attractive portion of our water front.

The Private Property Affected.

For the public, the proposed freight yard will ruin permanently a mile and a half of water front. The city has invested a million and a half in this portion of Riverside Park, and this investment is to be thrown away.

"Instead of the few inactive sidings now located here, we will have," said Mr. I. S. Isaacs, "a bustling, noisy yard, ill-smelling and ugly, a permanent eyesore, destroying a city park, depreciating the value of otherwise well-located real estate, and spoiling the beauties of one of the finest drives that the world can show.



"This is one of those cases where the selfish interests of those immediately affected coincide with the broader interests of the public—and we propose to show the Terminal committee both the public and private damage, in each case so serious and so heavy that its wanton infliction by this ill-considered feature of what are otherwise well thought out plans is so unjust that I cannot believe the committee will let it pass.

"Riverside Drive, for the distance of approximately a mile north of 135th street, being the area directly affected by the proposed yard, has been improved for block after block with handsome elevator apartments, some ten and twelve stories in height, and of the finest type of construction. The assessed value of the land and buildings immediately adjoining the Drive exceeds $7,000,000—and adding the value of buildings now in course of erection it is safe to say that the investment in property fronting on the Drive exceeds $10,000,000.

Destructive to Values.

"Suddenly to thrust the proposed yard upon this territory will mean an immediate and heavy loss to every property owner. It is hard to estimate this with any exactness. But the loss of tenants due to such a noisy and unsightly neighbor; the destruction of the main attraction upon which the houses rely: namely, a beautiful outlook over a peaceful river, will mean a prompt lowering of rents and a consequent decline in capital value that will be appalling to contemplate. Those real estate experts whom I have consulted may differ in the amount of their estimate of the decline in value—but there is none who does not state that the loss will be a heavy one indeed.

"You must remember that this is not the case of a slow commercial encroachment upon an old residential neighborhood—where the private houses or apartments are gradually rendered valueless for the newer purposes of the locality. In such a case the increased value of the land frequently more than compensates for the lost value of the buildings. I doubt if any resident of the Fifth avenue section or of Murray Hill will suffer financial loss because of the business invasion, however much he may be distressed at being expelled from his cherished neighborhood. But here is a new development—none of the apartments are more than six or seven years old; several have been just completed, and some are still in the course of erection—and suddenly the new buildings, just finished, are to be rendered useless for the purposes for which they were erected; their value as residences and comfortable homes destroyed—while the very land on which they are erected, with equal suddenness, suffers a great loss—except the consciousness, hardly consoling, that where the rights of an ordinary property owner conflict with the demands of the Central railroad the property owner must go to the wall."

SKETCH OF RAILROAD PLAN REPORTED BY THE COMMITTEE—NORTH OF EIGHTY-SIXTH STREET, SHOWING POSSIBLE FUTURE TREATMENT OF PARK LAND NOW UNDER WATER WEST OF THE RAILROAD'S RIGHT OF WAY.

—Mortgage filings show a decided falling off this year, as against 1912. From January 1 to May 15, 1913, there were 2,086 documents recorded, involving $102,396,405, as against 2,480 during the corresponding period last year, representing an investment of $148,043,110.

ANTICIPATIONS OF THE LOWER WEST SIDE

What the Seventh Avenue Extension and the New Subway Mean to Chelsea and Greenwich — Forecasts of Local Real Estate Men.

WITH the Dual Subway legal formalities completed and the construction work going ahead, it has been expected that investors and speculators would turn their attention towards those sections of the city which will be benefited by these improvements. In the light of precedent, Lexington avenue and Seventh avenue, which are to be particularly benefited by the new subways, should now be in the throes of a big boom. Yet there does not seem at present to be any tendency among the buying fraternity to invest in any one particular locality. For a number of weeks past, the trading has been limited, and the big lending institutions have been holding off on loans.

Yet in the minds of most men familiar with real estate conditions, there is no doubt but that there will be a good deal of buying and building along Seventh avenue and along the line of the extension. The area of assessment for the proposed improvement has already been confirmed and owners along the route know just how they will be affected. Speculators and builders can figure out exactly what their chances are in that district.

Important Improvements.

Seventh avenue will be extended from its present southerly end, cutting through a number of old Greenwich village dwellings and will be joined to Varick street, the easterly side of which will be widened, the entire project being estimated to cost about twelve million dollars. The completion of this work and the subsequent subway construction, will mark the most important event in the history of that section.

Now that a radical change will be made in the layout of the district, real estate men are agreed on the point of the development of the Greenwich village and Chelsea sections. The Record and Guide through interviews with a few of the prominent real estate men in the immediate neighborhood of the proposed improvement, has sought to secure expert opinion and forecasts of what the improvement will mean to the city, with reference particularly to the real estate possibilities along the route of the proposed Seventh avenue extension.

Local Opinion.

Charles E. Duross of the Duross Company, was optimistic over the future of the lower West Side. He said:

"The great hope of the section is the opening of the Subway. It will make Seventh avenue the most important thoroughfare below 42d street, as far as traffic is concerned. It will become eventually the center of a large and busy wholesale district, the same as Fourth avenue. The latter avenue, ending at Cooper Square, will not be so important as Seventh avenue, which will go down as far as Franklin street. While Fourth avenue has nothing east to draw from in the wholesale line, Seventh avenue has, to the west, the great wholesale produce and storage warehouse district along the river front in the Chelsea and Greenwich village sections and West Washington market.

"At present owners are unwilling to sell and buyers are unwilling to buy because they are waiting to see what will happen next. But the outlook for the future is very bright."

The Present Situation.

A. M. Cudner of the A. M. Cudner Co., when asked for his opinion, said:

"The Greenwich village district is in a transitional state from the private house to the boarding and rooming house. Below Eleventh street down to West Houston, it is very irregularly laid out, there being no well-defined business streets.

Loft-Buildings to Come.

"While this extension will cut through and practically destroy a swath of improved properties, the section will have what it has not hitherto had, one wide business street. The only material local benefit that I can see, must come from an entirely new character of improvement—loft buildings naturally suggest themselves.

"Then it will be an investment proposition and depend upon the possible income which may be derived from low-priced loft buildings. Fourteenth street, being a wide street and quite largely devoted to business and running from river to river, should feel the benefit of this extension, as there will be an express station and, acting as a feeder to the extended avenue, affect the sections below favorably. I look upon the proposed change as a long step toward improving a section which for many years has lain practically dormant."

Like a Pipe With a Dead End.

Wm. H. Archibald, treasurer of the Seventh Avenue Association, which has been actively interested in the welfare of that thoroughfare, said:

"Seventh avenue has been like a pipe with a dead end and now that the end will be knocked off the pipe will be used to better advantage. There is no question but that the whole section will be benefited. That district has been passed by because it had no transit facilities. While land was cheap it could not be utilized for business and loft buildings, because of lack of such facilities, and there was no development. Now that the demand has been met, there will be marked activity in those sections."

Half Million Dollar Building for Brooklyn Bank.

The John H. Parker Company, 315 Fourth avenue, Manhattan, received the general contract on Saturday last for the construction of the twelve-story bank and office building to be erected at the southwest corner of Joralemon and Court streets, Brooklyn, in the Borough Hall district, on a plot 135x124 feet. The Court street frontage is 63 feet with 100 feet in Joralemon street, and is situated directly opposite of the Subway entrances. The building is being put up by the Weinbro Realty Company, Inc., of 47 West 34th street, Manhattan, and will replace the old marble buildings formerly owned by the late A. A. Low, and recently owned by August Belmont, and the Borough Bank. The corner is one of the choicest business locations in the Central City Hall section.

Renting from the Plans.

When completed it will be the new home of the Nassau National Bank, now situated at 26 Court street, and the demand for well equipped offices has been shown by the number of rentals already made from the plans. There will be a restaurant occupying the entire basement which has been leased for a term of years. The first three stories will be of Indiana limestone with buff brick and terra cotta above. There will be four electric elevators for passenger service and every modern appointment, such as are found in the best commercial structures of this type. The estimated cost is placed by the architect, William E. Lehman, of 738 Broad street, Newark, N. J., at $500,000. Contracts for the heating, plumbing and wiring are not included in the general contract and have not yet been awarded.

WHO OWNS CORTLANDT STREET?

The Supreme Court Says the Abutting Property Owners Still Retain the Fee.

Justice Greenbaum, in special term of the Supreme Court, has sustained the contention of the plaintiff in Appleton vs. the City of New York, that the city possesses only an easement in the bed of Cortlandt street. The plaintiff's case will be found fully stated in the Record and Guide of March 15, and the court holds that the fee of Cortland street is still with the abutting owners, and is subject only to the easement vested in the city for street purposes.

The decision of the court is that nothing in the wording of the form of dedication of the street to public purposes expressly grants a fee to the city. Hence the plaintiffs are justified in refusing to pay a tax for the vault space they use in front of their building, No. 173 Broadway, at the northeast corner of Broadway and Cortlandt street. Presumably, the case will be carried by the City of New York to the Court of Appeals, as the question concerning the ownership of vault space has become of high importance owing to the city's recent attempt to tax those who use such space.

When Cortlandt street was dedicated to the uses of the public for traffic purposes in the year 1733, by the executors of the estate of Catherine Philipse, a petition was filed in the office of the common council of the City of New York, setting forth their ownership of the parcels of land through which the road had been laid out, stating "that for the better improvement thereof and the increase of building and inhabitants in the said city, petitioners and others concerned in the said lands, by mutual consent and agreement have laid and staked out a new street through the said land from the Broadway aforesaid to Hudson's River of forty feet in breadth and called the same Cortlandt street."

The petition then defines the point of beginning and end of such street, the course thereof, and then avers that the petitioners "therefore hereby declare and make known that the said new street was laid out of forty feet English measure in breadth through the lands aforesaid, and called Cortlandt street, and shall forever remain, continue and be a public street and highway in like manner as the other public streets in this city now are or lawfully ought to be."

The street so laid out was accepted by the city in the following form:

"Whereupon it is ordered by this court that the prayer of the same petitioners be granted, and that the same be entered on record in the minutes of this court."

Justice Greenbaum in the opinion handed down says there is nothing in the wording of the petition which expressly grants a fee to the city.

"Nor is there any language employed from which the inference might be drawn that fee was thereby intended to be conveyed, nor the slightest intimation in the record that any compensation was received from the city by the abutting owners. This was simply a common law dedication of the street and the fee of the land therefore remained in the dedicator burdened with a public easement.

"An examination of the provisions of the Greater New York Charter discloses that the power conferred upon the board of aldermen is merely to regulate, and, as part of the scheme of regulation, the borough president is authorized to issue licenses to construct vaults. No power of taxation is conferred, but solely the power to regulate and license, which does not include the power of tax (People v. Jarvis, 19 App. Div., 466). It follows, therefore, that the ordinance, so far as it required the payment of a tax as a condition precedent to the granting of a license, is as to these plaintiffs illegal and void. There should be judgment for the plaintiff upon the merits, with costs."

MANUFACTURING SITES.

Merchants Co-operating with Real Estate Agents.—Working for New Industries.

Every little four corners in the West is earnestly engaged in boosting its own peculiar advantages and deprecating the few advantages which its rivals may have. The commercial organizations in these towns are keenly alive to the necessity of attracting new industries, and every one of them is actively competing with every other for the few choice bits of industry that may be in the market for new locations.

They offer the manufacturers free sites, free buildings, free rent, exemption from taxes, and many of them stand willing to give cash bonuses or to subscribe liberally to the stock of new concerns. Small wonder, then, that the New York manufacturer is sometimes tempted to leave his unequaled market, his inexhaustible labor supply, his ability to send his goods to the West, the South, New England and to get his raw materials as well. Every one of these Western communities—and some of them are not so far west either—is preying on New York. They consider New York their legitimate and, sometimes, easy prey.

Competition Must Be Met.

Looking the facts squarely in the face we may conclude that it is a pretty safe rule that the city which offers the largest bonus and the most artificial inducements possesses the least real, natural advantages. The reason that some of them are so willing to give their land away is quite obvious—it is the only way they have of getting rid of it.

It is not because New York is losing out in the competition with other cities that the Merchants' Association has established an Industrial Bureau. As a matter of fact, on the contrary, New York has been rapidly increasing in the amount of her manufactured products, in the number of people employed, in the capital invested, and in everything which makes for industrial superiority. To-day New York produces more manufactured goods than Philadelphia and Chicago combined.

The Merchants' Association has established an Industrial Bureau in order to assist the manufacturers who are here and in order to give expert advice to the many who are seeking to locate in New York. On the one hand, its object is to improve and develop industrial conditions in New York; on the other, to assist manufacturers in finding the very best locations for their new plants.

Real Estate Offers to Be Filed.

In order to have complete data always at hand ready for the inquiring manufacturers, the Industrial Bureau has sent out a letter to the real estate members of the association asking them to furnish information concerning available factory sites, factory buildings and lofts for sale or rent in Greater New York. These offerings, which are strictly confidential, will be arranged and classified by sections of the city for ready reference. Then when a prospective manufacturer comes in and states his needs, certain locations can be pointed out on the map as available. The necessary information concerning power, light, square feet available, transportation facilities, rentals, prices and terms is at hand. He is then referred to the broker whose property seems to be most desirable.

One of the drawbacks in the development of New York industrially is that outsiders are uninformed of the hundreds of acres of comparatively inexpensive land in the City of New York. Much of this is well situated as regards transportation, rapid transit, labor supply, and, of course, is at the very center of the world's trade. If manufacturers could be made to realize that New York City is not all Manhattan, that the land values of that little island are peculiar to it, that in The Bronx, in Brooklyn, in Queens, and in Richmond there are comparatively low prices for land, they would be flocking to New York.

The Industrial Bureau intends to send out these facts and to inform manufacturers that sites can be obtained for given prices, that factory buildings are available at such and such rents, and that lofts can be obtained for a specified range of figures. Not only, therefore, will manufacturers desiring to locate in New York be assisted, but new industries will be given facts concerning New York which they never knew before.

Concentrating at Grand Central.

Real estate building and architectural and allied firms heretofore somewhat scattered have concentrated around the Grand Central Station in rather a remarkable degree this spring. The new Forty-Second Street Building is 85 per cent. rented already and a large part of the tenancy is represented by building and allied interests. Much the same state of facts is true of the Architects Building on Park avenue, and the Terminal Building is also mostly filled with firms in similar lines. Old centers are, however, by no means depopulated, but for some years the tendency has been northward, first to Madison Square, then to the Pennsylvania section, and now the Grand Central has a strong attraction for the men who plan and build.

—The Public Service Commission has ordered a hearing for June 3, at 11 o'clock, before Commissioner J. Sargent Cram, on the application of the New York & Queens County Railway Company for permission to exercise a franchise for a second track upon a part of its Flushing and College Point line.

PARK AVENUE GRADING.

A Report from Real Estate Experts on the Respective Merits of the Parsons and Collis Plans.

The plan for the alteration of the existing physical conditions at the intersection of Park avenue and 34th street, proposed by William Barclay Parsons as a substitute for the city's plan and published in the daily papers this week is not new. Mr. Parsons' plan was presented to the Comptroller's office on March 28. It has been carefully examined, both by the borough engineers and by the chief engineers of the Board of Estimate, as well as by real estate experts employed by the city. Without exception, it has been described both by the engineers and the real estate men as only a partial and temporary solution of the difficult situation the city is trying to correct, and as inferior in practically every way to the plan the Board of Estimate has adopted.

Borough President McAneny says the repeated assertions that the Board of Estimate plan will cost something over $3,000,000 for construction and incidental damage to private property is without basis in fact. The engineers and real estate men who have represented the city have agreed that the entire cost, including physical construction, shifting of the railroad tracks and in damages to property, will not exceed $375,000.

The Chief of the Real Estate Bureau of the Finance Department, Charles A. O'Malley, in a report to the Comptroller dated April 12, 1913, the findings of which were approved by W. J. Van Pelt of George R. Read & Company, who had been employed as appraiser for the city, thoroughly analyses the Parsons plan and presents in detail the reasons for which it has been rejected. In the course of the report it is said:

"Under the Collis plan, the cars of the Fourth and Madison avenue line cross the 34th street car lines, at grade, at Park avenue and 34th street. Under the Parsons plan, with the roadway on the easterly side of Park avenue rising to meet the grade of 34th street at Park avenue and 34th street, it would be necessary for passengers on the Fourth and Madison avenue cars transferring to the 34th street line, to walk through a tunnel under the easterly side of the roadway at Park avenue and climb a flight of stairs to reach the sidewalk at 34th street and Park avenue, and should this stairway be erected on the building line of 34th street, there would only be at this point a sidewalk width of 9 feet to provide for both stairway and sidewalk, which to our minds is impracticable.

"A greater advantage than the transfer of passengers at grade, lies in the fact that under the Collis plan it is not necessary for persons to climb a stairway to reach the level of the street. The necessity of climbing the stairway, as now exists, has been a serious complaint to all of the territory extending as far west as Broadway, as well as those traveling to the north and south of 34th street, on Fourth, Fifth and Madison avenues, and which condition would continue to exist under the Parsons plan.

"This is one of the most important reasons why we favor the Collis plan in preference to the Parsons plan. It is obvious that the Parsons plan is an improvement over the present conditions, in that it establishes a roadway along the easterly line of Park avenue. However, the best that can be said of it is that it is a temporizing plan, and in no wise meets the full demand or requirements of the situation.

"We would call your particular attention to the fact that under the Collis plan it is possible to construct a subway through 34th street, while under the Parsons plan this would seem to be impracticable.

"The only redeeming features of the Parsons plan is that no damage will be sustained by the Vanderbilt Hotel, the Church of the Messiah, and the properties at the northeast corner of 34th street and Park avenue, and both sides of Park avenue extending from the north side of 34th street to the south side of 34th street, but, in our opinion, the enhancement of the value of the land occupied by the 71st Regiment Armory (city property) would increase to such an extent under the Collis plan, as to not only to cover the estimated cost of the physical construction of the proposed change of grade, but also cover all actual damages to adjacent property."

WEST SIDE STATION.

A New One Ordered for the Elevated Road at 99th Street.

The Interborough Rapid Transit Company was this week directed by the Public Service Commission to build a new station on the Ninth Avenue elevated railroad at 99th street and Columbus avenue, and to have the same completed and ready for operation by December 1, 1913. An order to this effect was adopted by the commission on the recommendation of Commissioner John E. Eustis, who held hearings upon the supplication of property owners in the vicinity for the establishment of a new station at this point. At present there is a station at 93d street and the next station north is at 104th street—a distance of 11 blocks.

The issuance of the order followed the obtaining of the consents of property owners who will be affected by the improvement. A previous application for the establishment of a station at this point, made in the early part of the year 1909, was denied by the commission mainly upon the ground that these property owners had refused to give their consent, and that the expense of condemnation proceedings involving a large number of property owners would be greater than was warranted by the reasons advanced at that time for a new station.

Another application was made a few months ago by property owners represented by Martin Bourke, attorney. At the first hearing the failure of the property owners to give their consents in 1909 was referred to, and Mr. Bourke set to work to get the consents. A short time ago he notified the commission that the requisite number of consents had been obtained and had been submitted to the Interborough Rapid Transit Company for examination. After this examination it developed that the consents of all property owners except one had been obtained. Commissioner Eustis, therefore, in his opinion, holds that the former objection to the lack of consents has been overcome, that it will not be unduly expensive to condemn the rights as to the one property owner whose consent is still lacking, that there is a large population between the 93d Street and 104th Street stations who would be benefited by a new station, that apartment houses in the locality have lost tenants by reason of the long distance to either one of the existing stations, that 99th street is about midway between these two stations, that inasmuch as an express service is maintained on the line during the rush hours, and that therefore the establishment of a new station would not interfere with rapid transit and affect only the time schedule of the local trains. He is, therefore, of the opinion that the new station should be built as prayed for.

BUILDING LIMITATION.

All the Members of the Committee Personally Predisposed For It.

The advisory committee appointed to consider the question of limiting the height of buildings hereafter to be erected in New York City has opened permanent headquarters at 115 Broadway. Edward M. Bassett, late of the Public Service Commission is chairman and George B. Ford is secretary. Much to the surprise of Borough President McAneny and all concerned, it was ascertained by a vote in the committee that all the nineteen members are predisposed in favor of limitation.

A few years ago such unanimity would have been unlikely. A very general belief then was that a limitation of the building height would be unconstitutional and in view of this the authorities considered that it would be a waste of time to legislate on the question. A former corporation counsel once advised the Board of Estimate to this effect, but notwithstanding other cities have enacted and enforced such restrictions, and the Fifth Avenue Association has been advised by its own counsel, Bruce M. Falconer, that in view of recent court decisions a new building ordinance limiting height or bulk in New York City would have a good chance of being sustained by the highest court.

The advisory committee in making manifest this personal predisposition to limitation expressed no opinion on any question of law, method or expediency. These are all matters to be investigated, weighed and determined. First will come a preliminary and special report upon Fifth avenue, and then the main body of the report will be devoted to the city, and particularly, Manhattan Borough as a whole, all within the current year

Nucleus of a New Center.

A new civic center, clearly defined, is growing up around the 207th street subway station, on the Dyckman tract, near where the Harlem is spanned by a bridge. On one side of the river is University Heights and the beginning of an important crosstown thoroughfare, Fordham road, and west of the Dyckman plains are the slopes of Inwood and the remarkable clove that runs through to the Hudson. A great strategetical position for real estate men is represented here—one that is certain to be largely availed of in time.

With such a combination of water frontage and rail communication as there is here, it is assured that this will be some day a shipping center as well as a thickly populated residential district. Take a still larger view, one that will include all the Kingsbridge section, the Barge Canal terminal at the foot of Dyckman street, N. R.; the new railroad bridge and the Hudson Memorial bridge at Spuyten Duyvil, the new baseball park, and the converging transit lines and thoroughfares—and you have some very influential elements for the upbuilding of a large city.

Too Many Parades on Fifth Avenue.

The ordinance introduced in the Board of Aldermen by Ralph Folks, to limit parades on Fifth avenue below 59th street, to those that are patriotic or governmental in character and those that occur on legal holidays, is receiving hearty support by many business firms along the avenue. The promiscuous parading along this busy thoroughfare on the busiest days, has caused serious interruption and interference with business and such firms as Theodore A. Kohn & Son, and Bonwit, Teller & Co., have written to the Board of Aldermen urging the passage of the ordinance.

COST OF ELEVATOR OPERATION.

Reginald Pelham Bolton's Comments.—Another Correspondent Asks a Question.

The following correspondence has come to hand since the Record and Guide published its query as to elevator service records in its issue of February 15th. Reginald Pelham Bolton writes as follows:

"In a record of the elevator service in the issue of February 15th, a statement is given of the operating conditions of five passenger elevators, and an inquiry is made as to whether this is an exceptional record or an ordinary service.

"The answer to the question is that these cars are operating in a fairly efficient manner, approximately equal to that obtaining in other buildings in which the elevators are not liberally proportioned as to number.

"If the statement is correct that the local cars have a rated speed of 600 feet per minute, which is the same as the express cars, then the work done by these cars is not efficient and illustrates the fact that there is little or nothing gained by any degree of high speed upon local machines. The service afforded by these local cars is about sixteen miles per diem, and two local cars operating to the 15th floor in the Liberty Tower, the speed of which is 400 feet per minute, give the same daily service in mileage.

"The express machines are giving a mileage of approximately 26 miles per diem, and this also agrees with the mileage developed by the express machines in the building above referred to, operating from 1 to 15 express and 15 to 30 local.

"It is interesting to note that the traffic carried on the elevators, as described, precisely agrees with the proportions of traffic as laid down in my book, "Elevator Service"; thus, the total passengers reported average 700 per hour each way on five cars. At four stops to ten floors, the service should work out as follows: Two expresses, round trip time 1.47 minutes, passengers each way per car $114 \times 2 = 228$; two local machines at same service, round-trip time 1.43 minutes, passengers each way $157 \times 2 = 314$; one service car at 165 persons, total 707.

"The power cost, as stated, is not instructive, because it does not give the amount of current used per car mile, which would be of much interest."

Cost Varies Greatly.

An exchange makes the following comment:

"The cost of the operation of elevators varies greatly, governed as it is entirely by local conditions, so that any information in a general way would, no doubt, be very misleading, as there are so many variable items by which it can be affected. In the electric, the cost will vary widely according to the service which is required from the elevators. Also, for the worm-gear traction or the drum-type machines the cost will vary with the type of current available; that is—whether it is alternating current, single or multi-phase, or direct current. One can appreciate that in a hotel where the loads are very light and where there are possibly only one or two stops made per trip, the service cannot in any way be compared to the conditions which would have to be met in a department store or large office building where the cars are usually loaded to their full capacity, and where stops are made at all floors.

"These conditions are probably the extreme limits of passenger service, and the other types of buildings will come between them. Another condition which will affect the cost of operation is the question of whether the current is generated at the building or whether it is bought from a power company. If the current is generated at the building there are a number of overhead charges which should be included, but which oftentimes are not figured in the cost of power."

Another correspondent writes as follows:

"I was very much interested in your article regarding elevator service. From what I can judge by observing of my equipment it seems that the record is a reasonably good one, but we are left in doubt as to the cost of power, which in a computation would have to be a little more definite than your correspondent gives. If we knew definitely how much power is used per car mile we would be able to judge perhaps a little better as to the record of your correspondent's car. If his power is derived from an isolated plant his cost charges might be figured as being more than between three and five cents, generally thought to be the average cost, depending entirely upon how he figured his overhead charges on the generating equipment.

Information Asked.

"I would also like to ask a question of your readers as to whether there is any ground for figuring between three and five cents for elevator power cost in New York City, the figure coming to me through a representative of an elevator company. Can any of your readers tell me whether depreciation, insurance and other charges are included in figuring the actual cost of operating elevators or whether these items are charged against the general maintenance charges of the building?"

Fireproof Furniture Compulsory?

In the process of evolution which is going on constantly in fireproof building construction, it is a question whether the day is not near at hand when managers of all kinds of buildings will feel justified in demanding that all tenants use none but fireproof furnishings. In fact, in many of the new large office buildings nearly all of the office furnishings are of metal.

That this substitution of steel in place of wood may ultimately become general is ascribed to the progress that has been made in its manufacture into doors, windows, partitions and trim, and the next logical step is to carry this evolution to office furniture. The utilization of steel for these various purposes insures an absolute fireproof structure when used in connection with other fireproof materials. Wooden partitions, doors, and trim permit a fire to extend from room to room, if not quickly extinguished, thus generating a large volume of smoke, which may be just as fatal as fire.

The elimination of this danger by the substitution of steel enables the owner and tenants to obtain a lower rate of insurance. The saving thus affected almost entirely offsets the additional cost for the installation of the steel.

Some cities have enacted ordinances compelling the use of metal doors and trim in all buildings above a certain height, and some insurance authorities believe it will not be long before laws will be introduced compelling the use of metal furniture in certain types of buildings.

Alterations as Income Accelerators.

Now and then one finds an owner far-seeing enough to keep abreast of the changes in a given neighborhood by adjusting his property to meet conditions as they arise. The owner of the Pasadena apartment house at the corner of Broadway and 61st street is one of these. The building is twelve stories high, of skeleton steel construction and was completed about six years ago. Originally it was planned to contain only large suites of nine or ten rooms. This part of Broadway is fast going entirely into business, and apparently it will not be long before apartment houses will be hard to find in the neighborhood. Five years from now there will probably be a much greater demand for a transient hotel or an office building at this point than demand for a residential structure.

Fully realizing this trend several years ago, the owner divided several of his large suites into small ones, containing four or five rooms, and on the Broadway side, the second floor apartment has been altered for business use, and an automobile concern has leased it as offices. The expense of these changes was considerable, but the return has been greater than before and the building is gradually being put in such shape that it can continue to compete with any new building erected in the vicinity, whatever may be its nature.

When it becomes advisable to make a radical change of occupancy it can be accomplished without great loss of time and the expenditure of a large sum of money. In this case it has seemed expedient to the owner to make alterations, even while the building is producing a good revenue, rather than wait for the time when it becomes a necessity by reason of decreased income.

The plan of altering large apartments into small ones is receiving considerable attention on the part of the West Side owners, as they are now realizing that there is a greater demand for this form of housing than ever before. In the past this has not been a favored line of construction, and certain strong objections to houses containing small suites existed. These objections are fast being eliminated, and the best proof that such houses are profitable is furnished by the rents obtained in the few now existing.

Handling Flat Work in Laundries.

The important feature of delivery facilities in buildings occupied either partly or exclusively by laundries was mentioned and enlarged upon in an article which appeared in last week's issue, but no mention was made of the newest and what is rapidly becoming the popular apparatus for handling bundles and packages in large laundries—the Gravity Spiral Conveyor.

The article mentioned the exacting demands for prompt and reliable delivery service in laundries and estimated that one slow-speed freight elevator could hardly serve more than two fair-sized flat laundry plants in a manner satisfactory to the laundries.

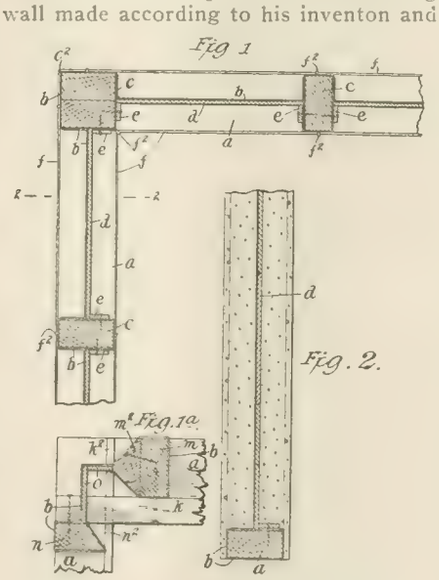
It is true that the successful laundry depends largely upon its ability to get business and to hold it, by supplying the best of service.

The Gravity Spiral Conveyor, manufactured by the Otis Elevator Company of New York is now being installed in many of the most bustling laundries to carry the large bundles and baskets from the upper floors to the lower, where they are taken away in the delivery wagons.

The Gravity Spiral Conveyor utilizes the force due to gravity to convey bundles, packages and baskets, upon fixed spiral blades within a circular shaft. The accompanying cut illustrates one of these conveyors with three spirals, in a department store, but the same system is applicable to the laundry building. Very often it has been found that the requirements demand merely a single or double spiral to take care of the deliveries, although, of course, the three spiral conveyors allow for the most efficient separation and classification of goods.

Inlets are usually provided at each floor, so that baskets of laundry may be deposited on the Conveyor, as they are received from the trucks or hand. Gravity then carries them downward along the spiral blade at a moderate speed until they appear at the outlets below where the delivery men can promptly carry them away to the wagons.

Perhaps no method of delivery can provide the reliable service that a Gravity Spiral Conveyor will furnish. It is always ready to do its work, and it does it well. There can be no jams in the conveyor for its pitch is carefully calculated so that the bundles or baskets will be gently lowered at a moderate speed.



The Gravity Spiral Conveyor is a valuable addition to the building housing several laundry concerns or in a building which is entirely occupied by one concern. It precludes the possibiliity of expensive delays and is of no expense, beyond the installation cost.

The vertical freight elevator to carry material up, combined with the Gravity Spiral Conveyor for the down delivery, provides an ideal system for the up-to-date laundry. Moreover, when overtime work is necessary, at night, with a Gravity Spiral Conveyor available, the elevator can be stopped and still the work of delivery can go on.

Among some of the prominent laundries equipped with Gravity Spiral Conveyors are the following: The Pilgrim Steam Laundry Co., Brooklyn; Wallack's Superior Laundry, Manhattan; Holland Laundry Co., Philadelphia, Pa. Even three of these elevators occupy relatively little floor space for the tremendous amount of work it accomplishes.

A New Concrete Process.

Patents have just been issued to Daniel McDicken, of 506 Decatur street, Brooklyn, for a new process of moisture and damproof concrete wall construction for buildings. Figure 1 is a horizontal section of the frame portion of a building wall made according to his inventon and before the concrete is applied, and showing one corner and two adjacent walls: Fig. 1a is a view similar to Fig. 1, but showing a modification of the corner construction and with parts omitted. Fig. 2, a vertical section on the line 2-2 of Fig. 1, and showing a completed wall. Fig. 3, a view similar to Fig. 1, with parts omitted and showing the molding boards between which, in practice, the concrete is placed, said figure being also a horizontal section of the line 3-3 of Fig. 4; and Fig. 4, a vertical section on the line 4-4 of Fig. 3.

In practice, sills "a" are provided which are laid in the usual manner, but which are first wrapped in tar felt or other moisture proofing material, as shown at "b." On these sills are placed vertical stanchions "c" which are also wrapped with tar felt "b," and in Fig. 1 two of these stanchions are used to form a corner "c²," and these stanchions are also wrapped with tar felt "b."

Between the stanchions "c" and the corner "c²" is placed a partition consisting of vertically placed boards or panels, as shown in Fig. 2, and the outer side of this partition is also covered with tar felt or other suitable water proofing material.

On the opposite sides of the stanchions "c" and on two inner sides of the corner "c²" and on the inner sides of the partition "d" are secured vertical laths "e" and these laths "e" serve to hold the boards of said partition against inward movement, and in practice, said partition boards are placed in position as the concrete is poured in, or as the wall is built up, and this concrete serves to hold said partition or the boards thereof against outward movement, or said partition or the separate parts thereof may be secured to the laths "e."

Before the concrete is poured in, the wall frame is inclosed by wires "f" which are arranged in staggered relation on the inner and outer sides of said frame, as shown in Fig. 2, and which are also arranged horizontally and are secured to the stanchions and the corners by staples or similar devices "f²." After the inner frame has been completed in this manner, the molds are arranged, as shown in Figs. 3 and 4, so as to inclose said frame. These molds consist of an outer member "g" consisting of separate parts "g²" built up from the bottom of the wall to the top thereof, and an inner member "h" consisting of separate parts "h²," built up from the bottom as the casting or pouring in of the concrete continues, a portion of the concrete being poured in and allowed to set, after which the inner mold member "h" is built higher, and another portion of the concrete poured in and allowed to set, and this operation is continued until the wall is completed.

Before the casting or pouring in of the concrete begins, the outer mold member "g" is inforced by vertical stanchions "i" which are bound to corresponding wall frame stanchions "c" by means of wires "i²," as clearly shown in Fig. 3, and after the wall has been cast, or the concrete poured in and allowed to set, the wires "i²" are cut and the stanchions "I" removed together with the outer mold member "g," after which the wires "i²" are cut off close up to the adjoining face of the concrete wall, after which the finish of the wall is applied.

The publication office of the Record and Guide will be removed today to the twenty-second floor of the Lewisohn Building, 119 West Fortieth street. Our new telephone number is Bryant 4800.

The Bond and Mortgage Guarantee Company, which has been guaranteeing mortgages in Brooklyn and Queens over twenty years, has now outstanding in that territory $162,500,000 of mortgages.

Nathan C. Grover, of New Jersey, has been appointed chief hydraulic engineer of the water-resources branch of the United States Geological Survey, to succeed Marshall O. Leighton, who resigned early in May to plan and supervise land drainage in Florida.

Decoration Day falling on a Friday, many of our subscribers will no doubt be out of town when this number reaches their offices. For this reason it has been thought advisable to postpone until next week the fourth installment in Mr. Bruere's very important series of articles.

The passing of the Astor House will be regretted by many old Manhattanites; and it must be especially galling to its patrons to reflect that this historic institution should fall before a rapid transit invasion from Brooklyn. What was Brooklyn, anyway, when the Astor House was built.

Historical knowledge is not often put to such practical use as it has been in the advertising of the great Morris Park race track auction sale. It is no secret that the exceptionally interesting copy for this advertising has been written by J. Clarence Davies, who has drawn extensively not only upon his own professional experience but upon his splendid collection of prints, maps and local histories of the Bronx.

For Taxpayers to Consider.

Taxpayers would do well seriously to consider several assertions made by Mr. Henry Bruere, of the Bureau of Municipal Research, in the Record and Guide of last week. He points out that while every recent administration has assumed office pledged more or less to economy and efficiency their pledges to this effect are never decisive in securing the election of a candidate. Neither is the absence of any such pledge decisive in securing the rejection of a candidate. Economy and efficiency figure in every campaign, but as a minor rather than a major issue. To a certain extent this is inevitable.

New York is a city in which only a small proportion of its residents actually feel the burden of taxation, and such being the case it is difficult, if not impossible, to interest the mass of the voters in questions connected with local finance. But this is precisely the reason why the taxpayers who are so vitally interested in the economical expenditure of the immense sums of money which they contribute to the municipal treasury should be very much interested and should be organized for the purpose of making that interest effective.

It is their fault in case a policy of administrative economy and efficiency has not constituted a decisive factor in the election or rejection of candidates for municipal office. Their influence, if consistently and patiently exerted on one side, might well have been sufficient to turn the scale. The trouble has been that the taxpayers themselves have been much less interested in obtaining an economical and efficient administration than they have been in securing the appropriation of money, which would benefit their local interests. The situation was comparable to that of the difference of attitude between the producer and consumer on the tariff. Nobody makes his living by being a consumer. The producers were, consequently, very much better organized and very much more energetic than the consumers; and it was not until they overreached themselves and increased the cost of protection beyond all reason that the consumers were aroused to make an end of the worst abuses of the system. In the same way property owners, who wanted the city to spend money, have been extremely urgent in their demands and have been much more interested in obtaining appropriations for local improvements than they have been in looking out that the city received five dollars in value for every five dollars of expenditure. The present condition is the inevitable result of this attitude on the part of the great majority of taxpayers. They are themselves largely responsible for their own woes, for the fact that the burden of taxation has become heavy enough to cause stagnation in the real estate market, depression in values, and a loss of population to the surrounding community.

They are now offered an opportunity to clear their record in this respect. An election will be held next fall, the results of which will determine the financial and administrative policy of the city during the next four years. There is prospect that as usual questions connected with economical expenditure of the city's money and the efficient conduct of the city's business will be obscured by the more spectacular question of the reorganization of the Police Department. Such will certainly be the case, unless the taxpayers are aroused and make their latent influence effective. Candidates must be compelled to recognize the seriousness of the prevailing crisis, not merely from the taxpayers' point of view, but from that of the future prosperity of the city. Property owners should, consequently, sink their differences, subordinate their demands for improvements to the necessities of a policy of general retrenchment, and make a careful study of the details of the city's financial condition. The Record and Guide is offering to them an excellent opportunity of understanding the city's condition in detail by printing these articles by Mr. Bruere. The new taxpayers' association is offering to them the best opportunity which they have ever had of effective organization and of making their interests and influence as property owners more effective. It is up to them to take advantage of these opportunities.

Subordinating General to Local Ends.

A good illustration of the tendency of property owners to subordinate general to local interests is afforded by the existing movement in favor of more rapid transit for Queens. After a long period of agitation, arrangements have been made for a new dual rapid transit system which has been framed particularly for the purpose of distributing population among the outer boroughs and which will impose heavy burdens upon the taxpayer for the operation of lines, which will not be immediately profitable. But property owners in Queens are not satisfied and claim that the apportionment has been unfairly made. They point to the fact that the cost of the new lines to be built in Queens is only $13,000,000, against $33,000,000 for the Bronx, and this in spite of the fact that Queens has a population of 334,000, against a Bronx population of 531,000. On the surface this looks like discrimination in favor of the Bronx; but when one looks below the surface the discrimination disappears. In the first place, when we compare not the cost of the new Queens lines but their mileage with the new Bronx mileage there is much less evidence of discrimination. The new Queens mileage is 57 per cent. of that of the Bronx, whereas the population of Queens is 63 per cent. of that of the Bronx. The rapid transit lines for Queens are elevated roads and do not cost as much per mile as the necessarily larger proportion of subways of the more thickly settled borough; and this fact indicates the real reason for any apparent discrimination against Queens.

In Queens a population of 334,000 is scattered over an area of 81,700 acres. Each acre contains consequently, on the average, about four inhabitants. In the Bronx, on the other hand, a population of 531,000 is concentrated on 26,500 acres. Each acre contains about 21 inhabitants. The density of population is five times as great in The Bronx as it is in Queens. Any considerable increase of rapid transit mileage in Queens, even of the cheapest construction, would pay very poorly and would for many years have to be supported by the general taxpayer. But the burden of the general taxpayer is quite heavy enough as it is. No more unprofitable extensions should be built to the rapid transit system until the system is in operation and the size of the deficit can be definitely calculated. The city cannot afford to appropriate either its credit for construction or its income for losses on operation. If local areas want rapid transit extensions, they will have to consent to the assessment of the cost of these lines on the property benefited.

—A modern way of creating soft political snaps is to start a reform movement of some kind and introduce a bill in the Legislature to appoint a new inspection bureau to harry real estate.

THE WEEK IN REAL ESTATE.

The condition of the real estate market remained unchanged during the week. There was the usual quota of Washington Heights transactions, which have been the sustaining element for many weeks and as a result of which the recently finished high-class apartment houses there are gradually passing into the ownership of investors. A number of vacant plots in Manhattan, Bronx and Brooklyn changed hands, to be utilized as sites for more apartment construction, the most notable being a large Riverside Drive plot.

A touch of sentiment was added to the news through the purchase of an old dwelling in Greenwich Village by two old residents, who had returned for an "Old Home Week" visit. Another interesting feature was the passing of an old landmark on Jerome avenue and Macombs road. Johnson's Road House, for many years the training ground for pugilists and the headquarters of prominent turfmen, has been sold and will probably be torn down by the new owners. Columbus Circle contributed an important lease which showed a big increase in rental values of that section.

PROFIT IN REAL ESTATE.

A Funeral Indefinitely Postponed—Because There Is No Corpse.

Editor of the RECORD AND GUIDE:

We hear every fifteen minutes from some speculators that "you can't sell real estate at all," that the taxes are so enormous and that the taxation of land values is coming. Isn't it about time that the real estate interests quit mourning and ally themselves to boost and not to knock? If real estate is quiet, remember that Wall Street has fainted. This is the fourth depression I have been through, and in my modest way I still buy what land seems to me cheap.

It is wise to face discouraging facts fearlessly, but to face them intelligently, too. What are they?

1. Valuations for taxation are near the price a willing seller would get from a willing buyer.

2. The tax rate has gone up in ten years from about one and one-half per cent. to about one and three-quarters.

3. Private houses are a drug on the market.

4. Sales of well-rented apartments and of some office buildings are very slow.

5. Business has made a big shift and left some downtown property vacant. Wall Street is uneasy and general business doubtful, but those factors affect real estate less than they do any other investment.

I have before me the tax bills of two improved pieces of property. Both are fair investment properties with a somewhat remote future. One is in upper Fulton street, Brooklyn; the bill for 1900 is $1,262 on a valuation of $53,000. It now pays $1,203 on a valuation of $65,000. We wouldn't sell it for that. The other is in West 125th street, New York; the bill for each house in 1907 is $312 on a valuation of $21,000. (We would not sell for that either.) That is not a very vital advance in the cost of owning; not near as great as the advance in cost of living that the tenants pay. The valuation of these properties has increased, but the rate has gone down. Anyhow, all of the increase in taxes is much less than the increase of the rents.

Notwithstanding tenement house orders, etc., both properties have paid a good profit over interest these dozen years. When the inevitable rise comes, these properties can be sold at a profit.

I think most owners can match these instances, which are fair samples of my own personal experience. I have plenty more here for inspection.

So much for the first two lines of the epitaph.

It is true that private houses are a drug on the market. Observant men have been prophesying for a dozen years, ever since the exodus to the suburbs and to the country began that they would be a drug. But we must not forget that the supply of such houses has stopped. There will be some losses, which are part of the fortunes of business war; landowners, as well as business men, should expect to lose sometimes; but many of these houses can be turned into stores, apartments, etc. Also in the end, the intensive building up of the surrounding country will make more business for New York City and increase the land values of business sites at least.

That sales of well-rented buildings are slow is probably due to the fact that the increase of cost of living and increased expenditures has left little spare capital to business men.

But this will adjust itself with increased production due to greater efficiency of business and of cultivation, and with the breaking down of monopolies.

There is some uneasiness as to the proposal to exempt buildings in part from taxation and to the increasing tendency toward the heavier taxation of land values. Those, however, who have noted the effect of these plans when put in operation as in Vancouver and other Canadian localities, know that the land values have vastly increased and also improvements have been greatly stimulated as the building records will show. This is on the familiar principle that every improvement in the condition of the earth, whether agrcultural, mechanical, educational, political, ethical, or even religious, must go eventually and mainly to the profit of the owners of the earth.

It is the amount of such expenditures as do not benefit real estate values that the real estate associations should watch. Those that benefit land values should be increased in the interest of real estate owners.

An undue stimulation of building is not to be feared, since building makes business and, on the whole, few buildings will be erected after they cease to bring a fair return in rentals. The demand for space, and not a change in taxation, creates the supply of buildings.

We may conclude that with the recurrent revival of business which always comes, there will be renewed activity in real estate.

Meanwhile those operating in upper Fifth avenue, in Fourth and Lexington avenues, in upper Broadway, in Lincoln Square, and at other live centres will continue to make sales and profits, taking in some suburbans on the side.

The funeral of real estate is indefinitely postponed; because there is no corpse.

We have heard a lot from speculators already; now the views on the whole subject of the people who own real estate in connection with their business, like the great land owning department stores, would be "mighty interesting," as Horace Greeley used to say.

BOLTON HALL.

A Subway Needed in Central Park West.

Editor of the RECORD AND GUIDE:

As you are aware there is a movement on foot by the Central Park West Taxpayers to advocate the construction of a subway along Central Park West, connecting with the present subway at Columbus Circle and at 104th street.

It occurred to me, that if the building of the subway and the widening of Central Park West come to pass, and we all hope it will, that the subway may be large enough to take care of the present electric surface cars, thus making Central Park West what it rightfully should be, a beautiful boulevard, equal to Fifth avenue, and eliminating the danger of the loss of life and limb by reason of the dangers that now exist. It is one of our most beautiful streets, but it is practically destroyed and not safe as it is to-day.

If the subway is to be built, and presuming there would be a station at 96th street, then an underground shuttle should connect with the present station at 96th street and Broadway; and, furthermore, to relieve the dangerous condition which exists at the 86th street transfer road, the shuttle could be continued from 96th street and Central Park under Central Park to 96th street and Fifth avenue or Madison avenue. This would not alone give a great relief to the crush that exists in 86th street, but it would serve as a means of transit for the East Side, as it will be years before the Lexington avenue line will be finished, and the residents of the East Side of the city would practically have the advantage of the use of the present subways as well as the new Central Park West subway, which would be not alone a great convenience, but the fulfillment of an actual necessity.

HENRY M. TOCH.

The U. S. Realty's Big Year.

The annual report of the U. S. Realty & Improvement Company, issued this week, shows gross earnings of $3,559,000, net profits of $1,481,000, and a surplus for the year after paying dividends of $673,000. The present total surplus is $1,868,000 and the reserves aggregate $833,000.

The company's assets total $33,000,000, of which $19,000,000 consists of real estate, over $7,000,000 of stocks and bonds, $2,490,000 of mortgage loans, $2,450,000 in cash receivable. The liabilities are $14,416,000, leaving a balance of $18,864,000. This balance, less the reserves of $833,000, represent the value of the $16,000,000 of capital stock outstanding.

Wilson S. Kinnear, the new president, says the company's real estate is carried on its books at the original cost. Conforming to custom of previous years, the entire expense of carrying the unproductive real estate has been charged out of income, and to show the amount which the respective properties have actually cost the company, this expense has been added to the book value of the properties and a like amount has been set aside as a reserve.

During the year the mortgages on the company's real estate were decreased by payments of $1,220,000. The aggregate of the mortgages on all of the real estate owned by the company is now less than 46 per cent. of the book value.

The company has recently purchased the property at No. 323 Sixth avenue, heretofore held under lease. The acquisition of this lot now gives the company fee to the entire plot occupied by the O'Neill store, together with several lots adjacent thereto.

All of the company's modern buildings are so located as to afford the maximum advantages of accessibility, light and air. They are all of high-class fireproof construction, and are maintained in the highest possible condition.

The amount received from net rents during the year was $1,591,383.07, an increase over the previous year of $147,951.43. The revenue from this source during the ensuing year should at least equal that of the year just ended.

The following is a summary of the

George A. Fuller Company's business during the year:

Unfinished business on the books at the beginning of the year	$18,919,201.79
New business taken on during the year	21,262,293.78
Work executed during the year	20,164,923.45
Unfinished business on the company's books at this date	$20,016,572.12

The company is now constructing buildings in the following cities: Atlanta, Boston, Buffalo, Chattanooga, Chicago, Detroit, Hot Springs, Kansas City, Knoxville, Lexington, Milwaukee, Minneapolis, Mobile, New York, Philadelphia, Somerville, Spartanburg, Washington, White Sulphur Springs, Montreal, Toronto and Winnipeg.

In addition to the business of the George A. Fuller Company, the company during the year has taken quite a substantial interest in two large railroad construction contracts, and work on both is now well under way. The amount of work involved in these two contracts will aggregate about $5,744,125.

New Registration Law for Plumbers.

The Governor has signed the Deitz bills, resulting from the plumbing investigation in New York City. They require all master plumbers in New York to register their names and addresses in the office of the Bureau of Buildings in the borough in which they perform their work. They are then entitled to certificates of registration if they hold licenses from the examining board of plumbers. The certificate may be revoked by the Building Bureau for violation of any of its rules and regulations. The examining board is created by one of the bills, and is to be composed of two master plumbers, one journeyman and two city officials.

A New Station Requested.

A delegation representing the Vyse Estate Property Owners' Association called upon Public Service Commissioner John E. Eustis and made a formal request that the commission order the building of a new station at 172d street on the Lenox avenue branch of the subway. The delegation consisted of J. J. Haggerty, Henry Herbert and Harry Robitzek. Commissioner Eustis told them he would take the matter up and present it for the consideration of the commission upon the filing by the association of evidence to show that a new station at that point is needed. There are at present stations at 174th street and at Freeman street, and 172d street is about midway between the two.

Furnished Conduit for the Architects' Building.

The name of the National Metal Molding Co., 253 Broadway, was unintentionally omitted from the list of manufacturers who furnished material for the Architects' Building which was described in our issue of May 3. The National Metal Molding Co. furnished all the Sherar duct conduit throughout this building.

New Taxpayers' Booklet.

The Woodlawn Heights Taxpayers' Association has published a booklet called the 'Taxpayers' Manual and Directory," which is intended to be of value to property owners throughout the city, particularly in The Bronx. It contains in concise but complete form, a summary of the law as to taxes, water charges and assessments, together with a taxpayers' calendar, showing when the various taxes are due and payable.

—The Jamaica Local Board has recommended sewer and sidewalk improvements in the Third and Fourth Wards to cost more than $300,000.

—The reaction that has set in from the high activity of the last five years in loft construction, in the midtown section between 23d and 34th streets, is overdue. The unprecedented record of 1912 for mercantile work must have been the culmination of the building movement. Both the financial market and the state of public feeling in regard to unregulated construction are favorable to a recession in this line of work. The next center of activity is expected to be not far from the New York Public Library. In the meantime there will be no doubt a revival in apartment house construction.

BUILDING MATERIALS AND SUPPLIES

HOW REPRESENTATIVE MEN IN THE LOCAL MARKET VIEW THE TARIFF AND OTHER BUSINESS DISTURBING CONDITIONS.

Building Material Exchange Inaugurates Its New Era by Reception to 300 Guests.

A WEEK of inactivity and gloom in the general building material market had at least one bright spot, wherein optimism strangled pessimism and commercial rivalry gave way to unrestrained friendliness under the potent influences of a feast of viands and good fellowship provided by the Building Material Exchange in its new quarters on the tenth floor of the Woolworth building.

The reception, coming as it did, at a time when building material interests throughout the entire Metropolitan district are somewhat at a loss to understand just why the West and South should be having a building boom while the East is in the doldrums of depression, gave a much needed opportunity for interchanging ideas on the tariff in particular and other disturbing elements in general and the three hundred guests, assembling as they did from all parts of the district, left with two distinct feelings; first, that the Building Material Exchange was going to exercise a still greater influence on the market from now on and, secondly, that the building material interests of the east demand nothing more of the Administration at this time than to act promptly on the tariff measure so that a prompt adjustment of business conditions can proceed before it is too late to amend any harmful effects that may already have been felt arising from the uncertainty regarding the ultimate outcome of the measure now before the Senate.

The first part of the week was dull as far as buying was concerned because of the inclemency of the weather. The latter part was affected by reason of the holiday and in consequence it was characterized as one of the lightest weeks, as far as sales were concerned, so far this year. Prices are holding firm in all lines, however, and hand to mouth buying continues to be the rule rather than the exception.

Some of the leading men in various departments of the market have given brief surveys of the business outlook. These contributions form the second part of a series of articles that will be published in this department by representative material and supply men.

THE OUTLOOK IN BRICK.

Shortage of Labor Greater Menace Than The Tariff to New York Producers.

By JOHN B. ROSE.

"I do not believe that the tariff talk has any direct influence on our business. Of course we all know that anything which causes retrenchment in the financial world will naturally reach through all the avenues of investment and indirectly affect our business as well as that of every other producer. We believe that the apparent falling off in the plans filed is caused by a feeling of uncertainty as to just what we may expect.

"Far-sighted business men are confident in the future of the great business enterprises of this country. We may have a temporary depression, but there will be a reaction and we will have a corresponding increase in business as soon as the minds of financiers have become more settled and confidence is restored. So far as the industry which I am particularly interested in is concerned, there appears to be no reason to expect any lower prices of our product.

"Manufacturers of brick who ship their product to this market for sale are dependent very largely upon foreigners for their labor: Hungarians, Roumanians, Italians, and lately a few Spaniards; together with negroes who are annually brought up from the south, make up our corps, there appears to be a fair proportion of the latter, but so far as the others are concerned, with the possible exception of Italians, there is a very great scarcity; in fact, in my own case thirty families answering to the patriotic call of help from their native land, crossed to the other side and none have returned.

"We are also aware of the inability of many men in Austria, Bulgaria and Roumania to leave their country because of the law, which compels men over sixteen years of age to remain for military service. This has created such a condition that the average brick manufacturer to-day is running less than one-half of his plant. There is no doubt, however, of our ability to supply the present needs, and we are experimenting now with five different labor-saving devices which will place us in a position in the future, we hope, to proportionately at least make up for this increasing lack of men on the brick yards.

"When men, because of the nature of the business, are compelled to work at four or five in the morning, in order that the brick may have an opportunity of being exposed to the heat of the sun for a maximum length of time, can find labor in other industries, you can appreciate that ours will not be popular.

"I do not believe that under our present system you will ever see a return to the extreme prices which obtained a few years ago, but on the other hand we can see absolutely no reason for expecting lower prices on our commodity in the near future. There may be a slight advance, but not great enough to effect the consumer.

"Two weeks ago there was an available market of 79 cargoes of brick. To-day there are 19 cargoes, with sales for the past three days amounting to 39 cargoes. A year ago there were 12 cargoes in market and one cargo in market on the 16th of May, and there was not an accumulation of brick thereafter until the 6th day of August.

"The scarcity of labor on the brick yards this year confirm me in the belief that history will repeat itself and that those conditions which we found last year will obtain during the present season."

NO CAUSE FOR PESSIMISM.

Lower Prices Not Generally Expected to Follow Tariff Cuts.

By JOHN P. KANE.

"While the volume of business taken by this company since the first of the year does not compare favorably with that taken during the corresponding period of 1912, at the same time we feel that there is a fair amount of work in the Metropolitan District, and the many projects contemplated are not being closed out, due to the fact that the contractors believe the prices of commodities will be lower than the present market prices. In this we do not concur, in that there seems to be more than a fair volume of business in the outlying districts in the south and west, and further, we find that the manufacturers of building materials are short of labor, and consequently will be unable to run their plants to their full capacity.

"In summing up, would say that, while there seems to be a feeling of uncertainty in the building trade, we are a bull on the future, and we feel that by the fall of the year an optimistic feeling will prevail."

TOO MUCH ORATORY.

This a More Serious Menance Than Proposed Changes in Tariff.

By FRANCIS N. HOWLAND.

"We feel that the utterances of our present officials from the President down is doing much harm to business interests, so that we are going slowly in our purchases for the future, and only buying for present needs, and should judge that other dealers in our line were doing the same.

"It is quite difficult at this time to make any statement as to the future of the building material business under present conditions resulting from change in the administration, and business people not being assured as to what will result from the change in the tariff. There has been a slight increase in the prices since March 1st of most of the articles we deal in."

LIME MARKET CONTINUES FIRM.

Business Ready to Discount Effective Tariff in Lime Market.

By C. J. CURTIN

"The general market conditions in and around Greater New York have a tendency toward curtailment of building operations in every way. In the first place, you will note the large decrease in the building permits in the last six weeks.

"While we are very busy at the present time, I think this busy season will continue with us, and I am confident that conditions will be very much easier by July first.

"Prices have not decreased, but, on the contrary, have increased, due largely to the increased cost of labor. The general increased cost for labor from April 1 in the country manufacturing plants and May 1 in the city here is about 10 per cent. The price of material has not been advanced in the same ratio.

"The tariff situation may have considerable effect upon the financial and business interests of the country and there does not seem to be any possibility of correcting this, as in my opinion the tariff bill is going through as mapped out by the President and tariff committee, but we business men want quick action, so that we can adjust our business to the new conditions. We want progress; not politics. The general building business throughout the country, and especially in Greater New York, may be affected by the change, but the quicker the suspense is removed the quicker we can take counteractive measures to prevent any possible depression."

POTTERIES NOT ALARMED.

Trenton Potteries Co. Does Not Fear Any Extensive Retrenchment.

By A. K. AITKIN, Advertising Manager.

"Naturally a company doing the extensive business this one does would feel any effect of depression almost immediately, inasmuch as our goods are called for as building material. While the buying has been in smaller quantities, due, we suppose, to a little uncertainty as to the outlook, it does not seem to have diminished to any extent. We look for a good season, and do not see any reason to fear extensive retrenchment."

CLAY PRODUCTS IN GOOD DEMAND.

Didier-March Co. Busier Than During Last Fall.

By GEO. A. BALZ, Manager.

"Thus far we cannot say that we have felt any effect from the contemplated tariff legislation. On the contrary, we are quite busy, and, in fact, considerably more so than we have been since last fall.

"We have noticed no marked change in the price of building materials other than those which might be expected as a result of the periodical fluctuation of the market."

PAINTING INTERESTS CONFIDENT.

Business Acumen Instead of Unworkable Theories the Greatest Present-Day Need.

By WILLIAM H. OLIVER.

"While I feel it is but natural that business generally should be timid in the face of tariff revision, I also feel that some of the depression in the building industry is the result of over-building.

"The summer and fall hold out some promise of activity, but this, in my opinion, cannot be made something real until academic reasoning and unworkable theories are brushed aside to make room for ordinary business acumen."

CHARLES A. BLOOMFIELD, president of the New Jersey Clay Products Co., at Metuchen, said that his company has all the business it possibly can attend to for some months ahead, and it does not look for any change for the worse this year, regardless of tariff legislation. Prices, he said, have practically been the same for the last eight months, and they are better than they were a year ago.

MATERIAL EXCHANGE RECEPTION.

300 Guests Entertained in the New Quarters in the Woolworth Building.

THE new era in the affairs of the Building Material Exchange of the City of New York was formally inaugurated at a reception given in the new Exchange rooms on the tenth floor of the Woolworth building on Wednesday afternoon from one to three. More than 300 prominent building material men of the Metropolitan district gathered as guests of the officers of the organization and partook of a buffet luncheon, provided by the Woolworth building's caterer.

The chairman of the arrangement committee was Orin F. Perry, assisted by Ernest Braun, D. J. Morrison and A. V. C. Genung, Jr., the new president. Each guest was received by a member of the committee and after being escorted through the new and very commodious rooms of the Exchange they were taken into a suite where luncheon was served and where everybody had an opportunity of meeting other men in their line on a social plane. It was a representative gathering of progressive building material men from all parts of the district from as far north as White Plains, west as New Brunswick, south as Coney Island, and east as Flushing. The chief topic of conversation during the reception was the condition of business and the general sentiment seemed to be the necessity of quickly dispensing with tariff uncertainties by prompt enactment of the new law so that business interests could get down to an understandable basis and offset at the earliest possible moment the feeling of procrastination that seems to be prevalent in the local building construction market.

It seemed also to be the consensus of opinion that a greater amount of good can be accomplished for the building material market at all times by a spirit of co-operation such as the Building Material Exchange gives daily opportunity for and this fact was proved by the acceptance of more than twelve new membership applications during the two hours that the reception was in progress.

Among the prominent personages present were General George Moore Smith, of the firm of Candee, Smith & Howland, and A. Wilfred Tuthill, former president, who was the "daddy" of the reception idea. Leading men from most of the big Portland and natural cement, lime, brick and other departments of the building material market were in attendance and it was in every respect an auspicious beginning of the larger scope of the Exchange, which has been in existence for 32 years and now has a balance of more than twelve thousand dollars in the treasury.
